SEIZED PAPERS BARE DRY LEAGUE SECRETS OVER 15-YEAR PERIOD

Records Taken by Senate Committee Disclose 'Snooper' Program.

DOCUMENTS INVOLVE MELLON AND M'ADOO

Secretary Defended Self From Pinchot Secretly Through Haynes.

PAYMENT TO CANNON HINTED AT IN RECORD

Compensation for Bishop's Dry Work Authorized by Committee.

New York, July 1.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World says:

How the Antisaloon League of America formally approved a plan for the creation of a Nation-wide spy system whereby members of the league would report violations of the prohibition law and bring pressure to bear on judges and prosecuting officials to promote enforcement is now revealed from the league's own secret records.

The documents, seized by the Senate lobby committee, have been quietly inserted in the committee record since the hearings closed.

In addition to revealing the plans for the national snooping system, the league records show:

That Secretary Mellon made a secret report to the league in 1925 to defend the administration of the dry laws against charges made by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania. This report was transmitted through Roy A. Haynes, then prohibition commissioner.

McAdoo Sought Its Support.

That William Gibbs McAdoo made a personal written appeal to the league for support in the 1924 presidential primaries.

That members of Congress, Government departments and newspaper information services have been used by the league to disseminate material on prohibition without indication of the source from which such information came.

That the league has paid a national publicity agency in an endeavor to get dry propaganda into the larger metropolitan papers and on the wires of the great national news services.

That the league favored using the United States Navy to enforce prohibition.

That league leaders admit that the younger generation is slipping from the control of the dry organizations.

Cannon Payment Revealed.

There are many other revelations in the many thousands of words of the league records. The picture is not without its element of humor, as illustrated by the national executive committee forcing the manager of a Detroit hotel to eject a group of business men whose bibulous recreations had offended the sensibilities of the dry leaders during their meeting there last January.

Moreover, on January 28, 1915, the executive committee of the league authorized payment to Bishop James Cannon, jr., for dry activities "at the same rate as that of his regular salary as principal of Blackstone Institute." This was after the bishop, as chairman of the legislative committee, had recommended that the dry leaders should be brought to Washington to work for prohibition.

It was back in December, 1921, when the league was riding high and having its own way about appointments, that the national board of directors met in Washington and adopted a "law enforcement program," including the spy system heretofore referred to. The preamble of the program, declaring that the league "is not a detective or law and order organization," was followed by a series

Calvin Coolidge Says:

This country was not made on the theory that we should "eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die." Its founders were more accustomed to prepare themselves with fasting and prayer that they might meet the serious obligation to live through the morrow. They had their feast days, too, for they found a great happiness in their work. But these were a time of thanksgiving and praise.

Instead of falling back and falling down on the claim that the world owed them a living they moved forward and moved up on the principle that they owed the world the duty of providing for themselves. They sought to live in the things of the spirit. They put first things first. They set small store on the things that are temporal but strove mightily for the things that are eternal.

If this Nation is to endure we shall have to continue to walk by their light. We can not give all our thought to material success. We can not be relieved of all hardships. We should not faint at the first obstacle. We must accept the lot of finite human beings and with deeper faith and higher courage work out our own salvation through our own sacrifice.

HOOVER CONSIDERS MEXICO CITY VISIT

Tour, to Include Cuba, West Indies and Return via Texas, Studied.

SPEECHES MAY BE MADE

By ROBERT BARRY.

President Hoover is considering plans to visit Mexico City before Dwight W. Morrow leaves that capital as ambassador, a drastic revision of his previously announced plans for a summer excursion from Washington.

Instead of leaving Washington for a hit-and-miss trip through the national parks, a few days at Palo Alto and back to the White House or the Rapidan Camp, the President is mulling over a brand-new project—it would be to go by boat to Cuba, the West Indies and then to Vera Cruz. There would be a visit of good will to the capital of Mexico. That phase of the prospect is alleged to have grown in the President's mind since the extreme cordiality with which the ambassador stressed the importance of a Hoover visit to Mexico.

From Mexico the President would travel by rail to Texas, there to preside at the frequently deferred Gadsden Purchase celebration, and through adjacent States to Kansas City, Mo., thence he would proceed over the Southern route to California, stopping at the Grand Canyon and other national reservations in the lower tier of States.

Returning from California, Mr. Hoover would traverse the northern route and the northern string of National parks. That would reverse the order of travel which has been accepted in Washington as the presidential tour from previous White House intimations.

Probably the most significant aspect of the plan as now projected is that the President might undertake a few set speeches on the state of the Nation during his transcontinental tour.

After it had been intimated to Washington correspondents that the President wold make a few speeches, Mr. Hoover went out of his way to

CONFEREES RESTORE BOULEVARD MILLION

Parkway Item Put Back Into Second Deficiency Bill, Assuring Start.

SUBWAY SUM STRICKEN

The item of $1,000,000 for starting work on the George Washington Memorial Parkway was put back in the second deficiency appropriation bill yesterday by the Senate and House conferees on that measure.

The Senate a little later approved that item in the bill, and the House will do likewise. Thus a start on the big boulevard is assured. It will skirt both banks of the Potomac from Mount Vernon and Fort Washington to Great Falls.

The Senate conferees yielded to the House conferees on the item of $250,000 for a subway to eliminate the Fern street grade crossing and the item was stricken from the bill.

The item of $1,500,000 for the purchase of the celebrated Vollbehr collection of fifteenth century books, a collection which includes a Gutenberg Bible on vellum, was left in disagreement. The two houses must now decide whether this item is to remain in the bill.

The item of $1,000,000 for the George Washington Memorial Parkway was put into the deficiency bill by the House, but was knocked out by the Senate appropriations committee, even though President Hoover had recommended it. Now that it is back, there is assurance that a start soon will be made on carrying out the provision of the Capper-Cramton bill, a measure providing for a great park development program in and just outside the District of Columbia.

The item for the subway to eliminate the Fern street grade crossing was in the bill originally, but was knocked out by the District appropriations subcommittee. Then Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, put it back when the appropriations bill reached the Senate. Fearing that this bill would fail, he put it in the deficiency bill. Thus, although it is out of the latter measure, it still is in the District bill.

SENATE RAISES VETERANS' BILL PENSION RATES

World War Measure Goes Through by Vote of 56 to 11.

AMENDMENT BOOSTS RANGE SET BY HOUSE

Item Is Expected to Be Bone of Contention for Conference.

PRESIDENTIAL VETO INDICATED FOR SCALE

One Provision Would Remove Bureau From Control of Comptroller.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate boosted the ante and passed the hastily thrown together World War veterans' pension bill yesterday, 56 to 11.

One Progressive, Senator Borah, and ten regulars—Senators Bingham, Fess, Goldsborough, Hastings, Hebert, Metcalf, Moses, Sullivan, Vandenberg and Wolcott voted against it.

The vote on the highly controverted Walsh-Connally amendment by which the House pension range was raised from $12 to $40 a month, to a range of $10 to $60 was 37 to 26, the Democrats voting solidly for it, 27 of them, with 1 Farmer-Laborite, 6 Progressives and 3 Republicans. Twenty-five regulars and one Progressive voted against it.

Hoover Veto Indicated.

This is the amendment that will be the bone of contention in conference. The belief had been that it would prevail in the end even over the President's veto, but the senators are getting so tired that the indications are now that if the House puts up a fight for its provision, or rather if Speaker Longworth can work the steam roller again, that the $12 to $40 range will be restored.

The President has indicated he would veto the Senate scale.

Everything would seem to turn on how the House leaders hold their crowd together today. Undoubtedly the Speaker will recognize Chairman Johnson, of the House veterans committee, to move that the measure be sent to conference. Quite probably then there will be a move from the Democratic side to either concur in the Senate amendments or to instruct the House conferees to accept them. If Speaker Longworth lets the matter get to a vote it is believed this latter move would prevail. Upon the temper of his Republicans depends whether he can prevent this vote and the question of whether Congress will adjourn, probably tomorrow, or wrestle with the veterans' bill indefinitely.

FOG, RAIN, CONTACTS KEEP AIRMEN BUSY

Mother of Hunter Boys Goes Up in Curtiss Condor to See Her Sons.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—"Mom and the kid sister" had a family reunion with the enduring Hunters today.

John and Kenneth came back to earth for the first time in three weeks—came back by radio, but kept their feet off the ground and sailed cheerily on through the pages of aviation history.

Above the tune of their faithful motor the pilots shouted a comforting "Hello" to the folks on the ground and heard "Mom" and Irene send aloft words of concern and cheer. By means of a short-wave hook-up with another plane Kenneth and John broke up the monotony of ceaseless circling by a short "visit" with the rest of the Hunter clan below.

As their twentieth day of flying died a third plane, the famous St. Louis Robin, whose record of 420 hours has been beaten by the City of Chicago, made contact, and Dale Jackson, former record holder with Forest O'Brine, sent down their good wishes to the champions.

"Mom" Goes Aloft.

"Mom" Hunter took to the air herself tonight. The mother of the Hunter boys, not knowing when they would come down to earth to pay her a visit, took matters in her own hands and went up to see them.

With her daughter, Irene, beside her, Mrs. Hunter went up in a 21-passenger Curtiss Condor, as guest of Casey Jones, official observer for the National Aeronautical Association, and exchanged signals with the two boys who came up from the coal mines around Sparta, Ill., to become world champion "endurancers." At the time they had been aloft in their City of Chicago for 485 hours.

After flying alongside for a time, mother and daughter came down enthusiastic about the trip.

Chicago Gift Looms.

"I couldn't see the boys distinctly," Mrs. Hunter said, "but they waved at us. It was a wonderful trip. Everything looks so pretty up there. It was my third trip. I was up once the other day and I was up once before with the boys in one of their smaller planes. But I really enjoyed this trip more than any of the others."

Here Irene cut in:

"Yes, I really think we'll have

DISTRICT BILL HOPES RISE AS CONFEREES PLAN TO MEET TODAY

Session Proposed After Senate Group Revamps Emergency Measure.

FEDERAL SHARE NOT TO BE TOUCHED UPON

Appropriation Committee Holds to $12,000,000 as Rebuke to House.

112 WEIGHTY POINTS YET TO BE HANDLED

Four Alternatives for Lower Body When Emergency Resolution Comes Up.

Hope was renewed late yesterday for the $44,000,000 appropriation bill for the District of Columbia.

The Senate and House conferees on the bill, who have been in a deadlock for nearly a month, agreed to meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning and tackle all amendments except the one having to do with the amount of the Federal contribution toward the city's expenses.

It is true that this latter amendment is the one that has tied up the bill until now, but, even so, the fact that the conferees are getting together is a hopeful sign.

"Bluffing" Elicits Response.

The meeting for this morning was arranged by Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, the chief House conferee on the bill, after the Senate appropriations committee had thrown the fight right back to where it had started.

His proposal for a meeting was accepted by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, the chief Senate conferee on the bill.

The action of the Senate appropriations committee yesterday was an audacious and an impressive answer to the challenge that recently was made in the House that the Senate was "bluffing" on the bill.

Revamps Emergency Plan.

Taking the emergency resolution that the House had adopted the day before, a resolution which merely continues so much of the 1930, or current, appropriation as is needed for running expenses, the Senate committee struck out all but the enacting clause.

Then it tacked on to the resolution its own version of the 1931 appropriation bill, a measure carrying $44,000,000 to run the city for the fiscal year which began yesterday, and calling for a Federal contribution of $12,000,000.

This was the same Federal contribution that the Senate wrote into the regular appropriation bill, after the House had provided for a Federal contribution of $9,000,000. And it was the conflict on this question that put the bill in the predicament it now is in.

Other Weighty Points.

A point that has been overlooked in the fight over the bill is the fact that in addition to the amendment dealing with the Federal contribution there are something like 145 controversial Senate amendments altogether. Of these 33 have been agreed upon by the Senate and House conferees, but there are still 112 to dispose of.

These include the amendment dealing with the reduction in the number of kindergarten teachers, the amendment for a change in the water rates, the amendment to distribute $100,000 in raises among District employes, and many others equally important.

Representative Simmons explained yesterday that he and the other House conferees thought it best to get these other controversial amendments out of the way, and then to submit the question of a Federal con-

BRITISH NAVY CHIEFS SCORE LONDON PACT

Beatty and Jellicoe Attack Parley Conclusions in Parliament.

REFER TO INDIA TROUBLE

London, July 1 (A.P.).—The navy's own viewpoint of London's part in the recent naval conference today was communicated by the admiral of the fleet, Earl Beatty, and Lord Jellicoe, war-time sea lord, to the House of Lords in vigorous attacks upon the treaty conclusions.

Earl Beatty, who is easily England's most prominent naval figure, assailed the treaty, declaring Britain the only nation that made any disarmament or reduction and that the reduction made was great as to render her impotent and incapable of maintaining control over the various states of her far-flung empire.

The earl's denunciation of the treaty contained a reference to use of the fleet for a Far Eastern contingency. This was taken by observers to indicate that the home government had not overlooked the possibility of a necessity for sending warships—possibly a fleet—to India.

Earl Beatty said the London treaty had resulted in an increase of armament for other countries, the United States increase being 223,000 tons, Japan's 10 per cent of her strength and France being left without any restriction whatever. France, the speaker said, already had built three 10,000-ton cruisers, is building three more and has authorized ten others.

BRANDEIS TRIUMPHS AT ZIONIST SESSION

Justice, Judge Mack Have 12 Representatives in Administrative Group.

RETIRING HEAD LAUDED

Cleveland, Ohio, July 1 (A.P.).—American Zionists, divided into factions by a split in their organization in 1921, ended their differences today at the closing session of the thirty-third annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America and elected an administration representing the present and preceding administrations.

An administrative committee of eighteen was named to succeed the present directing heads, of whom Louis Lipsky had been president for nine years since retirement of Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, upon defeat of his policies. Lipsky submitted his resignation at the start of this convention.

Supporters of Justice Brandeis and Judge Julian W. Mack, leaders in the previous administration, are in the ascendancy in the new leadership, having twelve representatives on the administrative committee against six from the present administration forces.

In addition to the committee of 18, the organization's controlling body will consist of an executive committee of 40 and a national advisory council of 150.

Among the "Big 18" is Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, who issued a statement in New York concurrent with the opening of the convention.

U. S. Midshipman Dies By Own Hand in Paris

F. H. Worthington, On Cruise, Tries Poison, Then Fires Shot.

Midshipman Francis H. Worthington, of the Naval Academy, died in a hospital in Paris, France, yesterday from wounds self-inflicted Monday afternoon in a hotel in the Rue Jean Beaushire there, while on a three days' leave from the U. S. S. Utah, now abroad in the midshipmen's practice squadron cruise.

The Navy Department made the announcement yesterday simultaneously with a dispatch from Paris quoting authorities there as declaring that Worthington resorted to a pistol after trying poison.

Worthington was 18 years old, having been born on September 13, 1911, in Unsankinko, Korea, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Worthington, of the Coyote Crossing ranch, Grover, Colo. The Navy Department notified the parents and is now awaiting instructions for disposition of the body. The youth, in a statement written a short time before his act, expressed the wish to be buried at sea.

He entered the Naval Academy on June 14, 1929, and was on the usual cruise taken by midshipmen upon completing their first year.

Meanwhile, midshipmen on the cruise sailed yesterday morning from Cherbourg, according to an Associated Press dispatch, on the battleships Utah, Florida and Arkansas for Kiel, after midshipmen and sailors had been entertained last night by city and naval authorities at Cherbourg. The Utah's band stayed behind at the request of Ambassador Edge to play at Fourth of July ceremonies, and will proceed by rail to rejoin the ship at Kiel.

Grover, Colo., June 1 (A.P.).—The parents of Midshipman Francis H. Worthington advised today of the death of their son in Paris from self-inflicted gunshot wounds, could ascribe no motive for his suicide.

The youth's mother, Mrs. Frank H. Worthington, immediately notified her husband, who is recovering from a major operation in a Cheyenne, Wyo., hospital.

The Worthington family has operated a ranch 2 miles east of here for the last seven years.

Rhine Separatists Beaten By Rioters; One Home Fired

Disorder Follows in Wake of French as Scores Are Evened Up.

Kaiserlautern, Germany, July 1 (A.P.).—What little life remained in the separatist movement in the Rhineland today was jeered, thumped and burned out of it by German citizens of several towns. The worst disorders caused by evening up old scores with the adherents of the "Rhenish Republic," occurred here where three persons were seriously injured and the home of one was burned.

At Breslau and Mayence liberation ceremonies wound up early today with reprisals against separatists. Both there and here violent scenes occurred. The police in Kaiserlautern for more than an hour were wholly unable to cope with the disorderly elements.

One shop was stoned and the shop and home of another suffered a similar fate. It was at the third-story flat of a man named Knobloch that Fourth District, Taken Over by R. Q. Merrick, Includes Capital.

There will be "nothing sensational" in the enforcement of prohibition in the Washigton area, it was announced last night by R. Q. Merrick, who was sworn in as assistant prohibition administrator in charge of the Fourth District, with headquarters at Richmond, as the Department of Justice yesterday took over the job of prohibition enforcement.

Pointing out that he is familiar with the problems existing in the area under his charge, Mr. Merrick explained that he already has his campaign of enforcement mapped out, and that it consists of a steady, consistent program without any special drives or other "fireworks."

"We are depending on our deputies and their men to go on with the work efficiently just as they always have done," said Mr. Merrick, who has for several months been in charge of the tribution to a vote in the Senate and the House.

Statement by Simmons.

Mr. Simmons didn't say this, but if there should come an agreement on the question of a Federal contribution after these other amendments are disposed of, it would only require an hour or less to dispose of the bill altogether.

Mr. Simmons said that the conferees would go into the meeting this morning with no thought of discussing the Federal contribution, but determined primarily to get the other amendments out of the way.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, chief Senate conferee on the District bill, expects to ask the Senate to approve the amended emergency resolution today.

If it is adopted, it will be sent back to the House immediately. That body can do any one of four things.

It may concur in the Senate amendment, that is, agree to the Senate version of the 1931 appropriation bill, which is tacked on to the resolution.

May Ignore Resolution.

It may disagree to the Senate amendment, and ask for a Senate and House conference on the amendment.

It may ask that the resolution lie on the table, which would be tantamount to ignoring it.

Or it may send the resolution to the House appropriations committee for consideration.

The Senate appropriations committee met behind closed doors yesterday, but it is understood that the resolution was amended by a unanimous vote. An unusually large number of members of the committee was present.

Sympathy in House.

It may or may not point to what may ultimately happen, but it is a fact that many members of the House who heretofore have stuck by Mr. Simmons are now beginning to believe perhaps, after all, the judgment of the Senate is worthy of some consideration.

This sentiment was voiced in the House on Monday when Representative Stafford (Republican), of Wisconsin, a celebrated Treasury watch dog, expressed the opinion that the Senate's compromise offer was a fair one.

The Senate originally demanded a $12,000,000 Federal contribution, but it eventually offered to agree to a $10,000,000 contribution. The House, however, declined the offer, refusing to go a penny above $9,000,000.

And then there was the statement of Representative Chindblom (Republican), of Illinois, one of the most conservative members of the House. Said he: "It ought to be possible for reasonable men to get together and agree on something."

His statement was greeted with applause.

Tydings Asks Flag Over Byrd Lands

Bill Authorizes President to Claim Pole Areas for America.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover would be authorized to claim for the United States lands in the Antarctic discovered by Americans, including Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, under a resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

Offering the resolution, Senator Tydings said its purpose was to "secure for this country what Admiral Byrd's work has brought about."

He contended Great Britain had claimed two areas in the vicinity of the South Pole that had been discovered by Nathaniel E. Palmer and Charles Wilkes, American naval officers, in 1820 and 1840, respectively, and said it was time the American Government took some "aggressive" steps in the matter.

The nomination of Joseph W. Cox to be an associate justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court was confirmed by the Senate late yesterday.

Action on the nomination of Oscar Luhring for associate justice in the same tribunal was postponed on the motion of Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin. The Wisconsin senator afterward asked to be excused from explaining his request for a delay.

The two judgeships for which Mr. Cox and Mr. Luhring were named by President Hoover, were created by a law recently enacted by Congress.

DISTRICT FUNCTIONS DESPITE FUND FIGHT

Commissioners Continue at Duties as Though Tangle on Bill Was Settled.

MANY APPLY FOR JOBS

The District government continued its work yesterday just as if the House had not blocked action on the annual apropriation bill to provide funds for the running of the National Capital in the fiscal year, of which yesterday was the first day.

None of the employes of the municipality was laid off because of the attitude of the House, municipal department heads announced. The only ones to suffer were those men and women who would have been employed on new public works, usually classified as improvements and betterments. None of the betterments and improvements contemplated will be done until Congress authorizes them and provides funds, but otherwise things went along as usual yesterday.

The action of the District Commissioners in taking the bull by the horns and ruling that the normal functions of the municipal government were matters of emergent nature which could not be stopped because of a legal technicality, seemed to relieve almost entirely the air of tension about the District Building.

Many Job Applicants.

Monday the one question on every one's lips throughout the day was, "Has the House given us a bill yet?" and hundreds of calls were made to newspaper offices and to the Capitol to get the hour by hour developments in the fight. Not only were there fewer questions asked about the situation yesterday, but when the questions were asked they were put with a touch of amusement, and those among District employes and officials who are not unswerving followers of the G. O. P., even took occasion to jest about the "efficacy" of the Republican party.

Apparently there were many residents who took the announcement that the Commissioners had ordered the District government to carry on to mean that extra employes might be taken on, for there was an unusual number of applicants for work. They were of both sexes and almost of all ages from the youthful legal limit to somewhere near the legal retirement age and they wanted work of almost any kind.

The District Commissioners went into formal board session and passed on various matters and made various reports to Congress on various measures just as if nothing had happened.

Zoning Change Up Today.

There were various jokes passed by department heads and employes about working for nothing, but the next pay day for the statutory employes will not come until July 15 and by that time it is expected that the appropriation bill fight will be settled.

At 10 o'clock this morning the Commissioners will sit as members of the Zoning Commission to consider at a public hearing a proposed amendment to the zoning regulations providing for greater height of buildings on streets 110 feet or more wide. The amendment would permit erection in residential, 60-foot limit areas, on such wide streets, buildings higher than 60 feet provided that they were not more than eight stories in height and the allowable lot occupancy were reduced by 4 per cent for each 5 feet or fraction above 60 feet in height.

Southern Publishers Name Officers for 1931

Asheville, N. C., July 1 (A.P.).—The Southern Newspaper Publishers Association reelected for its president for 1931, J. S. Parks, publisher of the Fort Smith (Ark.) Times-Record and Southwest American.

Exporter Added To Shipping Group

G. S. Jackson, of Baltimore, to Assist in Study of Sea Policies.

(Associated Press.)

George S. Jackson, a Baltimore exporter, yesterday was added by President Hoover to the commission of experienced men he is forming to inquire into the sale of Atlantic lines by the Shipping Board and advise upon the broader policies of merchant marine organizations.

It was also announced at the White House that Charles Piez, a Chicago engineer, who had been tentatively appointed, would be unable to serve because of ill health and another appointment would be made to bring the commission up to the proposed six members.

Jackson is chairman of the board of the Western Maryland Dairy Co. and has been engaged in the export business for 40 years. He is an independent Democrat and served under President Hoover in the food administration.

Attic Lover Held Guilty in Slaying

Otto Sanhuber Convicted of Manslaughter in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, July 1 (A.P.).—Otto Sanhuber, 36, "attic man," was convicted of manslaughter tonight by a Superior Court jury for the slaying in 1922 of Fred Oesterreich, Milwaukee manufacturer.

Superior Judge Hardy, instructing the jury, said if any of the jurors, although believing Sanhuber guilty, felt they should recommend life imprisonment, the recommendation should be returned by all.

Sanhuber was alleged to have shot Oesterreich because he feared Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich was being injured by her husband during a quarrel. The man confessed he lived in secret attic compartments in the Oesterreich households here and in Milwaukee, where the family once resided, to be near Mrs. Oesterreich. Mrs. Oesterreich is awaiting trial July 9 on a charge of murdering her husband.

SURPLUS FOR YEAR FOOTS $184,000,000

Cut in Debt of $746,000,000 Is Also Announced by Secretary Mellon.

SAYS '31 DEFICIT LOOMS

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's first full fiscal year in office was completed with a surplus of $184,000,000 in the Treasury and a reduction of $746,000,000 in the gross public debt.

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday that total receipts for the twelve months had amounted to $4,178,000,000, while expenditures were $3,994,000,000. For the year previous receipts were $4,033,000,000, while expenditures were $3,848,000,000.

Mr. Mellon said at the close of the 1930 fiscal year last night the total gross debt was $16,185,000,000, as compared with $16,931,000,000 on June 30, 1929.

In announcing the surplus, the Secretary said $76,000,000 was due to debtor nations making their June 15 payment of their war debts in cash instead of in United States securities. The surplus also was increased, he pointed out, by abnormal customs receipts, due to withdrawals of imports in anticipation of tariff legislation.

Increased Despite Crash.

Income taxes provided the greater amount of the revenue for the year, producing a total of $2,411,000,000, as compared with $2,331,000,000 the previous year. The increase was made in face of the stock market collapse and the 1 per cent reduction on normal and corporation incomes.

Back tax collections produced $6,000,000 more in 1930 than in 1929, the Secretary said. Receipts from customs amounted to $587,000,000, a decrease of $15,000,000, as compared to the previous year, while miscellaneous revenue increased $21,000,000, to a total of $628,000,000, due chiefly to the tobacco, stamp and estate taxes.

The Secretary said the chief increases in expenditures for the year were $37,000,000 on account of the War Department, $10,000,000 for the Navy; $29,000,000 for the Veterans' Bureau, $14,000,000 for the Commerce Department, due to the census; $16,000,000 for the Shipping Board, and $150,000,000 for the Federal Farm Board.

Back Pay Costs $25,000,000.

The main decreases he listed as $19,000,000 reduction in interest payments, $57,000,000 decrease in Internal Revenue funds and $25,000,000 paid in 1929 as back railway mail pay. "The original estimate of the surplus made in advance of the fiscal year was $225,000,000." The Secretary said, "the 1 per cent tax reduction of last fall estimated as amounting to $80,000,000 for this fiscal year reduced this figure to $145,000,000. The actual surplus for the year just closed is $184,000,000."

While the Treasury completed the 1930 fiscal year with a comfortable surplus the prospect for the 1931 fiscal year starting today was not bright. Secretary Mellon said recently that the Government already was threatened with a deficit due to legislation to increase public building intended to aid the unemployment situation. He explained also that indications were that the business depression in 1930 would reduce the Government revenue this year below that of last year.

Fliers Spurn Cigarette $10,000; Do Not Smoke

Chicago, July 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A cigarette company offered the Hunter brothers, winners of the endurance flight record, $10,000 to indorse a cigarette. They turned it down with the remark, "We don't smoke cigarettes."

It is said the gasoline company whose product they are consuming will give the fliers $5,000 each. They expect to reap a harvest by "doing" State fairs.

Sister Irene revealed today that it is not coffee that has been going aloft for twenty days in the containers but milk and orange juice. Coffee men came by the scores to find the brand of coffee the boys drank and learned they drink no coffee.

President John J. O'Brien, of the Standard Gas & Electric Co., whose subsidiary is serving oil and gas to the fliers, will give them $100 an hour for every hour they beat the old record.

ENDURANCE FLIERS CHAT OVER RADIO

mother air-minded soon. She talked all the time about how lovely everything was from up there. It was a wonderful experience."

Soon after, the refueling ship, Big Ben, took up the brothers, Walter and Albert Hunter, for the 178th contact. A load of 70 gallons of gas was drained through the contact tube.

Fog and rain, a half dozen contacts with their refueling plane, the Robin and the radio ship and a loose bolt all gave the fliers their anxious moments during the day. Walter and Albert took up a special wrench and detailed instructions for the repair of the bolt that had been jarred loose in the motor by the long grind.

Shortly after noon a Curtis Pigeon plane nestled close above the City of Chicago and let down a microphone.

"Hello, Walter, Al, Irene, Mama and everybody!" said John. And the world listened in.

The short wave was picked up in the hangar and rebroadcast through the Columbia chain.

Then Mama and Irene, standing in the hangar, spoke to John and Kenneth, who have a receiving set aboard their plane.

"Do be careful," said Mrs. Hunter. "We like records, but we like you better," said Irene, by way of warning her brothers they should not stay in the air longer than safety permitted.

The effort to broadcast an interview with the fliers tonight was something of a failure because of mechanical complications.

Officials of WBBM said another radio interview would be attempted tomorrow.

Danger which faced the fliers last night from string and paper that had blown into the rudder and stabilizer control wires during the refueling contacts, was passed safely today without the necessity of pulling away the refuse. It had been expected that Kenneth, a former wing walker, would have to slide back over the hatch and disentangle the debris in order to prevent possible fouling of the controls. During the night, however, most of this material had fallen away in the face of wind and rain and the brothers decided there was no more peril from this source.

Two Bystanders Shot Down As Gang Cars Fight in Loop

Street Car Motorman May Die, Pedestrian Hit in Arm; Attempt to Slay Moran Leader Blamed for Affray by Police.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Two apparently innocent bystanders were shot tonight at State street and Jackson boulevard—in the heart of the Loop district—in what police believe was an attempt to assassinate Jack Zuta, known as paymaster for the Moran gang.

One of the victims, Albert Lusader, a street car motorman, was wounded probably fatally as his car crossed the path of two automobiles that sped down the street, exchanging fusillades of shots. Olaf Sventa, 69, was shot in the arm as he walked toward his work as watchman at the Standard Club at the intersection where the shooting occurred.

Zuta had just been released from jail, where he had been taken during yesterday's raids in George Moran hangouts. He had been questioned in connection with the slaying of Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter, several of the other released Moran henchmen rode with him.

Both automobiles sped on after the battle and it was not learned whether any of the participants were wounded.

Police said Zuta was seen driving north on State street in a car of the same make and model as one of those which participated in the gun fight.

Those who were released with Zuta, shortly before the shooting, were Art Blatz, Walter Maddox, Ed O'Brien, Carl Bertram, Ed Duffy, Mortimer Owens, Edward Anderson and Charles Freeman.

Carrying of gangland warfare back into the Loop and into the very neighborhood of the detective bureau was accepted as verification of reports that underworld leaders were drifting back into the city after the exodus that followed the Lingle slaying clean-up.

FIVE IN LINGLE CASE ARRESTED ON COAST

Reputed Owner of Death Gun Held in Los Angeles After Drive.

NEW CHICAGO MURDER

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—The trail of the assassins of Jake Lingle, whose death started a war on gangland, today had reached Los Angeles, where Frankie Foster, reputed owner of the assassin's pistol, and four other Chicago gangsters were under arrest as suspects in the slaying June 9 of the Chicago Tribune crime reporter.

The five fugitive gunmen were captured by Los Angeles police and two Chicago detectives in raids on two apartments last night, almost at the same time that sixteen other suspects were caught by Chicago police in raids on gang headquarters here.

The forays against the hoodlums resulted in the first important arrests since Lingle was "put on the spot" in a downtown pedestrian subway three weeks ago. Besides Foster, who was regarded as the purchaser of the pistol dropped by the killer, the raids caught Grover Dullard, another important suspect, who police said perhaps was the man who put Lingle "on the spot." Dullard was seized in Chicago.

Raids Fall Short.

Arrested on the coast with Foster were Marvin Apler, alias Hart, Frankie Fischer, George Davis and Herman Walters. Hart, Fischer and Davis were described as gang gunmen and Walters was said to be a brew master for one of the gangs. Los Angeles police, inclined to be uncommunicative, said their raids fell short of capturing everyone they sought, indicating several other fugitive gangsters escaped. Most of them were identified with the North Side George "Bugs" Moran mob, bearing much of the blame for cutting short Lingle's underworld assignments. It was considered probable that among those who evaded the roundup were "Bugs" himself and Leo Mongovern, both of whom have been missing from their usual haunts for some time, even prior to the slaying of Lingle.

The five on the coast were in the technical custody of the two Chicago detectives, working under the direction of Pat Roche, State's attorney's chief investigator in charge of the Lingle inquiry. Roche said he intended to extradite them as quickly as possible. Just what connection they had with the slaying, if any, aside from Foster's former ownership of the sawed-off pistol left beside Lingle's body, was not made known.

First reports said James (Red) Forsythe, accused as the actual slayer, also was caught in the raids, but police later denied his arrest.

Another Gang Slaying.

The sixteen arrested in Chicago included Jake Zuta, reputed comptroller of the Moran gang. He, Dullard and eight of the others failed to gain their freedom today by writs of habeas corpus.

As these events swept swiftly forward, Chicago police in the meantime were faced with another gang killing, the fourth since Lingle's.

The newest victim was tentatively identified as Tony Amato, 40, of Cicero. Identification was made over the telephone by Mrs. Ida Poliastini, who notified police Amato was missing. The description she gave tallied with the body "which was found on the bank" of the Des Plaines River today. The police tagged the killing at once as a gang affair.

Senators Extend Curb on Jones Act

House Bill, as Amended in Committee, Ordered Reported.

(Associated Press.)

The House bill modifying the severe Jones law to provide lighter penalties for first violators of the dry act was ordered reported to the Senate yesterday by its judiciary committee.

The committee amended the House bill to provide the smaller penalties should apply only where there has been no previous conviction or previous violation of the dry law within two years.

The committee also approved the House measures defining petty offenses under the dry law and authorizing defendants to waive jury trials. However, no action was taken on the other bill of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission program to allow trial of liquor cases by United States Commissioners.

DRY AGENTS REVEAL BIG SMUGGLING RING

INDICTMENTS NAME 11

Cleveland, Ohio, July 1 (A.P.).—Disclosure of a giant international rum and whisky smuggling ring with headquarters in Cleveland and operating by train, truck and boat from Kingsville, Ont., to Fernandina, Fla., was made here today with release of a secret Federal indictment naming 11 men and charging 52 illegal acts.

Arrest here of "Gentleman" Dan Coughlin, who is already under Federal sentence on one rum-smuggling charge, brought revelation of the Government investigation of the international ring.

Federal investigators said they found evidence that liquor was moved by the ring, which has been in existence since June, 1921, from the Florida "base" at Fernandina to McKeesport, Pa., from where it was transshipped via truck fleet to Cleveland for distribution. In addition, it was charged three boats operated constantly between Kingsville, Ont., and Cleveland.

Bahamas Source of Rum.

The investigators advanced the theory that supplies for the Florida base were obtained from the Bahamas, Bermuda and Cuba.

The ten named besides Coughlan are James Courtney, Pete Burns, railroad yard master at McKeesport; Harry and Glenn Fisher, of Cleveland, said to have kept the ring's trucks in condition at a local garage; John O'Boyle, John A. Dolan, A. Arles, M. Doty, Pete Bucholtz and Harry Goodman. No addresses were given for the latter six.

According to Special Investigator Paul Hansen, search is being made for Courtney, said to be a partner of Coughlin, who recently jumped an $8,500 bond at Toledo where he is under indictment on a smuggling charge. He is believed, officials said, to be in Canada, where he has been directing operations of the ring.

Coughlin, who previously was arrested early last spring as he was unloading a boatload of alleged champagne near Vermilion, Ohio, was taken before Judge Samuel West late today and pleaded not guilty to a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law and smuggling.

Bonds Total $26,000.

Coughlin was released on $7,500 bond soon after his arrest. He is now under a total of $26,000 bond on various charges.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1 (A.P.).—Daniel (Gentleman Danny) Coughlin, under arrest in Cleveland in connection with a liquor-smuggling organization, was arrested May 31 at McKeesport as prohibition agents seized a shipment of 8,022 quarts of whisky, for which Coughlin was said to have signed the waybill. John Dolan, of Cleveland, was arrested at the same time and the liquor was taken to a Government warehouse.

The freight car containing the whisky was shipped from Florida. The liquor was valued at $50,000, and last week the Federal court issued an order for its destruction.

Byrns Withdraws From Senate Race

Tennessee Representative Will Retain Seat by House, However.

Nashville, Tenn., July 1 (A.P.).—Representative Joseph W. Byrns, acting upon his physician's advice, withdrew today from the race for the Democratic nomination for United States senator from Tennessee. Mr. Byrns indicated, however, that he would retain his seat in the House, where he has represented the Sixth district for eleven terms.

Withdrawal of Mr. Byrns leaves four in the race for senatorial nomination. They are Representative Cordell Hull, of the Fourth district; Andrew L. Todd, Murfreesboro; Dr. John R. Neal, of Knoxville, and David W. Dodson, of Nashville.

Senator William E. Brock, the Democratic incumbent, will not be a candidate to succeed himself except for the short term, from November to March.

Warren Will Be Urged For Democratic Post

Raleigh, N. C., July 1 (A.P.).—Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of the First Congressional District, will be recommended as permanent chairman of the State Democratic Convention here Thursday, it was agreed today at a conference between Gov. O. Max Gardner, Josiah W. Bailey, State Democratic Chairman Odus M. Mull, and Judge Lycurgus R. Varser, of Lumberton.

House Passes Two Of Wagner Bills

Legislation Designed to Ban Unemployment Nears Enactment.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation designed to aid in preventing unemployment neared enactment yesterday with passage of the Wagner bills for advance planning and regulated construction of public works during business depression and for an employment index to show the need for building acceleration.

The public works bill, already passed by the Senate, was amended and returned to that branch for composure of differences. Congressional action was completed on the employment index bill, and it was sent to the President.

House leaders have decided to defer action on the third of the measures introduced by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, until the December session. This bill would create a Nation-wide system of employment exchange agencies under Federal aid.

LINDBERGH GREETS KINGSFORD-SMITH

Southern Cross Will Leave Today on Flight to West Coast.

WILL DINE IN CHICAGO

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—On the eve of flying westward with his companions of the transocean Southern Cross, Squadron Leader Charles Kingsford-Smith had his first meeting today with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Kingsford-Smith was writing at a desk in his hotel suite when he looked up and saw the tall young American standing in the doorway.

"Hello, hello, old fellow," the Australian exclaimed, jumping up and extending his hand.

Talk of Planes.

"How do you do?" Lindbergh replied. "I just dropped in to congratulate you on your latest achievement. I consider that your flight across the Pacific two years ago is the outstanding flight of aviation history."

"Oh, we rather look on your flight as being that, you know," Kingsford-Smith protested. "You must remember that we had three motors and there were four of us, whereas you had but one engine and you flew alone."

After more talk of planes and engines, chiefly of a technical nature, Kingsford-Smith congratulated Lindbergh on the recent birth of a son and Lindbergh felicitated Kingsford-Smith on his engagement. They posed for cameramen and talked for a few minutes with reporters.

Will Attend Supper.

Kingsford-Smith said that unless a strong west wind prevented he would take off from Roosevelt Field at 6 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow, flying over New York City and Newark, N. J., and from there on an air line to Cleveland, continuing without stop over Toledo, South Bend, Ind., and on to Chicago. The first stop he plans to land at the Curtiss Airport and with his crew will proceed at once to the Blackstone Hotel, where the Board of Commerce has invited them to a buffet supper. At 7:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) he and his crew, Evert Van Dyk, John Stannage, and J. Patrick Saul, will go on the air during part of a commercial hour.

Leaving Chicago early Thursday morning the Southern Cross will fly over Aurora, Iowa City, Des Moines, Omaha, Cheyenne, and to Salt Lake City, where the second overnight stop will be made. Friday the plane will pass over Elco, Reno, Sacramento and San Francisco, to Oakland, Calif., completing at that point for Kingsford-Smith and his plane a round-the-world journey that has taken two years.

Morrow and Commission Confer on Boundaries

El Paso, Tex., July 1 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, conferred here today for several hours with members of the international commission to rectify the boundary line between United States and Mexico.

The ambassador, who is en route to Mexico City, left aboard President Ortiz Rubio's special train, which was sent to Juarez to be placed at his disposal.

Mears Without Pilot For Round-World Trip

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—John Henry Mears, who plans to fly around the world in an attempt to break the Graf Zeppelin's speed record, tonight announced the withdrawal of Fred Melchior as pilot of his plane.

Melchoir, employed by the Junkers Corporation, of America, obtained a leave of absence to make the flight, but the leave has been canceled, Mears said.

MAN'S CONDITION GRAVE

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., July 1.—Ellie Corbin, aged 65, and his two grown daughters are in Fauquier County Hospital here, the former in a precarious condition with a bullet wound through his head, and the two young women suffering from rifle wounds and burns, the result of an attack alleged to have been committed on them by Elwood Payne, colored. Both the victims and Payne are from the upper part of Fauquier County.

Sheriff Woolf, assisted by Officers Sam Hall and Tom Stafford, arrested Payne and lodged him in the county jail in Warrenton, where he is being held without bail. No hearing has been held yet. Commonwealth's Attorney C. W. Carter is awaiting the result of Mr. Corbin's wounds, which are expected to prove fatal.

According to the Misses Corbin, Payne came to their home late Sunday night and told them that their father was very ill and had sent for them. His daughters got into the car driven by Payne to go to their father's aid and found him lying unconscious in the machine with a bullet wound in his head. Payne then ran, according to the young women, turned into a field and shot both of them with a rifle, after which he returned to the car, poured gasoline over it and his three victims, set fire to the machine and left.

The young women regained consciousness and succeeded in dragging themselves and their father from the burning car to a nearby house to give the alarm. Sheriff Woolf with assistants hurried to the scene of the crime and after placing the three victims of the negro's attack in a machine and sending them to the Fauquier Hospital, in Warenton, started on a hunt for Payne. Payne was soon apprehended by the officers and brought to Warrenton. He offered no resistance.

Both of the Misses Corbin are suffering not only from the rifle wounds but from severe burns. One of them was shot through the neck and the other was grazed by a bullet. Allie Corbin's wounds are more serious, and he is also badly burned. The Corbins have been residents of Fauquier County for many years.

Election to Oust Mayo Is Upheld

Detroit Executive's Forces Plan to Ask Reversal in Supreme Court.

Detroit, July 1 (A.P.).—Detroit's mayoralty recall movement assumed the proportions of a Supreme Court case today as Circuit Judge Arthur Webster refused to grant an injunction against an election for the removal of Mayor Charles Bowles.

Defeated in their lower court battle, the administration forces tonight were preparing to carry their case to the Michigan Supreme Court in an effort to obtain a reversal of Judge Webster's decision.

Judge Webster, in denying the injunction petition, held that he had no right to interfere with the election, that the reasons for the recall appeared to conform to the requirements of the statue and that he could not go behind the face of the recall petitions to investigate alleged frauds. Counsel for the mayor's group indicated that they would file an appeal immediately. Judge Webster granted a three-day stay in the proceeding for this purpose.

TREASURY GIVES UP ENFORCEMENT HELM

Dry Law Machinery Is Taken in Charge by Department of Justice.

CAMPBELL PROBE ASKED

(Associated Press.)

The Nation's most discussed law enforcement problem went into the keeping of the Department of J stice yesterday amid a calm that was not jarred by the denunciation of the dry law by Maurice Campbell, retiring prohibition administrator for New York City.

While the charges by Campbell went unanswered except for a crisp statement from Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, they gave rise to a demand in the House for an investigation. Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, introduced a resolution to empower the House judiciary committee to investigate prohibition enforcement in the office of the New York administrator for the past three years.

Lowman, who has been executive officer in charge of enforcement, said if Campbell had let politicians prevent him from enforcing the law, Campbell alone was at fault.

The Treasury declined to go further in answering the statement issued in New York Monday night and the general attitude of officials was that the Treasury no longer had anything to do with prohibition enforcement and did not wish to become involved in a controversy with a former official.

Celler said Campbell had given up his post under "conditions that indicate great laxity in the enforcement of the Volstead act and the interference by New York Republican politicians in the enforcement of that act."

Celler's resolution said "the enforced resignation of the said Campbell follows the raiding of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and the Central Park Casino, favorite rendezvous of the fashionable and the wealthy."

Campbell resigned in preference to being transferred to Boston.

Pinchot Plurality Set At 20,099 by Bureau

Harrisburg, Pa., July 1 (A.P.).—Subject to correction by the State Supreme Court, the complete official vote of the May 20 primary election gave Gifford Pinchot 632,719 and Francis Shunk Brown 612,630 for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Former Gov. Pinchot's plurality was 20,000, the official vote computed by the State election bureau upon receipt of the Luzerne County returns today revealed. The Pinchot lead is within 100 of the unofficial figures compiled by the Associated Press. Thomas W. Phillips, the wet candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, polled a total of 281,399 in the State out of a total vote of 1,534,657 cast.

SEIZED DOCUMENTS REVEAL DRY LEAGUE'S SPY PROGRAM

of recommendations to the State branches, including the following:

"Local committees, in harmony with the plan made by county committees, should report evidences of law violations to the county committee, and to the local officers whose duty it is to enforce the law.

Snooping Flair Overestimated.

"The committee should give to the officers the location of the place where liquor is sold and any information they have concerning it, and then wait a reasonable time before giving publicity or filing protest against the officers concerning same."

Apparently the board of directors overestimated the snooping propensities of its members, for on November 25, 1924, the late Wayne B. Wheeler, in his report to the national executive committee, voiced the following complaint.

"On December 5, 1921, we unanimously adopted a program at Washington, but few of the States have made even a gesture toward carrying it out. Other organizations have stepped in in many places and have attempted to do enforcement work by wrong methods and have hurt the cause rather than helped it. The fact, however, that they were trying to do enforcement work, the thing that the people wanted done, gave them a hearing and financial support which the league should have had."

Pinchot Address Stirs.

At an Antisaloon League meeting in Chicago early in November, 1925, Gov. Pinchot delivered a scathing indictment of the Coolidge administration for its alleged laxity in prohibition enforcement and paid his respects specifically to Secretary Mellon, his long-time political enemy in Pennsylvania. Pinchot's attack so aroused the league that a special meeting of the executive committee was called hurriedly, during which a proposal was made to appeal to the people over the head of the President. This proposal was lost by only one vote.

The records do not disclose the author of this proposal, which was a substitute motion, but simply state that it was defeated by a vote of 5 to 4 "the following members voting against it: Messrs. Briggs, Carre, Tope, Shumaker, Bishop, Nicholson. Members voting for the substitute motion were Messrs. Davis, Musgrove, Laughbaum and Forgrave.

The league also sent copies of the Pinchot speech together with demands for explanations to Secretary Mellon and Commissioner Haynes. Secretary Mellon's own reply was a noncommittal letter stating that he had arranged to have a personal interview with Mr. Pinchot, but the Haynes reply revealed that the Secretary felt called upon to render a secret accounting to the league for his official conduct.

The Haynes letter, dated November 27, 1925, and addressed to Dr. A. J. Barton, chairman of the national executive committee of the league, said in part:

"I agreed that to dignify his (Gov. Pinchot's) address by a public statement would only precipitate an almost endless, useless and harmful controversy through the press. At the same time I informed the secretary that I felt that your committee should have these additional facts, and he has agreed, with the understanding that this letter of transmittal and the attached memorandum shall be considered personal and confidential, and for the information of your committee only. I know you will so regard it."

The memorandum referred to by Mr. Haynes is not among the documents included in the lobby committee records.

Mr. McAdoo's plea for league support was noted in the minutes of an executive committee meeting at Indianapolis, April 10, 1924, as being received by Dr. Russell and as being "similar to the communications sent to other national officers of the league."

For Full Prohibition.

The McAdoo letter to Dr. Russell reads as follows:

"This letter will be handed you by Hon. Nathan Newby, of Los Angeles, a member of the executive committee of the church federation of this city. I invoke your good offices to help him in the mission he will explain to you in connection with the presidential primaries.

"I stand for maintaining the prohibition laws in their full integrity and for fearless enforcement of the law. The wet leaders are aware of this and are exerting all their energies in fighting me in the primaries. An analysis of the election to date shows clearly the backing of favorite sons and the device of uninstructed delegations in a concerted movement throughout the Nation.

"In each case reported we find that the dry forces have been caught off their guard, awakening in some cases only after the election was over.

"Assuring you that I shall appreciate your cooperation, I am, with all good wishes,

"Very sincerely yours,

"W. G. M'ADOO."

Wanted Navy Ships Used.

The demand that the Navy be used to enforce prohibition recurs several times in the league's records. It appears first in resolutions adopted by the league's biennial convention in January, 1924, at which numerous enforcement laws were recommended, including:

"A statute authorizing the President to use designated ships and officers of the Navy to prevent rum smuggling as their use is necessary."

Notwithstanding numerous declarations interspersed in the league records to the effect that the organization was operating under divine guidance, there were indications that the league leaders at times viewed the trend of events with alarm.

Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, head of the league's educational department, reported in 1924 some disturbing developments and declared that "never before in fact was it more apparent than at this very hour that the temperance forces of the United States must enlist in dead earnest in the movement for world-wide prohibition even to insure the continuation and success of prohibition in the United States."

"Moreover," Dr Cherrington added, "there are many indications in many places throughout the United States that the clutch is slipping especially as regards the younger generation. There must be an immediate movement for the undergirding and strengthening of the foundations upon which prohibition has been builded.

"The majority of the children in the public schools today are not being taught the truth with regard to the nature and effect of alcoholic liquors in anything like as large a degree as that which characterized the last generation. Boards of education, the teaching staff, the newer textbooks and State legislation are the points at which something worth while must be done.

"The conditions in the colleges and universities indicate a greater need at the present time of prohibition and enforcement educational work than ever before."

Man Held for Assault On Policeman Is Fined

Henry J. Rose was fined $50 with the alternative of 60 days in jail when arraigned yesterday before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court on a charge of breaking glass in the street and assault.

Rose was arrested by Policeman George R. Wallrodt, who testified that the man had attempted to make his getaway with a jar of liquor. The policeman declared he chased the man up an alley and that during the footrace the jar was dropped. The man was alleged to have struck the policeman.

Policeman Exonerated In Slaying of Suspect

Private L. D. Peyton, of the Fourth Precinct, was exonerated yesterday by a coroner's jury in the fatal shooting Sunday of Edward Little, colored, of Four-and-a-half street southwest.

The man, whom Peyton suspected of being a purse snatcher, was shot as he fled from the spot where the policeman had heard a woman scream. Peyton, who was held at the station house pending the inquest, was back on duty last night.

TEN SEIZURES MARK M'CAMPBELL DEBUT

New Dry Administrator for New York Raids Seven Dives on First Day.

CHICAGO HEAD CHANGES

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Andrew McCampbell signalized his advent as prohibition administrator for this district today by raiding seven speakeasies, seizing two truckloads of liquor and tracing another to its source of supply.

Mr. McCampbell, who has been enforcing the liquor laws of the country in various capacities since 1907, announced on taking office this morning that he saw no reason why New York couldn't be made as dry as any other part of the country.

He said his hands were not tied by Washington, as his predecessor, Maj. Maurice Campbell, resigned, had charged his were, and he also took sharp issue with Maj. Campbell's statement that the prohibition law could not be enforced.

To Ask Aid of Police.

It can be enforced, Mr. McCampbell believes, with proper cooperation of local authorities and police. He said he was going to ask such cooperation, something Maj. Campbell also did. The police, at that time, announced a hands-off policy except where speakeasies or night clubs became a menace to public morals and decency or a hideout for criminals.

Mr. McCampbell has had a long career in Government service, having harassed moonshiners in the Kentucky and Tennessee hills before the passage of the eighteenth amendment and bootleggers since that time in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, New York State and the country in general. He has been revenue agent, deputy prohibition administrator, administrator and chief special agent. From the last-named post he was sent to this city as administrator.

Five of today's raids were made on speakeasies in the city, and one each in Yonkers and Mount Vernon, suburbs included in his district. The two trucks were seized in the city also and another traced to a cutting plant in the midtown section, where agents seized liquor valued at $30,000 Thirteen prisoners were taken.

Herbert Takes Reins in Chicago.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—The job of enforcing prohibition in Chicago, where gangs fight over liquor profits estimated in millions, today fell upon the shoulders of Col. John H. J. Herbert.

Accustomed to the open spaces of Montana and Idaho, where he bossed prohibition until recently, Col. Herbert admitted that his new assignment will be a difficult one. Scarcely had he touched the reins of his office today when two former prohibition agents and four other persons were named in warrants charging conspiracy to rob a Government warehouse of liquor valued at $100,000.

The warehouse was robbed Sunday night of 1,600 cases of liquor, at about the time Col. Herbert was unpacking his suitcases following his arrival here. Despite such untoward events, however, Col. Herbert appeared undismayed as he gave his first interview today.

"I shall do as much as I can to fulfill the conditions of my oath," he announced.

Chinese Gets Rehearing In Death Sentence Plea

Santa Fe, N. Mex., July 1 (A.P.).—Woo Dak San, a Chinese under sentence of death for murder, who has been suggested by two scientists as the subject for a human experiment to determine whether the trachoma germ has been isolated, has been granted a rehearing of his appeal by the State Supreme Court. Previously the court had denied two similar petitions by defense counsel.

No action has been taken by State officials on the suggestion that the Chinese be granted clemency if he consents to undergoing experiments in the scientists' efforts to prove the isolation of the trachoma germ and find a cure for trachoma, an infectious eye disease.

Drunken Man's "Taxi" Carries Fare to Jail

With all the various colors of taxicabs to choose from, a colored man who called for one last night drew a black one that only went to one place, and that place was the Seventh Precinct.

The man, full of alcoholic good cheer, entered a store near Prospect avenue and Thirty-sixth street northwest. The clerk, asked a good number for a taxi, suggested National 4000. Not suspecting perfidy, the man called the number, which immediately gave him the Police Department. Shortly the patrol wagon drew up, and the inebriate went away, escorted by two uniformed footmen. But he didn't have any choice as to where he was going.

Court Asked to Enjoin Union of Iron Workers

The District Supreme Court yesterday was asked to issue an injunction restraining Local No. 5, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers of America, its officers and agents, from interfering with local operations of the Metal Door & Trim Co., of LaPorte, Ind.

Through Attorney W. C. Sullivan the plaintiff states that it is engaged in erecting elevator inclosures and other work on the new Garfinkle Building at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, and that the local union has called a strike because union carpenters instead of union ironworkers are being used. Justice Jennings Bailey announced that he would hold a hearing on the motion for preliminary injunction next Tuesday.

Interlocutory Decree Given Mrs. H. R. Moore

Justice William Hitz, in District Supreme Court, yesterday awarded an interlocutory decree of annulment to Mrs. Helen B. Moore, of Park road northwest, near Thirteenth street.

Mrs. Moore in her petition contended that her husband, John T. L. Moore, had failed to comply strictly with all the requirements of the South Dakota law when obtaining a divorce from a previous wife, and that when he married her in November, 1928, he was still the legal husband of the other woman. Attorneys Raymond Neudecker and William C. Ashford appeared for Mrs. Moore.

HART SPURNS CASES AIDED BY INFORMER

Throws Out Liquor Charges Second Time in Two Days, Due to Practice.

SMALL QUANTITY SEIZED

For the second time in two days Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart in charge of prohibition enforcement in the Police Court yesterday threw out two liquor cases because an informer had been used and only a small quantity of liquor was seized.

Mr. Hart several weeks ago declared that he did not like cases made by informers where only a small quantity of liquor was found by police or prohibition agents who executed the warrants sworn to by the informers and yesterday he threw out charges which Second Precinct police brought against Pauline Stafford and Amelia Thomas, both colored, of M street northwest near Fourth street.

The day before the prosecutor threw out cases against a man and a woman when it was revealed that the woman had been arrested twice in seven days on warrants sworn to by the same informer and in each of which she was described differently.

Testimony given to Hart yesterday in the case of the Stafford and Thomas women was to the effect that an informer was alleged to have purchased liquor at the place and sworn to a warrant before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. Precinct detectives then executed the warrant but found only a gill of whisky at the place.

John B. Jackson, Negro, arrested Monday night by Sergt. George Little and his vice squad, pleaded not guilty in Police Court yesterday and demanded jury trials on charges of possession of liquor and reckless driving. It was charged that Jackson was arrested after he and another Negro had abandoned a moving automobile containing liquor.

MERRICK PLANNING STEADY PROGRAM

Virginia territory, making his headquarters in Richmond. Under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice, his district will comprise Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

At the Department of Justice here, Amos W. Woodcock, of Maryland, was sworn in as the new director of prohibition yesterday, and Howard T. Jones, of Pennsylvania, became his assistant.

Dr. James M. Doran, who was commissioner of prohibition while the Treasury Department was in charge, became the new commissioner of industrial alcohol, at the same salary, with Harry J. Anslinger, former assistant prohibition commissioner, as his assistant. Dr. B. R. Rhees, former deputy commissioner of prohibition, is now deputy commissioner of industrial alcohol.

Mr. Anslinger, in addition, became acting commissioner of narcotics yesterday, under the Porter act, which creates a new Bureau of Narcotics in the Treasury Department.

The new offices of the prohibition forces are on the fifth floor of the Southern Building at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, directly above the old offices, which are being retained by Dr. Doran.

G.O.P. LEADERS FIGHT FOR LAW STUDY UNIT

House Chieftains Confident Funds Can Be Secured for Commission.

EARLY ACTION FORESEEN

(Associated Press.)

A precautionary program to assure funds for the continuation of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission and its investigations was formulated yesterday by House administration followers in preparation for a contest over an appropriation of $250,000 for the organization's expenses in the new fiscal year.

A resolution was approved late yesterday by the House rules committee to authorize the commission to continue its studies into prohibition and all other law enforcement, and administration forces were confident of favorable action by the House today when the second deficiency bill is submitted for action on Senate amendments.

An item of $250,000 for the commission was stricken from the deficiency bill on a point of order raised by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, on the ground that the commission was not authorized for a second year. When the measure went to the Senate, an item of $50,000 and a reappropriation of $88,000 of unexpended funds, was inserted with the proviso that the commission confine its studies to prohibition enforcement.

The Senate yesterday agreed to the conference report on the deficiency bill, carrying about $73,000,000 for contingencies in Government operation, but 16 amendments, including the appropriation for the Wickersham commission, still were in disagreement.

The conference report will be submitted to the House today, and if a point of order is raised against the Wickersham allotment of $250,000 to be recommended by the House appropriations committee, Acting Chairman Purnell of the rules committee will offer the resolution to continue the life of the commission, which technically expired yesterday, and to provide $250,000 and the unexpended balance, for the fiscal year 1931.

It will be brought up under special legislative status to assure early action.

Chairman Wood of the House appropriations committee predicted favorable action by the House and the Senate. Mr. Wood said it was to be regretted that "an attempt has been made to slap the administration" by not providing the funds "recommended by the Budget Bureau with the approval of President Hoover."

In connection with prohibition enforcement, the Senate judiciary committee approved the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones law to provide slighter penalties for misdemeanor dry law violators.

Ohio State Alumni Is Seeking $500,000

Capital Group Is Told of Plans for Research Work by Council.

Plans of the newly created alumni research council of Ohio State University were outlined yesterday by H. S. Warwick, president of the institution's national alumni association, to members of the Washington group at the National Press Club.

The purpose of the council is to raise funds for research work along various lines to be designated by the council, which consists of alumni, members of the faculty and members of the board of trustees. It is estimated that $500,000 is needed to carry on this work in outstanding fields of activity over a period of about four years.

The alumni also discussed a project to resume publication of the alumni regsiter which was suspended in 1917, and a plan to select directors of the national body on the basis of geographical distribution of groups was considered.

JADWIN NOMINATED POWER GROUP HEAD

Hoover's Choice of Former Army Engineer Chief Waits on Senate.

FIVE WILL MAKE UP UNIT

(Associated Press.)

Lieut. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, who as chief of Army engineers gained an intimate knowledge of the country's waterways, was selected yesterday by President Hoover to head his new power commission.

Gen. Jadwin retired several months ago from the post in which he supervised the development of waterway and worked out the Mississippi flood control program. In his new post he will pass upon applications to develop power resources in navigable streams and on public lands. He has agreed to accept the appointment. His nomination, with those of the other four commission members, will be sent to the Senate in special session this summer for confirmation.

When two members have taken office, the new commission will supplant the old one, which had as its members the Secretaries of War, Interior and Agriculture, and which, since 1920, has supervised the expenditure of about $350,000,000 for power developments.

At the beginning of the present session of Congress, President Hoover recommended establishment of a new power group because the three Secretaries were performing this duty in addition to their others, and were not able to give power matters the attention they merited.

Since the existing commission was established in 1920, it has supervised the establishment of nearly 450 power projects developing a total of 2,700,000 horsepower on public lands and navigable streams. Among the largest of these projects now in operation are the 562,000-horsepower plant on the Niagara River, the 378,000-horsepower project on the Susquehana River in Maryland and the Pennsylvania and the San Joaquin River plant in California which generates 142,000 horsepower.

In the new commission, applications for power plants are to be placed in the hands of five $10,000-a-year men who, the act stipulates, may have no other occupation. Nor may they have been connected in any way with, or hold any stock in, power companies.

At present 70 applications are pending before the commission. The work on these may be completed before the commission is divorced from the War, Interior and Agriculture Departments. Then a civilian establishment, the employes subject to civil service requirements, will be set up and civil field engineers selected to replace Army engineers. The legal staff also will be augmented.

NAMED TO POST

LIEUT. GEN. EDGAR JADWIN.

ENVOYS HELP OPEN CHESAPEAKE FERRY

Storm Breaks as Pageant Is Presented, Preventing Formal Speeches.

NEW BAY ROUTE RAPID

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 1.—A heavy wind, electrical and rain storm broke over Chesapeage Bay early this afternoon during the formal ceremonies that had a two-fold purpose, dedication of the new short route of the Claiborne-Annapolis ferry lines between the eastern and western shores of Maryland and of the new spur of road of the Eastern Shore boulevard that runs to Matapeake, the new eastern terminus of the ferry. But in spite of the weather, some 7,000 or more persons from all along the peninsula, as well as the western section of the State, had a big time.

Presence of envoys from four foreign nations left a touch of international color to the event, and they appeared to enjoy the outing regardless of the deluge of rain. The diplomatic party made the trip across the bay on the State steamer Robert McClane.

In Diplomatic Party.

The party included the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Belgian Ambassador, Prince Albert de Ligne, Princess de Ligne and their daughter; the Italian Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino; the Austrian Minister, Edgar L. G. Prochnik, Mme. Prochnik and their daughter, Miss Loranda Prochnik; Ernest M. Smith, director of the American Automobile Association, and Mrs. Smith, and Dr. Alfred P. Dennis, vice chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, and Mrs. Dennis.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, other State officials and nearly 1,000 persons from Annapolis and elsewhere were carried across on the steamer John M. Dennis, newest and largest of the fleet of ferryboats.

Prominent in the gathering was former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, the moving spirit in the establishment of the ferry line.

The storm, coming out of the northwest, broke in all its fury soon after the official party had settled in the reviewing stands. However, a fine array of floats, most of which portrayed the progress of the shore section since the landing of William Claiborne on Kent Island early in the seventeenth century, passed in review.

Speeches Are Abandoned.

But it was out of the question for Gov. Ritchie, former Gov. Harrington and others to proceed with speeches, as rain began to fall in torrents. More than 1,000 automobiles were parked here and there along the roadside. They furnished shelter for hundreds of persons. Others sought refuge in the steamer Dennis and other craft at the Matapeake pier.

One of the features was the presence of Van Lear Black, in the plane the Maryland Free State, in which he made a trip around the world. The big craft circled about the grounds a number of times.

The bay ferry, which is used by thousands of Washingtonians annually, is destined to go a long way in solving bay traffic problems, and will likewise prove a decided advantage to residents of the northern part of the peninsula. The regular schedule becomes effective tomorrow. The trip across the bay consumes 35 minutes. It formerly required an hour and a half by way of the Claiborne terminal. Service via the latter, however, will not be abandoned.

WIDOW IS EXECUTRIX OF DR. WILEY ESTATE

To Receive All Properties, Except $1,200 Trust Fund for Indiana Church.

SERVICES TO BE TODAY

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, veteran scientist of the Department of Agriculture, who died at his home here Monday morning, named his widow executrix of his estate, and willed her the life use of it. The amount of the estate was not revealed in a will filed for probate yesterday.

All personal property, including numerous medals and decorations, will be distributed by Mrs. Wiley, according to a letter left by her husband. With the exception of a $1,200 trust fund, from which $50 a month will be paid to the trustees of the Christian Church of Kent, Ind., the entire estate goes to the widow. At her death she may will it to her two sons, their descendants, or Hanover College, at Hanover, Ind.

Dr. Wiley's death ended a career that received international recognition. He was a chevalier in France's Legion of Honor, and had also been decorated with the French Merite Agricole medal for his work in connection with pure food laws. He was a member and a former president of the Cosmos Club, the Literary Society of Washington, the American Chemical Society, the American Therapeutic Society, and the Indiana Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. He was also a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Chevy Chase Club. He was president of the American Pharmaceutical Convention from 1910 to 1920.

Dr. Wiley's widow, Mrs. Anna Kelton Wiley, is the daughter of the late Gen. John C. Kelton, one time adjutant general of the United States Army. Two sons, Harvey, jr., and John Preston Wiley, seven nieces and nephews, and fourteen grandnieces and grandnephews survive Dr. Wiley.

Close relatives are: Carl Cole Wiley, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. J. Hanselman, Santo Domingo; Maxwell H. Wiley, Bayshore, N. Y.; Ulric Weir Wiley, Cuba; Mrs. John L. Fuelling, Kent, Ind.; Hubert Edson, New York; Dr. Elizabeth Corbett and her son, Harvey Wiley Corbett, New York.

Dr. Wiley left college at the age of 19 to serve as corporal in the 137th Regiment of Indiana Volunteers during the Civil War.

Funeral Services Today.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, where the body lay in state yesterday. Dr. Earle Wilfrey, pastor, will officiate. Interment is to follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers, all old friends of the scientist, represent many sides of his life work. They are: Dr. Charles E. Munroe, for the Cosmos Club; Dr. W. D. Bigelow, who was in the Bureau of Chemistry when Dr. Wilef was its chief; Dr. W. W. Skinner, of the present Bureau of Chemistry and Soils; Walter G. Campbell, chief of the food, drug and insectide administration, Department of Agriculture; Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana; Representative Harry C. Canfield, of Dr. Wiley's Kent, Ind., district; Dr. Percy H. Walker, of the American Chemistry Society; Y. E. Booker, of the Chess Club; Dr. Edward Hart, of Easton, Pa., the American Chemical Society; Cabot Stevens, of the Washington Harvard Club; Dr. George F. Bowerman, representing the Literary Society, and Harry G. Meem, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., in which Dr. Wiley was a director.

Frederick Hohoff Rites Arranged

Prominent Mason Had Been Ill, but Death Was Not Expected.

Frederick H. Hohoff, 61 years old, head of a delicatessen in the Arcade Market for the last year and one-half, after a lengthy service with Lansburgh & Brother, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at his home, 1631 Hobart street northwest. He had been ill for the last two weeks, but his condition had not been regarded as serious.

Mr. Hohoff, in company with his brother, Carl F. Hohoff, an expert draftsman in the Postoffice Department, came to Washington as a youth from Germany and has made his home here continuously since that time. At the age of 11, he entered the service of Lansburgh & Brother as a cash boy and retired after 47 years there. A short time later he opened his delicatessen.

He was a member of Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Washington Commandery of Knights Templar and Harmony Lodge of Masons. Masonic funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by the Rev. Charles Enders, pastor of the Concordia Lutheran Church, with interment in Rock Creek Cemetery. He is survived by his widow and his brother.

MRS. I. W. SCHOOLEY RITES

Wife of Dentist to Be Buried With Services This Afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. India W. Schooley, wife of Dr. H. M. Schooley, local dentist, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, 1305 Columbia road northwest. The Rev. Dr. John C. Palmer, pastor of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be private. Mrs. Schooley died Monday.

She was 70 years old. A native of Virginia, she came to Washington at an early age. Her husband has practiced dentistry here for many years. He has offices in the Medical Science Building.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR MRS. CRADDOCK

Murder and Suicide Verdict of Coroner Nevitt in Alimony Slaying.

INQUEST NOT NECESSARY

Mrs. Blanche R. Craddock, 36 years old, who was slain by her estranged husband, Charles R. Craddock, who took his own life, was buried yesterday afternoon in Williamsville, Va.

Certificates of murder and suicide were issued yesterday by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt. Coroner Nevitt decided that an inquest would not be necessary.

Mrs. Craddock was slain in the home of her sisters in the Monmouth Hotel, G street near Nineteenth street northwest, soon after she had obtained an award of $80 monthly alimony in Alexandria Corporation Court.

Three children survive Mrs. Craddock. They are Joseph Reynolds, a son by a previous marriage, and Alice and Robert Craddock. Her mother and three sisters also survive. Prior to their separation the couple lived at 115 South Patrick street, Alexandria. Craddock was an engineer in the employ of the Southern Railway.

His body was sent last night to Roanoke, Va., for burial, after funeral services held at 8 o'clock at Demaine's chapel, conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Prof. Jean Labat Rites Tomorrow

Students Who Gave Blood to Save His Life Will Be Pallbearers.

The students who gave their blood in an effort to save the life of Prof. Jean J. Labat, of Georgetown University, will be among the pallbearers at the funeral at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in Dahlgren Chapel at Georgetown. Interment will be at Forrestville, Md., on the estate of Dr. William M. Stewart, father-in-law of Prof. Labat.

Prof. Labat died Monday as the result of an appendicitis operation performed several weeks ago. The four students, who gave their blood for transfusions, are Elmer Bourgerie, James Powers, George Griffin and Henry Trautwein, students at the Foreign Service School.

They will be pallbearers, together with Leslie Mayer, Leo Hogan, Raymond Trainor and Jack McFall, former students in Prof. Labat's classes. Prof. Labat was a member of the executive faculty of the Foreign Service School, as well as being head of the modern anguage department of Georgetown University. He was a native of France and had served three years at the front in the World War with the French forces.

RITES FOR SCHOOLBOY.

Duane McCallum, Victim of Tetanus, to Be Buried Today.

Funeral services for Duane McCallum, 15-year-old schoolboy, of Mount Rainier, Md., who died at Providence Hospital of tetanus, will be held today at 2 o'clock from the Mount Rainier Christian Church. The lad, who died Monday, will be buried in the Bladensburg Cemetery. Six of his classmates will act as pallbearers.

The boy was cleaning an old pistol which exploded, and the wound became infected. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David McCallum, two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Daniel Buckley, Olive, Neal and Malcolm.

Memorial Is Urged For World War Dead

Resolution Prepared by Representative Luce for Monument.

A resolution to foster a movement for the establishment of a national memorial in Washington for the men and women who lost their lives during the World War has been prepared by Representative Robert Luce (Republican), Massachusetts.

A commission of five would be appointed by President Hoover, according to the resolution, to receive suggestions and study the proposal with the Fine Arts Commission.

Representative Luce said he had nothing definite in mind regarding the memorial but said he desired the creation of something of an imposing and comparatively permanent nature.

There are no memorials in the National Capital dedicated to the American World War dead as a whole, he pointed out, as the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is in Virginia.

ENGLISH ADMIRALTY HEADS ATTACK LONDON NAVY PACT

while Italy had built two, is building four and has authorized one.

Admiral Beatty severely criticized the admiralty for formulating a naval policy that did not take into consideration the possibility, however remote, of a naval attack on the part of the United States.

"Treaties themselves," Lord Jellicoe said, "do not always give security and safety. I'm anxious to know the reasons which have induced the admiralty and the government to cut down the number of cruisers from 70 to 50."

He said it was a most "inexplicable thing" because 70 cruisers, until recently, had been declared by the admiralty to be an irreducible minimum for its needs.

"If we have to move our fleet to the Far East," said Earl Beatty, "we will leave a force insufficient to safeguard our trade in the Mediterranean and home waters and we will be at the mercy of any power with greater naval strength in the Mediterranean."

Earl Beatty said he could not believe that there could be a body of statesmen in the country who could deliberately sign away Great Britain's heritage or that it was possible that naval experts should give advice which would render the service to which they belonged incapable of performing its duties.

Earl Beatty said he could not believe the British grand fleet during the war supported Earl Beatty's warning, with which he said he was in the fullest possible agreement.

Lord Parmoor, replying for the Labor government, contended himself with repeating arguments often previously employed by Prime Minister MacDonald.

He said recent developments in international amity had completely changed the world military situation, and that whatever the British admiralty had previously decided they now were convinced that the British navy as proposed in the London Treaty was adequate for the needs of the empire.

Ticket Agent Is Slain Carrying Money in Bag

Elizabeth, N. J., July 1 (A.P.).—J. F. Northrup, 50-year-old ticket agent at the Elmora station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was slain early today as he stepped from the porch of his boarding house, a block from the station.

He was carrying a money bag containing an undetermined sum. It was found nearby containing a considerable amount of change. The ticket agent handled a large sum in the sale of commutation tickets at the first of each month. His home was in Burlington, Iowa.

Nonconfidence Motion Rejected in Reichstag

Berlin, July 1 (A.P.).—The Reichstag today rejected by 283 to 121 a nonconfidence motion of the Nationalists and Communists against Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius. Three abstained from voting.

FIRE CHIEF OUSTED BY BETHESDA BOARD

Action Follows on Request of Volunteer Force When Ryan Won't Resign.

HAMPTON ALSO RETIRES

Following adoption of a resolution by the members of the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department asking such a step, the office of fire chief of that department has been declared vacant by the Bethesda Fire Board. Fire Chief Edward S. Ryan had refused to resign and also refused to appear before the fire board.

The office was declared vacant at a meeting which was held Monday night at the firehouse and which did not end until 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Assistant Chief Hiram Musgrove is acting as fire chief pending nominations next Monday night and elections the following Monday.

The only reason assigned to the decision to oust Chief Ryan was "incompatibility of temperament," members of the department charging that he did not work with the men.

Thomas Hampton, president of the fire board, presented his resignation at the meeting of the board, giving as his reason that he had been ill and was doing so on the order of his physician. O. P. M. Brown, of Edgemoor, was elected president of the board. Mr. Hampton's resignation had no connection with the fight over the fire chief, it was explained.

In a secretary it's Capability

in a cigarette it's Taste

THROUGH COMPETENCE, the individual rises to positions of responsibility and respect. Through dependability of taste, a cigarette attains ever greater popularity.

INCREASING MILLIONS of Chesterfields are lighted each day because smokers find that in this cigarette good taste is unfailing.

CHESTERFIELDS ARE RICH IN AROMA, flavor and fragrance, which come from the right selection of choice tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to a rare cigarette goodness. They offer the utmost in smoking enjoyment . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

USE OF REPARATIONS FOR AMITY IS URGED

National Education Association Session Asked to Aid World Good Will.

PLEA FOR PHILIPPINES

Columbus, Ohio, July 1 (A.P.).—A suggestion that the United States Government set aside the $143,000,000 it will receive from Germany for the Rhineland occupation to promote international education and fellowship was made today at the sixty-eighth annual convention of the National Educational Association.

The request came from Augustus O. Thomas, of Augusta, Me., president of the World Federation of Education Associations.

"A world civilization is being built up with startling rapidity," he said.

"Our country could well afford on the precedence of the Boxer indemnity, to set aside the $143,000,000 coming from Germany, as a payment of expenses incidental to the occupation of the Rhineland, the income to be used for educational research, fellowship, exchange of students and teachers. It should be applied to all countries."

Tied up with the discussion of international education was the statement today by Camile Osias, president of the National University of Manila, that the Philippines must have complete independence at an early date both for the political and intellectual well-being of the associations.

A proposal to amend the by-laws to deprive more than 100 ex officio members of the right to vote in the association's representation assembly was carried over to tomorrow for action. The proposal was contained in the report of the committee on delegate appointments, readjusting the methods of representation.

If the amendments are adopted they will place the voting power in the assembly almost entirely in the hands of the classroom teachers. The ex officio members, such as State directors and trustees, are chiefly college presidents and school superintendents. The factions supporting the amendments maintain that the voice of the assembly is dominated by officials and should be made democratic.

Reports of the committees on retirement allowances and tenure bills to make the jobs of competent teachers more secure and to provide for those who have reached old age indicated that teacher organizations are going to press for action before various State legislatures this year.

"Constitution Avenue" Spurned for B Street

The District Commissioners yesterday refused to give their approval to the proposal of Representative Cooper, of Wisconsin, to change the name of B street northwest to Constitution avenue. The proposal was contained in a resolution introduced in the House and sent to the Commissioners for a report. Constitution avenue is one of several names which it has been proposed to give to B street.

The street, when the Government building project is completed, will be a great ceremonial street, the Commissioners said, and agreed that it "should be given a name commensurate with its dignity and importance and directly associated with some great person in our national history," but of the many names which have been suggested the Commissioners said they "do not desire to express a choice."

Two Former Cannibals Will Speak in Churches

Cannibals once, now devout Christians, two Fiji Island chieftains, arrive here on Thursday of next week for a three-day stay, to speak at churches and institutions of the Seventh Day Adventists, under whose auspices they are making an extensive tour.

The pair, wearing their native garb, came to the United States as delegates to the quadrennial general conference of Seventh Day Adventists, held recently in San Francisco. They will come here from Union Springs, N. Y., where they are attending Adventist camp meetings. They are Jiali Tikowale and Setaraki Cevaca.

Policeman Mops Walk To Get Rum Evidence

Not to be denied arrest of a man on liquor charges, Third Precinct Policeman W. A. Perry early yesterday afternoon salvaged an insignificant amount of liquor which he mopped up from a quart bottle shattered on the sidewalk on Twenty-fourth street, near N street northwest.

He placed a charge of possession against Clarence White, 29 years old, of Oak street, near Fourteenth street northwest, whom he reported capturing in a two-block foot chase. Perry said the man walked out of a Twenty-fourth street apartment house and threw a package containing the alleged liquor to the ground as the pursuit started. Charges of breaking glas in the street also were placed against White.

charging the organization was "morally and politically bankrupt." The retiring president, Lipsky, is among the holdovers from the administration which won out over Justice Brandeis nine years ago.

Other members of the administrative committee are Judge Mack, Jacob De Haas, Abraham Goldberg, Emanuel Newmann, Dr. Nathan Ratnoff, Samuel J. Rosensohn, Horris Rothenberg, Nelson Ruttenberg, Robert Szold, Mrs. Edward Jacobs and Abraham Tulin, all of New York; Israel Brodie, Baltimore; Rabbi James G. Heller, Cincinnati; Judge William M. Lewis, Philadelphia; Rabbi Louis I. Newman, San Francisco, and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland.

A resolution was adopted acclaiming Lipsky as "an inspiration not only to the rank and file of workers in the Zionist cause, but to the leaders themselves." It also praised his work in behalf of the upbuilding of the Jewish national home in Palestine.

The reorganization adopted provided that the executive committee of 40 shall be divided equally between the Brandeis-Mack and Lipsky groups. Both the administrative and executive committees will organize within themselves.

Along with the reorganization, it was decided that the next convention "shall be held about December, 1931, unless the administration shall call one sooner." Another pronouncement was that Mack-Brandeis representatives shall have representation as Zionists on the Jewish agency.

ARGENTINE PUTS BAN ON VIRGINIA APPLES

Export Situation Is Further Complicated by Action Like Britain's.

U.S. INSPECTION SPURNED

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 1.—With British ports already closed during the height of the apple export season to all American commercial grades of the fruit, ostensibly because of a desire to keep out the "fruit fly," Virginia growers received word from New York today that the Argentine government will no longer accept for passage into that country apples bearing the United States Inspection Service certificates. Instead, Argentina will make its own examinations, and unless apples conform to certain stringent requirements they are liable to confiscation.

Growers here were warned against being persuaded by exporters' agents to ship apples to Argentina unless they first received payment in cash or certified check. Heretofore all apples shipped to Buenos Aires and other South American ports carried the United States inspection certificates, which guaranteed the quality of the fruit stamped on the barrel.

Exports of apples of the Ben Davis and Delicious varieties have been large and growing rapidly in the last few years. In fact, Argentina has been the principal receiver of the Virginia Ben Davis.

Growers said the British ban on all but fancy grades and Argentina's refusal to recognize the Federal certificates all but closed the door to export markets.

Hueston Sworn In On Postoffice Job

New Assistant Solicitor Is Guest at Receptions of Colored Orders.

Judge William C. Hueston, of Gary, Ind., was sworn in yesterday morning at 11 o'clock by the chief clerk of the Postoffice Department, in the office of Walter Brown, Postmaster General, as Assistant Solicitor of the Department. The coming of Judge Hueston to this office was marked by a reception on part of colored citizens which has been unrivalled throughout the many years of political appointments in which the Negro was concerned.

Judge Hueston was met at Union Station by several delegations representing fraternities, sporting, political and religious groups and was taken to the Columbia Elk home at Third and Rhode Island avenue, where he was greeted by a large assemblage, a like reception following at the Morning Star Elk home at Fifteenth and Q streets northwest.

The new Assistant Solicitor will occupy a position never before held by a colored man. He has been a judge in the Municipal Court of Gary for several years. The office of commissioner of education of colored Elks was originated by him and involves an annual expenditure of $50,000 in scholarships to colleges and universities for Negro boys and girls. This office was opened here yesterday at 930 U street northwest. The judge was entertained at a banquet last night at the Whitelaw by the Past Exalted Rulers' Council of Elks.

Contract Given For U. S. Building

Agriculture Department to Be Housed in Structure Worth $2,074,000.

Contract for the new Department of Agriculture Building on the square bounded by Thirteenth street, Linworth place, B and C streets southwest was let to the Nelson-Pedley Construction Co., of Philadelphia, it was learned yesterday. Only a few formalities remain to be done before the work of tearing down the existing buildings in the area will be begun.

The new building will cover a whole city block and will be the first structure of the "extensible" program which has been approved. It is planned that other buildings will be built south of it and on both sides, of the same general style of architecture.

The bid for the job was $2,074,000, with terra cotta exterior. The contractor will have to post a bond before he will be officially notified that he may begin work, but, inasmuch as he has known for some time that his bid was lowest, it is expected that the formalities will soon be complied with.

VOTERS OF CHICAGO FOR TRACTION UNITY

Merger of All Lines Upheld at Polls, in Hot Fight, 325,468 to 58,212.

IS TO COST $200,000,000

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—By an overwhelming majority, Chicago voters today approved the ordinance for unifying the city's traction systems, extending surface and elevated lines and building a subway.

The ordinance provides for improvements of transportation facilities to cost not less than $200,000,000 within ten years. It also provides for a merger of transit companies involving $261,000,000.

The project was submitted to the voters after decades of discussion, years of anticipation and months of financial, legislative and engineering action. Briefly, the plan approved will pool the management of surface and elevated line systems in a new directing organization; extend surface tracks by 245 miles, elevated tracks 315 miles and create 44 miles of subway through the congested downtown and near West Side localities.

The two companies now operate 1,000 miles of street car lines and 160 miles of elevated trackage, managed by the Insul interests.

A controversy over the ordinance has been raging for weeks. The ordinance was opposed on the allegations that it would grant permanent control over transportation to the Insull interests; that it granted a perpetual franchise; that it would increase fares, and that it made a "gift" of the city's $61,000,000 traction fund to the Insull interests.

Proponents of the ordinance emphasized the need for subways to take traffic pressure off the elevated "loop." They argued that outlying residential and industrial districts would be brought many minutes closer to downtown Chicago and to each other by the ordinance.

Despite the heated controversy, the vote was light. Unofficial tabulations showed that 325,468 votes had been cast for the ordinance; 58,212 against it.

Seven Policemen to Quit For White House Force

The District Commissioners yesterday, on recommendation of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, accepted the resignations of seven policemeen so that they could be sworn in as members of the special White House police force.

Three of the men have been on special assignment to the White House for some time. They are Paul J. Dempsey, Walter T. Grimes and Robert N. Legg. The new men sent to the White House guard are Harold B. Landon, Ovid H. Wells, Edward T. Montgomery and George A. Rafuse.

Oil Concern Refused Pipeline Right of Way

Private owners and business should not be given special privileges in the use of public space, the District Commissioners declared yesterday in reporting against enactment of a bill pending in Congress authorizing a private concern to lay an underground pipeline through R street southeast from square 661 to the Anacostia River.

Permission should be granted to lay pipes under public streets only where necessary to cross the streets, but otherwise should be laid on private property, they said. The measure is desired by a fuel oil concern.

Senator Reed assailed methods of awarding war contracts and hinted at defense board to govern awards.

STORM, FIRE ALARM GREET BYRD'S PARTY

Explorers at Philadelphia Held Up by Awning Blaze on Skyscraper.

RAIN SCATTERS CROWDS

Philadelphia, July 1 (A.P.).—Lightning, thunder and rain, the fire department, cheering crowds and showers of paper greeted Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his exploring companions today in the official welcome extended by the City of Philadelphia.

Admiral Byrd and six companions arrived at Broad Street Station opposite City Hall at noon, and were greeted by a reception committee headed by Mayor Harry A. Mackey.

In the midst of a paper shower, two awnings on a tall building caught fire and some of the confetti that had lodged on them went up in flames. The admiral was about to start for the Poor Richard Club where he was the guest of honor at luncheon, and the automobile procession was held up for a time by fire department apparatus.

Those accompaning Admiral Byrd were Bernt Balchen, Lieut. Harold June, Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, Capt. Gustave Brown, Capt. Alton Parker and Paul Siple, the Boy Scout.

Views Eternal Light.

At the Poor Richard Club Admiral Byrd took a look at the "eternal light" on the bust of Benjamin Franklin which was turned on by the admiral last January by means of radio waves while he was at Little America.

During the luncheon all the members of the party were introduced by Jack Lutz, president of the club, and Admiral Byrd made a brief speech in which he paid tribute to members of his Antarctic expedition. Before he left the luncheon the admiral was presented with a "South Pole," made from wood taken from Independence Hall, and also was given two silver polar bears and the Poor Richard Club medal.

The explorer and his companions were then rushed to the starting point of a parade to Independence Hall. As the procession started the thunderstorm rolled up and scattered some of the crowd. The rain came down in torrents as the parade rounded city hall.

Sits in Washington Chair.

At the conclusion of the outdoor exercsies the admiral went inside Independence Hall, paused at the Liberty Bell, entered the room where the Declaration of Independence was signed, wrote his name in the visitors' book and sat in the chair occupied by George Washington.

The admiral and his party later were tendered a reception at the Penn Athletic Club.

Tonight Admiral Byrd and his companions were the guests of honor at an official dinner. He was to return to New York on a midnight train.

Lawyer Defrauded $540 By Spurious Cablegram

A thief defrauded LeRoy Goff, an insurance broker, with offices in the Woodward building, of $540, while he was in Europe last month, he reported to police yesterday. A cable, purporting to come from Mr. Goff, who was abroad at the time, came to his secretary, telling her that a man would appear with a bundle of rugs for which she was to pay. When the man presented the merchandise, she turned the money to him.

On Mr. Goff's return, it was discovered that the cable was not authentic, that Mr. Goff did not want any rugs, and that he was out $540.

Worthy Poor Get Residuary Estate

Patrick Naughton's Will Also Provides for Local Charities.

Patrick Naughton, who died June 26, left his residuary estate to the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the relief of the worthy poor of the city, according to his will filed yesterday for probate in District Supreme Court.

A number of other special bequests were made which include $1,000 to St. Joseph's Home and School; $1,000 to St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum; $500 to the Little Sisters of the Poor; $200 to St. Ann's Infant Asylum; $100 to the Holy Name Society; $200 to the pastor of Holy Name Church for masses, and $100 to the pastor of St. Dominic's Church for masses.

Mr. Naughton explained that he had not included his wife in his will because she already had been provided for. He left $500 in trust for a son, Dominic Naughton, with instructions that he receive the principal in five years. James F. Shea and G. Percy McGlue are named executors.

PROHIBITION KILLED AS ISSUE IN JERSEY

Both Parties Include Dry Repeal in Tentative State Platforms.

DEMOCRATS FIGHT PACT

Trenton, N. J., July 1 (A.P.).—The Republican and Democratic parties in New Jersey, for the first time since prohibition became operative, were in accord today in advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Ratification by both State conventions of tentative platforms favoring repeal of the amendment virtually eliminated prohibition as a major issue in the senatorial campaign between Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican, and Alexander Simpson, Democrat.

The Republicans followed the leadership of Ambassador Morrow, supporting his repeal stand and going on record as favoring return of liquor control to the States. The Democrats reiterated their plea for repeal.

In a telegram to the Democratic convention, which unanimously approved its tentative program without debate, Simpson urged opposition to ratification of the London naval pact. Accordingly, the convention went on record as opposed to the treaty unless confidential correspondence between the United States and Great Britain is disclosed.

Darr Pledges Support To Buy-in-Washington

Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, pledged the support of his organization to the work of the Buy-in-Washington Council yesterday at its weekly luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Next Tuesday's meeting will be omitted because of the holidays. The council will hold its next luncheon July 15 at the Raleigh Hotel.

$400,000 AVAILABLE FOR RIVER PROJECTS

Sum Provides for Work on Potomac, York, Patuxent and Rappahannock.

CHANNEL TO BE DREDGED

Approximately $400,000 for various projects in the Washington district of the United States Engineer Office was made available yesterday by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers.

Work will be carried on with these allotments on the Potomac, York, Patuxent and Rappahannock Rivers. Work of dredging the Virginia channel of the Potomac River near Washington will start next month and continue until November, with $63,730 available for the job.

The sum of $11,200 is made available for construction and maintenance of levees on the Columbia Island spoil basin. It is planned to remove 370,000 cubic yards of channel material near Columbia Island in conjunction with construction of the Mount Vernon Memorial highway and Arlington Memorial Bridge. This program is to be started at once and finished early in the fall.

About $3,000 has been allotted from appropriations in the War Department supply measure for maintenance of the tidal gates in the Tidal Basin. For maintenance of Government plants and property in this area, $5,491 is provided, while $29,000 is available for outstanding obligations of the United States Engineer Office and $35,000 is provided to cover outstanding reimbursible accounts.

For redredging the Anacostia River $60,000 is provided, and it is proposed to place the dredged material on Bolling Field to extend that area.

Man Who Solicited Auto Parking Fined

Ulysses Thomas, 27 years old, of Ninth street near G street southeast, was fined $5 yesterday in Police Court on charge of soliciting illegal parking protection. Many complaints have been received lately from patrons of the ball park that young men would seek pay for watching parked autos, and if their offers were refused, they would damage the cars.

The complainant in Thomas' case said that he had paid for protection, but that Thomas had not watched the car. The culprit had been warned three times previously in court.

Strobels Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Fifty years married, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Strobel celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday night at their home at 4406 New Hampshire avenue northwest, with almost all of their eight children, their twelve grandchildren and five great-grandchildren present.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Strobel are native Washingtonians and have resided here continuously. Mr. Strobel is well known in railroad circles, having been an engineer of the Southern Railway for almost 40 years.

THE NEW REGIME.

The administration of the prohibition law is now under the Department of Justice, where it belongs. The law is not a revenue measure, and the Treasury Department has never been suitably equipped to enforce it.

There is every reason to expect an improvement in the administration and enforcement of the antiliquor law under the vigilant eye of Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock. The questions involved in administering the prohibition law are almost always legal. Unless the enforcement personnel are qualified to deal with legal questions arising at the very inception of enforcement proceedings many mistakes are likely to occur, which help to bring the law into disrepute. But when trained legal minds are applied to all questions arising, offenders soon find that the law is not to be trifled with.

Broad principles doubtless will be laid down by Attorney General Mitchell for the guidance of Commissioner Woodcock and the district and deputy administrators. The number of districts has been reduced, and carefully selected men are being placed in charge. The direct enforcement work is largely in the hands of deputy administrators. A thorough overhauling of this force, with the substitution of trained men of high character under Commissioner Woodcock's personal direction, should bring about immediate improvement in the enforcement of the law.

Disappointment is to be looked for in States which have no enforcement laws and in which public sentiment is opposed to prohibition. Nevertheless, even in these States better conditions will follow the application of a rigorous enforcement policy by highly capable men.

The courts everywhere are bound to cooperate with the Department of Justice in enforcing this law. There can be no flouting of the law by Federal judges hereafter without serious consequences. The Attorney General is the President's best adviser in passing upon the qualifications of candidates for the Federal bench. As new judges are selected from time to time it is a foregone conclusion that their attitude toward the prohibition law as well as toward all other laws will be carefully scrutinized.

Attorney General Mitchell becomes chiefly responsible for the enforcement of prohibition hereafter. He is an exceptionally conscientious and able public servant, whose training and disposition incline him to impartial, unswerving application of the law as he finds it. He deserves the hearty support of every law-abiding citizen in the United States in the prosecution of the great task imposed upon him.

HOUSE MUST COMPROMISE.

The Senate appropriations committee yesterday struck out all except the enabling clause of the continuing resolution passed by the House to enable the District government to struggle along on last year's appropriations, and inserted thereafter, as an amendment, the entire District appropriations bill as passed by the Senate some weeks ago. The controversy over the District bill, as a result of this action, returns to its original status with the House standing firm for a $9,000,000 lump sum appropriation and the Senate advocating a $12,000,000 lump sum, but on record as willing to compromise at some figure between the two.

The House realizes now that the Senate will not be bullied in connection with the District bill, as it has in years gone by. The unreasonable stand taken by the House in refusing to direct its conferees to go into a free and open conference pledged to effect a compromise, puts it in an indefensible position. The National Capital today is without funds, and its desperate situation has become a national scandal. The standing of the House is not enhanced by the fact that it is solely responsible for this legislative breakdown.

The Senate is to be commended for the just and firm stand it has taken in this controversy. It has recognized the Government's interest in and responsibility for the National Capital. This is an impregnable position. The House must compromise.

A PUBLIC WORKS PLAN.

During the annual conference of governors in session at New Orleans, in 1928, Gov. Brewster, of Maine, in the name of President-elect Hoover, who was then on the good-will tour to South America, advanced the suggestion that a $3,000,000,000 Nation-wide construction reserve fund be established, to be released in time of overproduction and unemployment. It was proposed that State authorities store up a reserve for construction projects equivalent to two years' normal expenditure on improvements. The fund was to be released when indexes showed the need for emergency action, so that money would flow to the contractor, the laborer, the material man, the factory, the factory employe, the merchant and the farmer. "It would go," said Gov. Brewster, "like the house that Jack built, and unemployment would be at an end."

A year later President Hoover bespoke the aid of the chief executives of the States and of municipal and county heads to put into effect a program of this nature. When the proposal was advanced at New Orleans it was generally approved, but the practical difficulties of putting it into effect were emphasized. It should be comparatively easy, it was said, for the States to build up a large credit and cash reserve, and it should not be difficult to set up an index that would show whether or not an employment emergency existed, but when it came to interpreting the index and setting the fund into motion it was believed that trouble would develop. In November, 1929, however, there was no question as to the need for emergency action. The stock market had collapsed; unemployment was indicated with certainty, and the States began to develop comprehensive programs of public improvements.

This week the conference of governors is in session in Salt Lake City, and President Hoover addressed them through the radio. He took as his topic the cooperation of the States in meeting the threatened economic depression, calling attention to the fact that expenditures for public construction by national, State and local governments had reached in the last six months the total of $1,700,000,000, and observing that, inasmuch as it takes time to plan public works, the second half of the year promises even greater results. He said further:

> To definitely organize so as to prevent the activity in public works from receding like other activities in depression, and to make them up in anticipation of future needs so as to alleviate unemployment in such a time, is a new experiment in our economic life of the first importance, and the success which has attended this event, the enlarged understanding of its vital importance, the new paths of organization which it has opened, represent an advance in economic thought in government and in service to our people.

The program outlined before the governors' conference in 1928 was only partially brought into actuality following the market collapse. There existed, in 1929, when the emergency arose, no advance plan for an emergency public works program, and it was only because every one was agreed that a critical situation impended that concerted action toward its amelioration was taken. The fact that expanded public works programs are practicable in staving off unemployment has been demonstrated in the last nine months. If, in 1929, a plan had been in hand which the governors could have immediately placed on the way to execution, it is possible that the depression would be entirely over by now. The suggestion advanced by Gov. Brewster in 1928 should challenge the governors of all the States to take action looking toward the establishment of a permanent plan for dealing with economic crises.

REFUSAL TO TAKE CITIZEN'S OATH.

The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that Prof. Douglas C. MacIntosh, of Yale divinity school, and Miss Marie A. Bland, a World War nurse, are entitled to citizenship is of foremost importance. Both refused to take the oath of allegiance to the United States without reservations and were denied citizenship in the lower courts. Judge Martin T. Manton, who wrote the decision, ruled that they are entitled to the privileges of American citizenship in spite of the fact that they will not take oath to defend the United States against foreign enemies.

Prof. MacIntosh has no scruples against military service when he believes the cause of the United States to be justifiable. But he would set himself up as the judge of the necessity and justification for any war in which he might be called upon to participate. If he thought this country to be in the right he would serve, and if he thought otherwise he would refuse. Under such an arrangement all that any naturalized citizen, or any other citizen for that matter, would have to do to escape the duty of defending his country would be to think the war unjustifiable.

The ground on which Judge Manton holds the professor fit for citizenship is that the "rights of conscience are inalienable rights which the citizen need not surrender and which the Government or society can not take away." Congress has recognized, he says, that persons having conscientious scruples against bearing arms shall be exempt.

But the question involved is not one of religious scruples. Prof. MacIntosh insists that he, and not the Government, be the judge of the necessity and righteousness of a war. That would obviously be an impossible arrangement. In practice it would exempt the coward from military service. The Government alone can decide the necessity of resorting to arms, and it is the duty of every citizen to give his loyal support to his country's defense.

Citizenship will always carry the responsibility of defending one's country. Every law or rule that tends to alter that obligation weakens the Constitution and lessens the value of citizenship. This case should be sent up to the Supreme Court. Since the law specifically exacts an oath from a would-be citizen that he will support and defend the Constitution and the laws of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and since a declaration of war is a law, Judge Manton's opinion will hardly stand the test of review by the Supreme Court. The Schwimmer case, decided by the Supreme Court, seems to have been overlooked by the New York judge.

DANGEROUS FIREWORKS.

Lewis H. Carris, managing director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, has issued a warning that hundreds of children may be blinded or suffer serious injuries through the use of fireworks this week. Studies have shown that each year in the week preceding the Fourth of July and in the week following 3,000 or more persons are seriously injured, 150 or more are killed and about 300 suffer eye injuries which often lead to blindness. All these casualties are the result of careless use of fireworks.

Mr. Carris says, "It has been estimated—on the basis of the findings of the American Medical Association study and the studies of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the American Museum of Safety—that in the last 30 years alone some 4,000 persons have been killed and 96,000 injured in fireworks accidents. This total, incidentally, is greater than the known casualties on the American side in the Revolutionary War."

The responsibility for protecting children from the dangers which accompany the use of fireworks rests with the parents. Special precautions should be taken by all parents this week, so that children will not be injured and possibly blinded for life as the result of fireworks accidents. Though it is against the law to set off firecrackers in the District, many youngsters, as well as grown people, disobey this law and often injure themselves by the careless use of these exploding missiles. The more or less "harmless sparklers" very often result in serious injuries to children. All fireworks celebrations of the Fourth of July should be supervised by some responsible grown person.

The following five precautions for the prevention of accidents during fireworks celebrations are suggested by Mr. Carris:

> Confine the use of fireworks to the Fourth of July. Hundreds of fireworks casualties occur before and after the Fourth.
> Keep fireworks of any sort out of the hands of little children.
> Keep an eye on children of any age when they are using fireworks of any sort; even the so-called "harmless sparkler" has been an instrument of death and blindness.
> Beware of the "unloaded gun," the "burned-out fuse," and of all "home-made" fireworks—these are heavy contributors to the long list of Fourth of July casualties.
> Be moderate and sane in the use of fireworks; the spirit of braggadocio has done more than any other factor to make the celebration of our independence more costly in human life than was the acquiring of that independence.

FRANCE AND ITALY

By the Paris Correspondent of the London Times.

In the attempts of France and Italy to reach an understanding on the points in dispute in North Africa, relations with other countries play an indirect but important part which may help to account for their persistent failure. Chief among them is the attempt made by each to exercise an influence in the Balkans, and especially in Yugoslavia. With the grim example of Austria-Hungary before their eyes it might be thought that both would be chary of embarking upon a policy of Balkan hegemony, and that no doubt is the case. But neither is able to let the other gain an advantage, and so the relations of both with Yugoslavia since the war have had a chequered course, with results not altogether satisfactory for either.

The Franco-Yugoslav treaty, upon which Italy looks with so much mistrust, is of a piece with the scheme for the organization of Europe by regional agreements relied upon by France, in accordance with her traditional policy, to preserve her security in default of a general treaty. After the war Italy desired to regulate all outstanding affairs with Yugoslavia and offered a treaty of friendship and conciliation. France was informed and replied that a treaty with Yugoslavia also figured in her own diplomatic program. Italy thereupon produced a tripartite treaty which France accepted. In 1924 Italy signed a separate treaty with Yugoslavia. France raised no objection, merely informing Italy that her own negotiations with Yugoslavia would be continued. The Franco-Yugoslav treaty was prepared. Italy thereupon expressed the wish to extend the scope of her treaty with Yugoslavia and requested that the signing of the Franco-Yugoslav treaty should be postponed. France agreed to wait six months; at the end of this period, in the absence of any further sign from Italy, M. Marinkovitch came to Paris and the treaty was signed. Italy then declared that a new situation had arisen, and her treaty with Yugoslavia was not renewed.

A chapter of accidents of this character was hardly calculated to improve matters. Italy adopted an attitude of suspicion toward the exercise of French influence in Yugoslavia. It was suggested to France that, if the Franco-Yugoslav treaty were allowed to lapse, the whole attitude of Italy toward a general treaty of friendship and conciliation would be changed. But the French naturally could not see it in this light. After all, Italy had not joined in when she could have done. They considered that they were committed to their policy in Yugoslavia, that their influence in that quarter was in favor of the maintenance of peace, and that in any case the two questions were quite separate. On behalf of Italy it was asserted that France was lending money to Yugoslavia to be spent with French armament firms, and that this steady arming constituted a danger to Italy. The answer was returned that Yugoslavia armed only for defense, and that the uncertain attitude of Bulgaria on the one side and Italy on the other gave her a perfect right to do so. These polemics, conducted largely in the open through the medium of an inspired press, were hardly of a character to improve mutual relations. Lately, the factor of Albania has been brought in to complicate the situation still further. Any attempt to transform the Adriatic into an Italian lake must have the most disastrous repercussion upon Yugoslavia, with ultimate consequences that the French have been quick to foresee.

He Would Change the World's Complexion.

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

Clio, who has had enough to read in the last few years to keep her both shocked and busy, according to the New York Times, must have smiled to herself ironically the day before yesterday at Brig. Gen. Smith, commandant of the United States Military Academy at West Point, formally accepting the desk which belonged to Gen. Benedict Arnold.

To be sure, that officer rendered signal service to his country prior to his change of allegiance. In fact, due in part to his exceptional military skill the defense of the Hudson Valley against the redcoats was made easier. At Saratoga his record was distinguished and established his claim to rank high among military commanders.

His subsequent treason earned for him the bitter resentment of his countrymen. In recent years he has been whitewashed—as has every Revolutionary figure whose record was originally black. If Clio could speak she would probably tell us that he was unduly criticized by subsequent generations. But his name is so closely identified with the capital sin among military men that it seems strange to see his memory honored—or, at least, perpetuated—by the United States Military Academy.

JUST FOLKS

GIVING.

The art of giving calls for grace,
A kindly smile upon the face,
A tender light within the eye
For gifts that are ruined by a sigh,
And oft are bitterly misjudged
When it appears they are begrudged.

The splendor of a gift is lost
However great may be its cost.
If he who gives it wears a frown
And harshly drops the token down,
And fails to speak the kindly word
By which the heart is touched and stirred.

Unless the man who serves the need
Himself finds pleasure in the deed
Which lifts another's weight of care
He spoils his gift, however fair,
For what are little wants supplied
When words of friendship are denied?

Gifts little luster have unless
The donors glow with happiness
And when ungraciously bestowed
They but increase man's heavy load,
For those by need to take compelled
Will miss the smiles that are withheld.

Gamblers Set the Value of Your Property and the Law Nods Approval.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANY years ago a manufacturer who needed money to expand his business went to a banker or private money lender.

When the money had served its purpose, he returned it with interest.

If he needed additional permanent capital, and was willing to share the business with another, he took in a partner who had money.

It wasn't always possible to find one man with sufficient money to invest, however, and business men devised the plan of issuing stock—dividing their business into small shares and selling these to Tom, Dick and Harry.

Thus people with small sums to invest were enabled to buy an interest in a great business and great business men were able to find the capital needed for expansion.

In a growing country it proved a profitable plan for everybody concerned.

When many businesses had sold many shares, and people began to use these shares as money and to exchange them one for another, it became necessary to establish a place of business where stocks could be bought and sold.

The answer to this need was the stock exchange—literally a market for stocks—a place where brokers, for a commission, exchanged or bought and sold shares in many businesses.

Necessity established the stock exchange, and the law of supply and demand fixed the selling price of the stocks.

The worth of any stock depends upon the value of the property behind it, its earning power, and its probable future.

But stocks much desired sell above their actual worth as men bid against one another to obtain them, and stocks little wanted sell below their value because the seller must take what he can get.

Thus the law of supply and demand, without the connivance of scheming men, will give stocks an unfair selling price that still is legitimate despite its unfairness.

But the price of stocks was not long left to the law of supply and demand.

Professional stock dealers became gamblers, pooling their resources to force the price of stocks up or down, selling stocks they did not have in the hope of buying at a lower figure before making delivery, buying stocks they did not intend to accept in the hope that rising prices would give them a margin of profit for settlement.

And thus the market established for the convenience of share holders became a gambling house, and shares of stock held by millions of small investors rose and fell in value as the gamblers matched wits to get unearned profits.

Today the property of the millions is at the mercy of gamblers and Government does nothing to protect the savings of its citizens because the gamblers are powerful and mere citizens are not.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Good News for Railroad Tourists.

An Eastern railroad has put on sleeping cars with regular bedrooms, thus making it possible for travelers to lie awake in a natural position. The rooms have two beds, running water and all the features of a boudoir at home except for an all-night radio concert.

• • • •

The manufacture of sleeping cars in which passengers are not expected to sleep in layers marks a great forward step in American railroading. It shows that the railroad magnates have at last decided to give the public a break.

• • • •

The overnight trip by railroad has always been a form of compulsory discomfort designed to turn the passengers loose after a 200-mile overnight trip feeling as racked and battered as if he had just completed a transcontinental flight on a picket fence.

• • • •

To go to bed in a lower berth has always offered abstacles enough, but trying to call it a day in an upper has put a passenger under the obligation of showing professional training as a circus acrobat, a flag-pole sitter, a wire walker and a hand-organ monk.

• • • •

It required agility, patience and a sence of philosophy that could consider a bureau drawer an ideal place for a dusk to dawn flight. A man might get into an upper berth with a ladder and a couple of friendly boosts but the big problem was what to do after he had made the ascent.

• • • •

The upper berth was, is and always shall be the answer to a rubber man's prayer.

• • • •

Any person who could be comfortable in an upper berth could enjoy night life on a pantry shelf.

• • • •

Compared with the upper berth the old-fashioned eight-inch circus seat was an upholstered luxury from the Louis XIV period.

• • • •

Now that a great American railroad has decided to make it possible for passengers to retire on the ground floor of a car, eliminating the pole-vault, the high jump and firemen's daily dozen as preludes to the porter's "Good night," the traveling public hopes the example will be widely followed.

• • • •

The satisfaction of going into a regular stateroom with only one foot at a time off the ground, undressing without dislocating a rib, hanging the clothes on a hanger and being able to turn over in the night without rolling on the watch and breaking the crystal will compensate for those tight windows and empty ice-water tanks.

GLASS WAR.

Dry agents raided the Ritz-Carlton and the Park Central in New York. Another blow at the workingman and his glass of beer!

The White House has removed all its wine glasses and placed them in storage. This officially confirms the passage of the Volstead act.

This is the time of year when the man who squawks at home it asked to devote ten minutes to hanging a picture puts in six to ten hours a day working on his motorboat and calling it a pleasure.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Drys of the North Wondering Where They Will Go if Republican Party Turns Wet.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A gentleman remarks in the press that if President Hoover is not available in 1932, Mr. Morrow is unbeaten as a presidential candidate. I do not believe it. Why this wet stampede in a portion of the metropolitan press against President Hoover and prohibition? Is it not that groups of powerful Republicans, banking groups and others have decided that it is life and death to them to drive the Republican party wet? Is not this the only way that they see themselves able to prevent Democratic rule in the North? They tell us New York has not had a Republican governor for years, but with both parties wet New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts will be saved from Democratic rule.

In short, are we not in a movement to steal the wet thunder of Tammany, to make Democrats perfectly at home in the Republican party? The platform agreed upon is, apparently, repeal the eighteenth amendment and give the liquor problem back to the States, each to make its own plans. The New Jersey platform and the patron saint of this platform, Mr. Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, both add, "But, of course, the saloon must not come back." The Houston Post-Dispatch, of Texas, says that the remark is inconsequential as, of course, in the populous States as, of course, in the populous States ever name called.

Is it not, therefore, fair to say that a saloon party is forming? Now the question arises, with the nineteenth amendment in the Constitution, can a saloon party succeed? Am I not right in saying that the result will be that the Republican party will be entirely smashed and that a third party will be formed? I should like the wet metropolitan press to tell me where they expect the 500,000 drys of Massachusetts to go, as well as the dry of New York or Pennsylvania? What is to become of the idealism of President Hoover and former President Taft who said, "The only solution is pressure in favor of enforcement." Is this idealism to be gathered into Southern Democracy? It has got to go somewhere. In my State of Massachusetts not only are the drys nearer the Southern Democrats today than they have ever been, but the cream of the new groups is ready to enter a party that stands against the return of the saloon and for building up enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. In short, is it not a fair guess that to the Republican party the Morrow program is death, not life? E. H. TILTON

Washington Taxes Should Not Be Judged by Tax Rate in Other Cities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A point raised in House and Senate during consideration of the District appropriation bill seems to have escaped the notice of the vigilant Washington press.

I refer to the statements that Washington taxpayers do not pay as much in taxes as those in comparable cities. We also have the distinct threat by Senator Howell to introduce a bill to tax the people of the Capital City to the limit, with the statement that $9,000,000 Federal contribution would be more than sufficient or no Federal contribution would be necessary.

It certainly can not have escaped the notice of our "common council" that Washington is different from other cities. It has not a costly legislative body, and therefore saves in salaries and costly expenditures made by them. Washington has rarely received the sums it should have to keep up necessary activities—schools, paving, lihting, sanitation, police and fire protection and the rest. Washington for years has been on a cash-and-carry basis, so does not have to divert any of its funds to top-heavy interest charges.

Why is the District sought to be punished by heavy taxes to bring it up to the level of cities uneconomically administered or that live beyond their proper requirements? Why consider at all whether a city a hundred or a thousand miles away has no taxes, or less taxes, or decidedly more taxes than the District? What has that got to do with the District appropriation bill?

The things to be considered are what are proper District requirements, what sums should be appropriated and what sums should be assessed against the District residents? That last can be ascertained, the proper proportion written into the law, and then honestly adhered to—as thus far it has not been.

Fireworks Accidents May Be Deadly—Parents Should Be on Guard at This Time.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The inclosed clipping from your today's issue, relating to the death by tetanus of a Mount Rainier lad, prompts me to urge that you use your news and editorial columns to impress upon the parents of the community their share of the responsibility for such accidents in the home. This is an especially fitting time to warn of the danger of "bootleg" fireworks and the hazard of injuries therefrom.

BANK TAX PROBLEM BEFORE GOVERNORS

Conference Hears Sharply Opposing Views From Two Speakers.

POLLARD MAKES TALK

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 1 (A.P.).—Sharply opposing views on bank taxation were presented to the National Governors' Conference today by spokesmen for the banks and the State taxing bodies.

Appearing for the banks was Thornton Cooke, of Kansas City, chairman of the taxation committee of the American Bankers Association, and arguing the other side of the question was George H. Sullivan, State senator from Minnesota and chairman of the Association States on Bank Taxation. Gov. Theodore E. Christianson of Minnesota, voiced a warning against an "insidious trend toward centralization" in government and "the practice of offering Federal subsidies as a spur to State action."

Says Banks Are Overassessed.

Declaring "the banks do not seek a preferred position with respect to taxation," Mr. Cooke urged broadening of the basis of taxation and distributing the burden as a means of meeting the increased revenue demanded by enlarged governmental responsibilities.

Banks have been overassessed, he said, as compared with other forms of property, and he cited figures which he said showed 17.5 per cent of the net incomes of banks have been taken for taxes, against an average of 10.41 per cent of the net incomes of other corporations.

Low Rates on Assets.

Mr. Sullivan's remedy was to place a low rate of tax on the assets of a bank, and not simply on the securities it holds. He pointed out the deposits in a bank may be ten times its net capital, and that these may be loaned at a profit.

Both speakers indorsed a pending amendment to the Federal bank tax law which would permit the taxation of the banks at a low rate, not limited to that levied on other intangible property, so long as the relation of their taxes to their net income is not greater than in other lines of business.

Problems of their respective States were presented at a Rotary Club luncheon by Govs. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, William T. Gardiner of Maine, Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois, Arthur J. Weaver of Nebraska and J. E. Erickson of Montana.

Attorney General's Aid Resigns; Joins Law Firm

Paul A. Chase, special Assistant Attorney General, who since 1925 has been liaison officer between the Attorney General and heads of the different divisions of the Department of Justice, has resigned, and will return to Ludlow, Vt., to become a partner in the firm of Stickney & Sargent, now to be Stickney, Sargent & Chase.

Mr. Chase served with the United States overseas forces in 1918 and on his return from France was admitted to the bar. He resigned from the office of State commissioner of taxes of Vermont to enter the Department of Justice.

Bank in Pennsylvania Closed by State Edict

Harrisburg, Pa., July 1 (A.P.).—Closing of the Title & Trust Co. of Western Pennsylvania at Connellsville was anounced today by the State department of banking.

State Secretary of Banking Cameron said the bank was taken over by the department at 3 o'clock this afternoon after so much "frozen" assets were discovered that the financial structure of the institution was endangered. The department will attempt to interest new capital in the bank in the hope of reopening it and protecting the depositors. The department's action was attributed to the severe slump which has struck the western Pennsylvania bituminous regions.

Title of Queen Spurned By Helen of Roumania

Vienna, July 1 (A.P.).—An agency telegram from Bucharest today said that Queen Helen had requested her ladies in waiting and other attendants never to use the word queen when addressing her, but simply to say princess.

The story was accepted here as indication that reconciliation with King Carol was still remote.

RHINE SEPARATISTS BEATEN BY RIOTERS

the republicans got out of hand and started the trouble that gave the Hessian guards, local authorities and the fire brigade a busy hour.

Knobloch, at one time a member of the separatist tribunal, was found in his home. When the intruders burst in he held them at bay for an instant with revolver until he was knocked down and dispossessed of his weapon. The mob then went through his house like a cyclone, hurling everything, even a piano, through the windows into the street.

Setting the house afire they marched away only to smash the store and home of another shopkeeper. The police attempted to disperse the mob laying on their blackjacks and swords. They made no progress against the angry Germans.

It was a fire brigade, marshaling every available line of hose for which a fire plug could be found, that eventually put the disturbers to rout and restored a measure of quiet.

Celebration of evacuation day continued throughout the Rhineland and from many parts of Germany came press dispatches of celebrations by children and adults, with the ringing of bells and special honors for the late Dr. Stresemann, whose political influence aided in liberation of the Rhine territory.

French General Jeered.

Paris, July 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—All was not so quiet and peaceful as official reports stated when the last French troops left Mainz and Wiesbaden yesterday, according to the Nationalist organ, La Liberte, which describes the departure under the headline of "Violent Incidents."

Liberte says that, owing to hostile manifestations, booing and whistling of the crowd at the Mainz station, Gen. Guillaumat, commander in chief of the Rhine army, had drawn the blinds of the compartment occupied by himself and his staff. The newspaper also quotes a German newspaper's story to the effect that the French troops covered the distance from their barracks to the railroad station in two minutes, whereas ten minutes was usually taken for the same march.

The Lokal Anzeiger calls it "precipitated departure."

Approved the conference report on the second deficiency bill.

Judiciary committee ordered reported the House bill modifying the Jones prohibition law to provide slighter penalties for first violators of the dry act.

Agriculture committee approved a resolution authorizing a Federal investigation of declines in cotton prices in 1916, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, and the first half of 1930.

Judiciary committee approved the nomination of John P. Nields to be Federal judge for Delaware.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, introduced a resolution authorizing President Hoover to claim for the United States lands in the Antarctic discovered by Americans, including Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Passed and sent to the White House the House bill to authorize acquisition of land in Alameda and Marion Counties, California, for establishment of an Army air depot.

Adopted a proposal to direct the Tariff Commission to investigate the cost of production here and abroad of laces, lace fabrics and all lace articles.

Appropriations committee amended the House resolution continuing the current appropriation for the District by striking out all but the enacting clause and tacking on its own version of the 1931 appropriation bill.

Confirmed the nomination of Joseph W. Cox to be Associate Justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 5 p. m. to noon today.

By a vote of 181 to 56, passed and sent to the Senate the Hudson bill to establish a unified border patrol.

Rules committee adopted a resolution to authorize $250,000 for the expenses during the next fiscal year of the Hoover law enforcement commission.

Passed two bills to cope with unemployment by planning for public works in periods of business depression and providing an unemployment index to show the need for accelerated construction.

Completed congressional action on the Williamson bill for consolidation of agencies handling veterans' affairs.

Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation by the judiciary committee of charges made by Maurice Campbell, retiring New York prohibition administrator.

Naval committee reported out a bill designed for the protection of Reserve No. 1, at Elk Hills, Calif.

Adopted and completed congressional action on the Blease resolution to make July 5 a legal holiday in the District of Columbia.

SENATE RAISES PENSION RATES AND PASSES VETERAN MEASURE

Connally, Copeland, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hayden, Kendrick, McKellar, Overman, Ransdell, Sheppard, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Tremmell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh of Montana, Walsh of Massachusetts—27.

Republicans—Blaine, Cutting, Dale, Hatfield, Howell, Johnson, La Follette, Norris, Robinson of Indiana—9.

Republicans against—Allen, Bingham, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Deneen, Fess, Glenn, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, McCulloch, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Patterson, Phipps, Pine, Reed, Robsion, Steiwer, Shortridge, Sullivan, Vandenberg, Walcott—26.

Another provision that will have some trouble in conference is the amendment of Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, adopted, 36 to 27, giving a pension to those veterans disabled as a result of their "own misconduct" during the war, or veterans disabled by social diseases. This was one of the reasons President Hoover vetoed the recent Spanish War veterans legislation. The provision for the World War veterans differs, however, in that the disability must be traced to the war.

Say Government Responsible.

Senators Walsh and Copeland and other proponents of the amendment contended that the Government was responsible for all of the boys it took from their homes and sent to France.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, argued that these men had really failed their Government, inasmuch as they made themselves unavailable for duty.

An important amendment that went into the bill without any discussion was the one by Senator Steiwer, which removes the Veterans' Bureau from under Comptroller McCarl's critical eye. The American Legion has been trying to bring this about for some time. Under existing conditions the Comptroller or some one from his office frequently overrules claims that have been granted by the medical board. This is said, in fact, to be responsible for much of the complaint against the bureau red tape.

Director Hines would like to construe the law more liberally in dealing with the veterans, it is said, but Mr. McCarl's supervision makes it a hard-boiled affair.

Minimum Disability Reduced.

The measure passed yesterday does not deal with veterans in hospitals drawing compensation for disabilities directly attributable to their war service except for some comparatively minor features having no relation to the new pension system. The pension system is set up for those veterans who have become disabled since the war and who may become disabled in the future, and whose disability has nothing to do with war service. The minimum disability is reduced in the Senate bill to 10 per cent. It is 25 per cent in the House bill.

One reason the House can beat the Senate on the pension scale controversy is that the press of the country is fairly generally demanding that the bill be laid aside until the pension system can be given more study. It was hastily put together by the Republicans in an effort to get out of the hole which the House leaders got into on the original veterans' legislation.

Vice President Curtis tried to prevent a record vote on the final passage of the bill in the Senate and it looked as though he would get away with it until Senator George, of Georgia, forced a roll call after others had given up their efforts to do so.

HOOVER CONSIDERING MEXICO CITY TOUR

repudiate those reports. He stood before the assembled reporters on Tuesday afternoon and denied any such purpose. He said he would commune exclusively with fish because he never had encountered a trout insistent to talk politics.

Now, after a week of popular, political and publicized approval of his assertion of leadership in Washington, irrespective of the mertis of the controversy, the President is represented as taking a new slant on this political publicity racket.

It is not possible to obtain confirmation of these reports which might seem to confirm the rumors that a new Mr. Hoover is emerging to capitalize the political gains so widely attributed to him within a fortnight.

HARD-COAL SESSION REPORTS PROGRESS

Equalization of Work Among Various Properties One Demand of Miners.

OTHER ISSUES WEIGHTY

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Progress was reported today by representatives of anthracite operators and miners who are conferring on a new wage and working agreement to take place of the four-year-old contract expiring August 31.

"Opinions naturally differ as to plans that will bring about stability," a formal statement said, but "the discussion has been entirely amicable and some progress has been made in disposing of the various matters before the conference."

Today's discussions were a continuation of those of yesterday on the condition of the industry generally, although the statement, beyond which the individual conferees would not go, did not say so specifically. It was assumed that this discussion included the miners' demand for equalization of working time among various properties of the same company. Aside from wages, that is the leading economic question before the conference.

The demand that work in slack times be apportioned equally throughout the anthracite district, was included in the miners' "magna charta" as drawn up by the tridistrict convention at Hazleton, Pa., in May and presented to the conference yesterday.

Other demands of the miners include recognition of seniority; abolishment of the contract system; supplanting of miners by bosses and monthly men during slack times and "check off" or collection of union dues by the companies.

John L. Lewis, international president of the miners' union and named as the head of the miners' committee of six, still was absent from the conferences today. He has been detained in Springfield, Ill., as the result of an injury to his wife. W. W. Inglis, of Scranton, Pa., heads the operators' committee of six.

SHELL OIL PICTURED AS JOLTING SOCONY

Standard's Price Making in New England Is on Wane, Merger Witness Says.

STILL FIRST IN OUTLETS

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Testimony concerning competition between the Standard Oil Co. of New York and the powerful British-controlled Dutch Shell Co. for the trade of New England was given today at a hearing of the Government's suit to restrain a proposed merger of Standard and Vacuum Oil.

William J. O'Sullivan, treasurer of the Automobile Oil Co., which operates in the Boston area, testified that up to last February, Socony, as Standard of New York is known, virtually dictated the prices paid in New England.

Mr. O'Sullivan had been asked the question put to other oil executives at the hearing:

"What company, if any, in your opinion dominates in your territory?"

"So far as number of outlets is concerned, I would say Socony," Mr. O'Sullivan said. "So far as making prices is concerned I would say that up to last February Socony was in control. Last February Socony declared a systematic price system, but it had to pull in its horns ten days after. Shell did not adopt the Socony policy so Socony had to adopt the Shell policy."

Various Standard Oil groups and the Dutch Shell have been in competition for foreign markets and sources for some time, especially in the race for the large fields of the Near East and the local phases of the fight are said to have dictated the billion-dollar merger of the two American companies.

Another witness at today's hearing was Albert C. Woodman, of Marion, Pa., president of the Richfield Oil Co., of New York, retailing subsidiary of the California company.

The Government contends that the proposed merger of Standard and Vacuum would be in restraint of trade and in violation of the Supreme Court decree of 1911 dissolving the old Standard Oil Co.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

French Fair Will Be Given This Autumn

Attention Turns to Fall and Foire Aux Croutes of Arts Club.

By JEAN ELIOT.

SOCIETY, with its engagement book a blank for the next few weeks, is already turning its attention to the activities of next autumn. Scores of "debutante mothers" have selected tentatively the dates for their daughters' coming out parties, the organizers of the big balls which are a feature of each season are scanning the calendar for available dates, and members of the Arts Club have worked out in considerable detail plans for an early autumn fete, a Foire Aux Croutes, which is to embody many of the most delightful features of the famous fairs of old Paris.

Those who have lived in Paris, especially those who treasure memories of student days in the French capital, have delightful recollections of the Foire Aux Croutes on Montmartre, the iron fairs, the ham market, the bird market, the flower market, the gingerbread fair and a dozen others, each distinctive and all colorful, which add so much of interest to the streets of Paris. And the Arts Club's Foire Aux Croutes, to be held on October 16, 17 and 18, is designed to combine the best features of all.

The Arts Club garden, with its skyline transformed a bit to suggest the chimney pots of Paris, is to be the scene of this "Fair of Crusts," and already the club has sent out gay announcements to its members and their friends requesting the donations of "croutes" to stock the booths. Artists are requested to contribute oils, water colors, sketches, drawings, etchings, caricatures, small models and to the crafters goes a plea for small objects in metal, wood, glass, pottery. Members all are asked for "white elephants," gleanings from dusty shelves and garretts, stock for the iron fair and the pirates' den—anything they are tired of seeing around the house!

Potboilers will, of course, be the chief stock in trade, this being an artists' fair, but anything and everything will be acceptable and should be sent to the club by September 20. Works of art will be displayed on walls, on benches, on easels, hung on clothes lines, as they are at the Montmartre Foire Aux Croutes, all in amazing and amusing fashion. And more serious work will be sold on commission.

The work of Mr. Charles Dunn, the announcements of the fair are engaging in the extreme, and the artist has caught the gay spirit of the proposed fete. White elephants, blue-eyed rats, bits of cheese, tiny portraits, candlesticks and all manner of delightfully unrelated objects decorate the folders.

Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston first conceived the idea of transplanting to Washington some of the delights of the Paris foires, "sold" the project to the club with her fascinating photographs of some of the best known of these truly Parisian institutions, and has been made chairman of the special committee in charge. The Arts Club Follies, presented in the auditorium of the club, will be one of the gayest features of the entertainment. There will be performances both afternoon and evening.

The Chinese Minister and Mme. Wu left yesterday for a motor trip through New England of about two weeks, planning to attend a few of the celebrations incident to the 300th anniversary of the founding of the New Egland States.

Couzens and Chewnings Give Tea for Miss Herndon.

Senator and Mrs. James M. Couzens and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, jr., were joint hosts at tea yesterday afternoon, entertaining at Senator and Mrs. Couzens' home for Miss Carol Gordon Herndon, of Suffolk, Va., who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chewning. This was to have been a garden fete, but because of inclement weather it was held indoors. The guests were all young people, among them the debutantes of last season and next season. Mr. and Mrs. Chewning also have Miss Herndon's brother, Mr. Maurice Herndon, as ington who will join the vacationists in the North and in Canada are Representative and Mrs. E. Hart Fenn, who are planning motor trips through Maine, the Province of Quebec and other points in Canada during the late summer. At the close of Congress, Representative and Mrs. Fenn will return to their home in Wethersfield, Conn., Representative Fenn leaving very soon afterward for his camp on the Grand River in Newfoundland, where rivers are deep and fishing excellent.

Upon his return from the period of recreation in the north woods Mr. their guest. The visitors are Mr. Chewning's cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. Chewning and their guests will go to Culpeper, Va., on Friday to attend the Culpeper Horse Show, in which Mrs. Chewning's horses are entered, and to stay over the week-end.

Among the official group in Wash- Fenn will join Mrs. Feen in Connecticut, whence they will start on the motor tour through New England and further north. They have given up their apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue and are temporarily at 2400 Sixteenth street. Yesterday Mrs. Fenn entertained at luncheon at the Carlton, Mrs. Thomas M. Knox, wife of Lieut. Col. Knox.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall has returned from Oswego, N. Y., where he was a guest at luncheon on Monday of the Oswego Chamber of Commerce. Gen. Summerall made a brief inspection tour in New York State during his absence.

Leaving their children in camp, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. H. Colquitt will sail for Europe on July 25. They will tour England, Scotland and France by motor, returning to Washington in mid-September.

Mr. and Mrs. Colquitt have had as guests for a few days the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, who came to Washington to attend the wedding of Miss Katherine Sutherland and Mr. Paul Mayo. They returned yesterday to New York. Before her marriage Mrs. Collins was Miss Delphine Heyl.

Miss Helen Greene, who will be a member of Mrs. Hoover's secretariat for the summer months and who arrived in Washington recently, left town yesterday to report to Mrs. Hoover at the President's camp on the Rapidan. Miss Greene will relieve the present White House secretaries, Miss Ruth Fesler and Miss Mildred Hall, when they go on their vacations. It is not expected that a successor to Miss Mary Randolph, social secretary at the White House for the last six years, will be appointed until fall.

Mrs. N. S. Reed Is Married to Admiral Clark

Couple to Live in Capital Upon Return From Motor Trip.

Mrs. Nina Swalm Reed was married yesterday to Rear Admiral Frank Hodges Clark. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Maurice S. White, took place in the apartment of the bride's mother at the Cordova. The bridal couple stood before a massed background of palms and ferns in the drawing room, the bride attended by her mother, Mrs. Swalm, and the bridegroom having as his best man his brother, Mr. Charles Pickney Clark, of Washington.

Preceding the nuptials Mrs. Philip Lauman, wife of Capt. Lauman, U. S. N., sang "Homing." The wedding was attended by relatives of the bride and bridegroom and a few intimate friends and following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served.

The bride was dressed in black lace over flesh-colored chiffon which was made with full skirt and with a cape of artistic cut falling from the shoulders. She wore no hat. Rear Admiral Clark was in his white naval uniform.

Palms and cut flowers decorated the rooms of the apartment and a large center piece adorned the table in the dining room, from which the breakfast was served. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pickney Clark, the former a brother of Admiral Clark; their sister, Mrs. William Bacon, of West Newton, Mass., and York Harbor, Me., and a cousin, Miss Elizabeth Clark, of Newport.

Admiral and Mrs. Clark left at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by motor for a fortnight's trip. They will live in Washington, the admiral being a member of the general board of the Navy. Mrs. Clark will continue her work as first national vice president of the League of American Pen Women, an office to which she was elected last April for a term of two years.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

The jacket suit leads in smartness for all-day occasions.

The model sketched shows the favorite box-plaited skirt treatment that Paris thinks so well of.

The sleeveless dress merely pretends a hip yoke through the long-waisted bodice. The belt is adjustable. It may be worn at higher waistline. An inset vestee at front furnishes splendid idea for contrasting color.

The straight box jacket is rolled into revers with the collar.

Style No. 8266 combines plain and printed linen.

Pique prints, flat washable crepe silk, shantung, men's shirting in cotton or silk, printed voile, pastel wool jersey and novelty printed jersey are excellent ideas for summer sports.

It comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

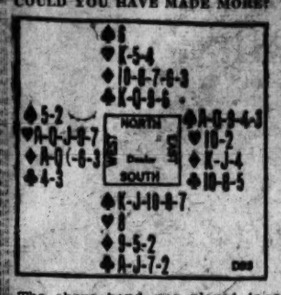
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



The above hand was played in a game of Contract Bridge. South (dealer) bid one Spade, West bid three Hearts, North passed and East bid four Hearts. East was justified in jumping West's Heart bid with less than normal Heart support because West had bid three. If West's Heart bid had been two, either initially or over a bid by South, East should not have jumped with less than normal support.

Had the hand been played in Auction Bridge, the bidding would have been: South one Spade, West two Hearts, which declaration would have obtained the contract.

When the hand was played with West the Declarer, East the dummy and North the leader, the play started with the singleton Six of Spades, which obviously was the sound lead for North to make as his partner had bid that suit. The Spade bid having been made by South, the Declarer (when the dummy was exposed) could place the remaining adverse Spades in the South hand and knew that North had led a singleton; so, of course, dummy played the Ace. Being anxious to exhaust the adverse trumps, Declarer then led a Heart from dummy toward closed hand's strong trumps. The finesse was taken and North won with the King. North next led a Club and the adversaries won all told one Heart, two Clubs and one Spade, saving game.

Could you have made more?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When dummy won trick 1 with the Ace of Spades, Declarer should have seen that if the Heart finesse happened to go wrong, game would be lost as the adversaries then would be practically sure to take in two Clubs and one Spade. An immediate discard from closed hand was essential; so to trick 2 a small Diamond should have been led from East and won with West's Ace; after that the Queen of Diamonds should have been returned and won with dummy's King. The lead of the Jack of Diamonds to trick 4 would give closed hand a discard—immaterial whether a Spade or Club. This must insure game as it will limit the adversaries to three tricks.

Am Interprets the MODE

Paris, July 1.

HOW many women have beautiful arms, necks and shoulders? Well, so few of us have that I think we had better, one and all, drop this column and go to the mirror and be ruthless!

How do you look in evening clothes? Don't fool yourself about it, because you can't fool anybody else. Your mirror will tell you . . . side, front and back, and don't think for a moment that the mirror is any harsher than the million women who see the same picture.

And don't despair either because there is so very much you can do about it. One of the most flattering styles ever given us is that of the little evening capes, coats and boleros. They weren't originated, I'm sure, to be flattering to unbeatiful arms and necks. I am rather inclined to think that they were invented to keep off those chill breezes and drafts that have a way of reminding us of how comfortable a man's evening things are.

Another use that these little jacket things have is to render a formal evening gown very much less formal. There are always times and places where bare arms and decolletages look too very much like they shouldn't if you see what I mean.

And, I think, if we really heed what the mirror says about this question, most of us will install a couple of little evening jackets, toute suite!

* * * * *

Marynowitsky says it right out loud in cork and patent leather, when it comes to beach sandals these days. So front and side, the sandal illustrated, shows you what I mean.

* * * *

For Him.

The man's town coat is oftenest light beige in color. And his shirt matches the suit, has a short starched front and rounded cuffs. The collar must be stiff, very low in front and very open with rather long points—except when the summer sun is too hot and he just must wear his soft shirt and collar without pleats.

* * * *

We can't bear to think of you spoiling your figure with just any old brassiere! Not when feminine curves are more modish than ever—and you are told how to make the most de-e-e-e-vine model in this week's illustrated leaflet waiting at the Dare Department of The Washington Post for your request and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The leaflet tells you how to make a brassiere and garter combination for evening wear, another one crocheted for daytime, and one of tulle or ribbon. You will find your favorite model in one of these!

* * * *

I honestly think that Molyneux could make something chic out of a dishrag, were he hard pressed for it. Not that the printed material that made the charming pajama suit illustrated could ever become a dishrag, but when I saw this model it just struck me forcibly that Molyneux is one of the few couturiers who scarcely ever depended upon materials for chic, but made his tissues subservient to his designs.

As a matter of fact, you can wear this gayly printed black, white and red pajama to the beach if you want to, I'm going to wear mine in the house.

* * * *

We hope you're looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's in The Washington Post every Sunday.

Au Revoir!

MACARONI WITH CORN.

3 tablespoons butter.
2 medium-sized onions.
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.
1 cup white sauce.
1½ cups canned corn.
½ cup corn liquor.
4 slices bacon, broiled.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
Buttered bread crumbs.

Parboil the macaroni for 9 minutes in 2 quarts rapidly boiling water to which has been added ½ tablespoon salt. Drain. Heat the butter, add the chopped onions and the green pepper and cook until tender. Pour this mixture into double boiler containing the white sauce. Cook for 10 minutes. Into a well-greased baking dish put alternate layers of macaroni and corn, with the macaroni on the top layer. Pour the sauce over the top. Add a layer of bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Garnish with the bacon.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT.

THE CHARM OF COLOR IN A BORDER.

NO matter what the existing differences of opinion may be as to the merits and beauty of the formal architectural style of gardening, there is in a hardy perennial border something that appeals to our heart as well as to the esthetic side of our nature.

Perhaps it is the constant change and variety of succession which such a border affords; but certain it is that all lovers of flowers want the riot of color which is sure to abound in every plot of perennials, be it large or small. With bright-hued masses of rich color in late spring, when the golden-yellow flowers of adonis amuresnis greet us, to autumn (and in mild seasons often into December) when the hardy chrysanthemums and tritomas defy an ordinary frost and provide us with the wealth of color that is so welcome during the dull, short days of the year—such a border is a constant source of delight.

What can do more to nurture the innate love of the beautiful in nature than to watch these perennials as the season progresses? As each flower blooms and fades another new beauty develops to take its place. Later, when the fresh green of new foliage covers the bare branches, still later when the sun seemingly parches the dry land, and then when the leaves are falling, telling us once more of nature's rest, each day, each week, each month gives its quota to the blaze of beauty which the hardy perennial border affords.

As I have so frequently suggested, during the early spring and summer when the specimens are growing rapidly, constant attention must be given to them. It is only by strict adherence to the smallest detail that a full measure of success can be attained. The work of staking and tying should not be left until the shoots are topheavy and begin to droop about, or have become broken by high winds and heavy rains. Remember that damage done by storms to neglected plants cripples them for the entire season.

Of course, to have a colorful border, we must have a blooming border. Plants will not produce flowers without moisture. So, if the weather is dry and hot, you must give the plot a thorough soaking with clear water and later, to conserve the moisture, apply a mulch of peat moss or grass clippings. Such attentions will insure a perpetual plant development and a continual showing of color until frost.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., noon to 1:30 p. m. and 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Astrological indications on this date are too vague to make any definite forecasts. It would be well to feel your way carefully and to be guided by intuitions. Tomorrow's intoxicating influence may be felt the last part of the day, and the evening hours may be rife with fun and pleasure.

The child born on this July 2 will have well developed artistic and imaginative faculties. It will have a longing for sympathy from others, and will be very sensitive to criticism. It will be very easily influenced.

Your intellectual standing may not be high enough to give you prestige, but your character will among the right sort of people. You are a pleasant, quiet sort, extremely unassuming. If you had a castle of 300 rooms you would call it your little house in the country. You let the world discover and value you and your possessions.

Until you find your depth you always say little, and you never talk too freely about other people. Your tongue does not let you or others in for trouble. You have very correct and exacting tastes. You are both delightful and disdainful—a dangerous combination for others self esteem. People never know whether you are laughing at or with them.

It is a matter of indifference to you whether you have logic on your side or not. As a matter of fact you distrust an argument that is too conclusive. You do not work too hard, you think it ostentatious to be too busy, and you hate "fussy" people. You wait until you are requested to do things, you never rush into the breach. Your advance in life will be slow and deliberate, you do not believe in hustling Destiny. You are ambitious, but you conceal your ambitions. These, too, have to be discovered. You are quixotically honorable, and sarcastically witty. You are never disloyal.

Successful people born July 2:

Nathaniel Holmes, jurist and professor at Harvard.

Francis A. Walker, statistician and economist.

Henry A. Beers, author.

Robert Ridgway, naturalist.

R. H. Stoddard, poet.

WHOZIT?

("WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. They were heroes of Greek mythology, reputed to have been twin brothers and inseparable.

2. According to one legend they were the sons of Jupiter.

3. One was a famous horseman and the other a noted pugilist.

4. According to the Greek poets, one was mortal and the other immortal and when the former was killed the latter offered to share his fate, the offer leading to a compromise whereby the two shared immortality by exchanging places each day and dying and reviving alternately.

LAMB STEW.

(Department of Agriculture.)

2 pounds lean raw lamb.
2 tablespoons butter.
½ cup sliced onion.
3 cups diced rutabaga turnip.
1 green pepper, chopped.
1 quart water.
Flour.
Salt and pepper.

Breast, shoulder, neck, flank and trimmings are all good for lamb stew. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, cut into small pieces and roll in flour. Melt the butter in a skillet, add the onion, cook until it turns yellow and add the meat.

When the meat and onion have browned delicately, transfer them to a kettle, and add the water, after first pouring it into the skillet so as to get full benefit of the browned fat. Cover and simmer for one hour. Then add the turnip, green pepper, and seasonings, and cook 20 minutes longer. If the stew is not thick enough, add 1 tablespoon of flour mixed with 2 tablespoons of cold water, and cook for several minutes longer, stirring constantly. Serve piping hot with browned potatoes and garnished with parsley.

Be careful in summer
Your sanitary protection must deodorize.....to be safe

Don't risk your daintiness in warmer weather . . . use Kotex, the sanitary pad that deodorizes completely.

FEMININE daintiness is less secure in warm weather. Then is when you really appreciate the way Kotex deodorizes.

All through every Kotex pad, a gentle deodorant is sprinkled. This deodorant is pure and safe . . . indeed, it is used in many soothing lotions. Yet it is marvelously efficient. It gives you freedom from one of your most trying worries . . . the fear of a most unforgivable offense.

More comfortable, too

Really, no other pad can be compared with Kotex in this matter of summer comfort. Kotex is so light and cool, so dainty, even after hours of wear.

And Kotex is resilient. It does not lose its delicacy. It can absorb five times more than cotton . . . without any chafing or irritation.

Kotex fits securely, and is rounded and tapered to avoid conspicuous outlines under delicate frocks.

Many of these unique comforts are due to the unusual material of which Kotex is made. This is Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding . . . the material which has replaced fine surgical cotton in 85% of America's leading hospitals.

You know, of course, that you use Kotex just once, then dispose of it. It frees you forever from unpleasant laundering. Ask for Kotex by name, at any drug, dry goods or department store. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Disposable, instantly, completely.

4—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

Ask to see the KOTEX BELT and KOTEX SANITARY APRON at any drug, dry goods or department store.

One-Way Edict Issued For Part of T Street

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby yesterday had another one-way street added to the growing number of such streets in the District. T street, from Rhode Island avenue to Second street northwest, was made one way for west-bound traffic only.

This was made a temporary change on recommendation of Traffic Director William H. Harland and can later be changed in the light of experience. Dr. R. T. J. Barber, who lives on Rhode Island avenue, near First street northwest, complained about conditions. Three traffic lights will be discontinued temporarily. The lights were installed to regulate traffic crossing Rhode Island avenue over T street.

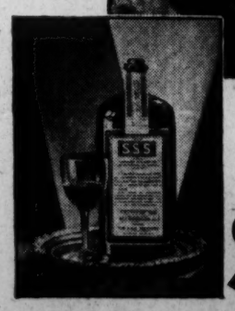
How I coaxed him to eat

"ONCE I was worried. Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic; that it had been successful for over 100 years; that it was made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and was beneficial to the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

It is a known fact that when a man's system gets "run-down," he hasn't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play. It is dangerous to let the red-blood-count remain below normal.

It is natural to expect, when you get your blood cells up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, and those skin troubles to disappear. You should get hungry again, sleep soundly, and firm flesh take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong and your nerves become steady.



You owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is daily helping people to regain their strength. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It promotes a keen appetite, gives vitality to the body, clears the skin and wards off disease. All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker—Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Robert C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., and the father of Dick Tolbert, a young man, who is an official of Great Eastern, and who has told Janet he loves her and intends to marry her, even though he is at present engaged to Helen Morgan, a society girl, who has recently sailed for Europe with her mother, but who has cabled that she is returning immediately.

Hugh Temple, an official and pilot for Great Eastern and the man who hired Janet. He is strangely missing, along with a huge shipment of money which he was transporting by plane to a New York bank.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern, and a friend of Janet's. He has lent Janet a book on aviation which had been entrusted to him by Belter, the office manager, for delivery to a Mr. Crell, a wealthy boarder at the Frenda home, near the airport.

Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, who was next on Janet, and who offered her an engagement ring, which Janet declined.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern, and Henry's boss.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Janet receives an anonymous note, asking her to be at a certain spot at 11 o'clock, Wednesday night, and warning her not to tell anybody she is coming. She meets Henry, who says Belter has been greatly agitated, and furiously demanded the immediate return of the book on aviation. When Janet reaches home the book has mysteriously disappeared, but its absence is explained by Janet's father, who had borrowed it. Janet gets the book, and in glancing through it comes upon a series of strange symbols that were scribbled on the last page. Janet suspects that Belter has written them, and feels he is in some way connected with the theft of the money. She is interrupted by the arrival of Dick, who tells her something has happened at the airport. Together they set out for the flying field. When they arrive they find Belter slumped in his chair, a red pool on the white blotter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Dick took a handkerchief from his pocket and vigorously scrubbed his hands, his troubled eyes roaming over the quiet room. After a time he threw the handkerchief into one corner and turned to Janet. "I'd rather you'd go out, darling," he told her in a low voice. "There's nothing we can do here now."

Janet, leaning heavily against the door frame, opened her eyes. "Did he—did he kill himself, Dick?"

He shook his head. "There's no gun around. . . . It is obviously murder." He made a motion as if to put his arms about her, then drew back slightly.

A voice behind Janet said: "Pardon me if I'm intruding. I didn't realize you were here, Mr. Tolbert."

Dick and Janet stared in silence. Just within the door leading to the main office, hat and coat on, briefcase under her arm, stood Miss Sears.

"I saw the light in Mr. Tolbert's office when I drove up," she said, smiling; "but I thought Mr. Belter was still in there." She put the briefcase on her desk, removed her hat and coat and hung them on the rack. Then it seemed to dawn upon her that the silence of the two people before her was more than the embarrassed quiet of interrupted lovers. She turned to Dick. "Is something wrong, Mr. Tolbert?"

Dick said quietly: "It's Belter, Miss Sears."

"Mr. Belter? . . . Is he ill?"

"He's been murdered."

Janet saw the color leave the young woman's face, saw the pupils of her gray eyes dilate. But nothing more. Miss Sears was too much the strong, capable young business woman to grow hysterical over a mere murder. Even if she had accepted Dick's word for it, which she plainly had not.

"But you ain't serious, Mr. Tolbert. Barely two hours ago Mr. Belter was sitting at your father's desk waiting for a long distance call, and very much alive. . . . If this is supposed to be a joke"—— she began hesitantly.

But Dick repeated grimly: "Belter's been murdered, Miss Sears. It is rather a shock, I know, but nonetheless true." He stepped back abruptly and closed the door to Tolbert's office. "Will you go in and tell Dodds what's happened, Janet. We'll go in my office and Miss Sears can put through a call to the police while I try to get Dad."

When Janet had gone out, Miss Sears said to Dick: "Do you mind if I look in, just a moment? It's rather difficult to believe, without seeing."

"Presently, if you like," Dick replied, "but there are one or two things we ought to be clear on before the police begin to fire questions at us." He followed her into his office and switched on the light.

Miss Sears said irrelevantly: "I knew I felt a draft." She pointed to a window open barely an inch at the bottom, then crossed the room and closed it. "I think I ought to tell you, Mr. Tolbert," she said to Dick, "that Mr. Belter's been behaving very strangely for several days. Why, I don't know; but between 6 and 6:30 tonight I heard him put through three different long-distance telephone calls. And the language he used. . . . He knew I was at my desk and within hearing, but he did not seem to care."

"You left the office at what time, Miss Sears?"

About 6:30. And Mr. Belter was waiting then for another call."

"Was he the only one in the office when you left?"

"Yes. That is, in your father's office."

"You mean by that," Dick asked, "that some one else was in the main office?"

"Why, yes. Henry Frenda was at his desk."

"Then after you left, Miss Sears, Belter and Frenda were alone in the building. Is that right?"

Miss Sears nodded. "But it isn't necessary to tell the police that, is it, Mr. Tolbert?"

"If it's the truth, why not?"

"Simply because it involves Henry," Miss Sears replied evenly; "and you know as well as I that Henry is not capable of murder. He's a stubborn young man and inclined to lose his temper occasionally, but—well, to be quite frank about it, he lacks courage. He's more a woman than a man when it comes to nerve."

Dick took up one of the three telephones on his desk and gave the operator a number. While he waited he said to Miss Sears: "Call the police, Miss Sears, and tell them a man has been shot; nothing more. We'll let them work up their own case." Then: "Hello, dad. . . . I'm sorry, but you'll have to come out to the field at once. . . . I can't discuss it over the phone, but it's very important that you get here as quickly as possible."

When Dick looked up, he saw Janet standing in the doorway. He was on the point of asking her in when he realized that some one was standing behind her. Without a word, he went to the door, motioned them into the outer office and followed.

"Henry just came in," Janet told him, "and I thought you might like to talk to him . . . alone."

Henry Frenda said nervously: "You don't mean to say somebody's bumped off Mr. Belter, do you, Mr. Tolbert?"

"Didn't Miss Decker tell you?" Dick asked.

"Yes, sir; but that's a lot to ask a fellow to swallow at one time. What would anybody want to bump off a decent sort like him for?"

Janet dropped into the chair before the switchboard and turned her face from them. A few hours before Henry hadn't thought Belter such a decent sort; why this sudden admiration?

"Was Mr. Belter in the office when you went out for the night?" Dick asked Henry.

"Yes, sir; he was at his desk."

"Are you sure, Frenda? Wasn't he in my father's office taking a long-distance telephone call?"

Henry shifted his weight from one foot to the other nervously. "No, sir. Mr. Belter was at his desk," he replied uncertainly. "We'd been having a little sociable conversation, and Mr. Belter said he had a good deal of work to do and thought he might just as well stay and get it over with. He was still at his desk when I went out."

"And during your little sociable conversation, Belter didn't say anything about having dinner in the city with me at seven o'clock?"

"No, sir; he didn't mention it. At least I don't remember hearing him say anything about it, Mr. Tolbert. He might have at that, but——I don't think he did." Henry was floundering helplessly.

Dick asked: "What time did you leave the office, Frenda?"

"As to that I can't say, sir. Not exactly, that is. I guess it must have been right around twenty minutes to seven; but I won't say for sure," he added quickly.

"Meaning," said Dick a little harshly, "that you wont commit yourself . . . All right, we'll pass that up for the present . . . Now——who was with Belter when you went out?"

"Nobody." Henry apparently meant to be positive on that point. "Miss Sears went out around half past six. The rest of the crowd had been gone since six o'clock."

Dick produced a cigarette and began a search of his pockets for a lighter. "How long does it take you to walk home from here, Frenda?" he asked casually.

Henry stirred uneasily. "About five minutes, I guess."

"And what time was it when you reached your house after leaving Belter?"

"I didn't notice," Henry replied.

"Do you think your mother might remember the approximate time when you walked into the house?" Dick persisted.

Henry's face went a deep red. "Say, Mr. Tolbert," he cried abruptly, "what's all the third degree for? I don't mind answering a lot of questions, but when you drag my mother in, that's going too far, unless you got something on me."

"I'm not dragging your mother in, Frenda," Dick told him quietly. "We've got a murder here and within half an hour the police will be in this room demanding to know the things I've been asking you. You don't seem to be sure of anything, particularly as to the time you left the office, and I thought perhaps your mother might be a closer observer."

"Well, you leave my mother out of it," Henry shot back, scowling. "I haven't been home since I left the office; so she can't very well know what time I got there."

Henry's confusion was evident. "But you just told me you didn't notice what time it was when you reached home. Now you say you didn't go home. . . . There's no sense to that, Frenda."

"Sense or no sense," Henry cried angrily, "I didn't go home, and it's nobody's business where I went!"

Dick dropped his cigarette and ground it under his foot. "Perhaps it's none of my business, Frenda," he said to the agitated young man before him; "but I've an idea you'll have to find a more satisfactory answer for the police."

It was Dick's idea that Janet should scape the first inquiry of the authorities. "They'll be all up in the air tonight, darling," he told her as they walked restlessly before the administration building; "and you might just as well miss the first assault. Tomorrow they'll have some idea what it's all about and I'll send for you if they want you."

Janet protested. "I'd rather stay, Dick. You've got to go through with it; so why shouldn't I? And what about Miss Sears and Henry? They'll have to stay."

"Certainly, but the police will insist on talking to them immediately since they were the last two who saw Belter alive . . . You do what I say now, Janet. You're upset and tomorrow you'll be more able to answer the millions of questions they'll ask you. . . . I'll get one of the boys from the hangars to take you in my car and ——" He turned toward the building behind them. I almost forgot something," he said quickly. "Wait here a minute."

When he came out of the office, Dick took something from his pocket, a small object wrapped in newspaper. "You may have changed your mind about the target practice," he told her, half smiling; "but in case you haven't, this is the weapon you wanted to borrow."

Janet drew back, frightened. "Oh, Dick, I——"

"There's nothing in it, sweetheart," he assured her quickly. "It hasn't been loaded since I bought it. Take it home and put it away. Some day when this rotten mess is over, I'll buy some cartridges and we'll take it out for a trial."

Janet at last took the weighty little package and shoved it into the inside pocket of her coat. "Dick!" she called after him as he started off toward the hangars; and when he came back and caught her hands affectionately: "I heard all you and Henry said inside there and—do you really think Henry might have——"

"I'm not thinking anything, Janet," Dick declared. "Frenda certainly has a lot to explain, but, like Miss Sears, I'm inclined to think he lacks the backbone to do a thing like that. . . . And then," he added, "there'd be no motive. My understanding is that Frenda and Belter got along well together. . . . But quit worrying, Heart. Everything will work itself out. We've just got to grin and bear it until it does."

"You don't think," Janet persisted, "that the men who have been jobbing your planes—who overpowered Hugh and—all but kidnaped me, could have had a hand in this?"

But Dick only put his fingers in his ears and hurried off to find some one to drive her to the city.

In a few minutes that he was away Janet's confused brain could not free itself of a sentence she had been saying over and over to herself since they had come out of the Administration Building: "If Belter ever takes a swing at me about that book, or anything else, I'll——"

Henry Frenda's exact words. . . . Had Belter, in a moment of anger, "taken a swing" at Henry? . . . And had Henry——. She shut her eyes tightly and tried to wipe the question from her mind.

Riding in to the city, Janet found that Belter's murder was temporarily overshadowed by her sharp anticipation of a meeting with an unknown on the dark and deserted area that had once been Brasco Park. Her first impulse was her sanest, to go directly home and forget—if she could—that she had ever received the mysterious note. But then she promptly upbraided herself for a coward and took a silent oath that she would go to this amazing tryst if she were murdered the instant she appeared.

"I'm going to stop by a friend's house before I go home," she told the very youthful and very reticent young man who had driven her in. "Will you let me out at the next corner?"

Opposite the light at West Main and Watertown avenue the car came to the curb and Janet got out. "Thanks a lot," she called after her young driver. "Tell Mr. Tolbert to call me when he wants me to come back to the field."

She waited until the machine had turned and sped away. Then she walked back along West Main street, her eyes fastened on the dark sea to her left where waited—heaven only knew who.

At Thomasion avenue she turned left. The widly separated street lights cast a dim glow along the edge of the big field. She walked rapidly, resolutely, half afraid that she would even now lose her nerve and turn back.

Then she thought of Dick's revolver, and pulled the package from her coat pocket. It was empty, of course, she told herself; Dick had said that it had never been loaded. In a real emergency, it would not help. But it might serve as a bluff. She tore off the newspaper wrapping and fingered the blue steel gingerly. Then she grasped the handle firmly, put a finger on the trigger, and shoved her hand under the fold of her coat.

It was a guess as to the exact point at which the old grandstand had stood; but at last she came to the place opposite where she thought it had been. . . . There on the edge of the road she stood for one brief instant, her heart beating rapidly, her nerves all but breaking under the strain.

Then, with a courage she had not known she possessed, she turned sharply and walked slowly into the enveloping blackness.

Instantly she stood still. Something had risen up out of the night and was coming toward her.

She saw the outline of a man, knew vaguely that his long arms were reaching out for her, felt strangely as if she were about to be jerked into the abyss of darkness beyond

Hardly knowing what she was doing, she whipped the revolver from the fold of her coat and pointed it at the dark face before her.

"Stop!" she cried, and stepped back quickly. "Stop, or I'll shoot!"

She saw the flash of fire, heard the sharp report; but did not know they had come from the revolver in her own hands until a deep voice at her feet said hoarsely: "Janet . . ."

Her arms hung limply at her sides, the revolver dropped with a dull thud. Her head was spinning and her legs were giving way beneath her. Slowly she sank to the ground, fighting for strength, struggling against the dizziness that was robbing her of her senses.

"Janet . . ."

It was like a voice from afar, low and soft; but Janet, slumping to the damp earth, knew that within a few feet of her lay Hugh Temple.

PRIZES WILL BE ON DISPLAY IN LOCAL STORES DURING THE NEXT TWO WEEKS

Through the courtesy of the contest winners, who have already been invited to make their prize selections, the prizes will be on display in the show windows and silver departments of local jewelry and department stores.

Contest by Invitation . . . Invitations were mailed to several thousand prominent Washington women. Invitations also were extended through Washington jewelry and department stores upon personal requests.

What the Letters Said . . . The majority emphasized the fact that the American renaissance of entertaining at home and the increased interest in home decoration have brought about a conscious need for Sterling silver. Many others stressed the fact that today Sterling silver is easier to buy than it was years ago. These opinions have helped the Sterling Silversmiths Guild determine the cause for the tremendous nation-wide vogue for Sterling silver today.

The Committee of Judges . . . The committee of judges which awarded the prizes consisted of MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN, MISS GENEVIEVE HENDRICKS, and the HONORABLE HUSTON THOMPSON. So many splendid letters were received that it was real work to select the winning letters. Of course, they were judged for ideas alone, and therefore, elaborate, impressive entries were judged only on this basis. The committee regretted that it had to eliminate some letters entirely because they did not comply with the rules.

A Note of Thanks . . . The Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America wishes to thank the people of Washington, D. C., and environs for their enthusiastic interest in the contest. And to the jewelers and department stores of Washington, D. C., the Guild wishes to express appreciation for their hearty cooperation and support throughout the contest period.

JULY 2, 1905.

Seventeen prominent men in the beef industry were indicted by a grand jury in Chicago, Ill.

Open revolution has broken out in Warsaw. Lodz is being burned by the revolutionists. Sixty-two houses have been burned so far. No accurate report has been obtained of number of dead and injured persons.

News of the secret marriage, of two weeks ago, of Representative John T. Hunt, of Missouri, to Mrs. Nellie Buckley, a Washington boarding housekeeper, leaked out today.

Thousands of messages of sympathy and condolence have been received by Mrs. John Hay.

Prompt action on the part of Washington firemen saved St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Eighteenth and Church streets northwest, from being burned to the ground. The damage has been estimated at $3,000.

Eighty-three employes of the Navy Yard repeated last year's action and walked out at their noon lunch hour. They wanted a half-holiday like the rest of the Government employes and when told they could not have it, they took it.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

GANGS AND THE FOURTH.

THE following opinion of the psychology of our method of celebrating the Fourth of July is taken from the study of accidents resulting from two such celebrations and cared for in one New York City hospital. The author is Dr. R. T. Findley.

"The glamorous and pseudo-heroic escapades of the gangsters which have been given so much publicity in late years may have an effect on the play of children, especially Independence Day celebrations. Possibly the future generation of gangsters is undergoing preliminary training."

Having given his opinion of the crimes committed in the name of patriotism on July 4, Dr. Findley proceeds to tell how they treated injuries after the 1929 celebration. He referred particularly to gunshot wounds and soiled wounds from causes other than gunshot. In all such cases an injection of tetanus antitoxin is given when the patient comes for treatment. The amount given varies between 800 and 1,500 units, according to the size of the person and the foulness of the wound. Lockjaw antitoxin used in this dose as a preventive is proving very satisfactory. Its use as a cure is not so satisfactory. The curative dose must be very large—30,000 units or more.

He advises giving an anesthetic for the treatment of these wounds. In most cases some wadding paper, powder, and dirt are burned deeply in the wound. If the cleaning out process is painful the physician will skimp the job. The wound is thoroughly explored for wads, paper and other foreign material. All badly torn and shredded tissues are trimmed off. The wound is well washed out with a warm solution of salt. It is then treated with 7 per cent iodine in alcohol and a wet saline dressing is applied. This wet, saline dressing is kept up, being frequently renewed until the danger of infection has passed.

In 1928 more than seven out of each ten July Fourth wounds become infected. In 1929 none developed infection.

TOLAN SETS WORLD RECORD IN BEATING WILLIAMS

Pegler

IF I were the publisher of a metropolitan newspaper I would not curtail the space devoted to the schemes and stealthy work of the criminals who are nowadays the most prominent members of the prize-fighting industry, because my experience tells me that the readers are not nearly as curious about the orderly progress of the sports as they are about fake fights, fouls, sluggings on dark streets, foul play in the dressing rooms and the cheap and sordid subserviency of the prize-fight commissions.

This sort of doing is rising to a newsy climax, probably the abolition of the prize-fighting business, and it is good newspaper practice to stay with a hot story. At first glimpse it may seem scandalous constantly to devote such a volume of newspaper attention to the social vermin of the prize-fight business on pages nominally dedicated to the propagation of the ideal of sport and, less consciously, to the improvement of the breed of humans, through athletics. At times I have thought that perhaps I was too close to the racket and, befuddled by the fumes, had lost my sense of proportion and my taste in sport news, with the result that I devoted too much attention to prize fighting and too little to lawn tennis, golf, intercollegiate rowing, polo and so forth.

Baseball I do not slight, as I generally attend the spring training operations of several major league teams in the South, the opening of the season in the East, the final tour of one of the contending major league clubs, and the world series.

In the autumn, from world series time until Thanksgiving and a little beyond, I devote my time to inter-

Helen Jacobs Defeated in Surprise

Bows to Teuton Girl; Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan Win.

Tilden and Boratra, Doeg and Allison Clash Today.

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 1 (A.P.).—The unexpected downfall of Helen Jacobs, America's second ranking tennis player, at the hands of Cecilie Aussem, of Germany, featured play in the British championships today, but failed to prevent the United States from landing two of its representatives in the semifinal round of the women's singles.

Miss Jacobs, sadly off her game and lacking in stamina, was eliminated in the quarterfinals in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1.

Elizabeth Ryan, veteran Californian player who makes her home in England, came through to the semifinals along with the defending champion, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Fraulein Aussem and Mme. Rene Mathieu, who holds Suzanne Lenglen's old place as the first fanking feminine player of France.

Experience Wins for Miss Ryan.

Miss Ryan had been conceded little chance against the youthful Betty Nuthall, of England, but her greater experience and more varied game finally prevailed by scores of 6—2, 2—6, 6—0. Mrs. Moody overwhelmed England's latest schoolgirl sensation, Phyllis Mudford, 6—1, 6—2, and Mme. Mathieu disposed of Joan Ridley, of England, 6—2, 6—1.

In the semifinals tomorrow Miss Ryan meets Fraulein Aussem, while Queen Helen opposes Mme. Mathieu.

In doubles also Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan forged into the semifinal round. This strong combination, which recently won the French championship, eliminated an English team consisting of Mrs. Randolph Lycett and Mrs. J. E. Hill, 6—2, 6—0. Edith Cross, San Francisco, and Sarah Palfrey, Boston, also advanced, defeating Mrs. M. A. O. Mayne and Mrs. V. H. Montgomery, England, 7—5, 6—4.

In doubles two powerful teams of youthful United States Davis Cup players as well as the American-Dutch alliance of Bill Tilden and H. Timmer advanced.

Allison-Van Ryn Triumph.

Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., the defending champions, won from Henry Austin and J. G. Olliff, of England, 6—2, 5—7, 7—5, 7—5, while George Lott, Chicago, and John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., hte American title holders, won two matches to join them in the semifinals.

Lott and Doeg defeated C. E. Malfroy and R. D. Poland, English players, 7—5, 2—6, 14—12, 6—3, and then put out the Australian Davis Cup pair consisting of Jim Willard and Harry Hopman, 6—4, 6—2, 4—6, 6—8, 8—6.

The victory of Tilden and Timmer was scored at the expense of the American Davis Cup youngsters, Berkeley Bell, Dallas, Tex., and Greg-

New York Ring Body Rules Fouls Out of Future Bouts

Mandell and Singer Fight Under New Plan; Wear Special Protectors; Referee to Count Out Claimant of Foul.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, July 1 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission finally solved the foul problem today. It decided there was no such thing.

Listening to the pleas of Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Young Al Singer, the "Bronx Beauty," who will battle him for the crown here July 17, the solemn fathers decided upon the most drastic action in its history to curb the curse that has fallen upon major fisticuffs. Singer and Mandell wanted a ruling that would prevent their match ending in a foul. They got it—with trimmings.

The commission, harassed by the growth of the foul plague and already the sponsors of life suspensions for a fourth low blow offender, decided to eliminate fouls entirely. Boxers will devise their own implements of protection, gain the approval of the commission, and then go into battle with the knowledge that no matter what happens there can be no claim of foul.

Clause in Their Contracts.

To guarantee Singer and Mandell that there could be no possibility of a foul in their approaching conflict, the commission wrote this clause into their contracts for the match:

"The parties of the first and second part agree to equip themselves with an abdominal guard of their own selection, the type to be approved by the commission, which will obviate the necessity of any foul claim being made during the contest. It is expressly understood that this contest is not to terminate by a foul as a protector selected by the boxer is in their own opinion sufficient protection to withstand any so-called low or illegal blow which might temporarily incapacitate either or both parties."

The same clause will be written into all future fight contracts submitted to the commission. All referees have been summoned for conference and instructions that all fighters claiming foul in the future shall be promptly counted out.

The new ruling supplants a commission edict that failed in its purpose of eliminating fouls. The solemn fathers voted to suspend a first offender for 30 days, a second offender 60 days, a third violator for six months and a fourth-timer for life. The fouling fighter was to be paid only on the basis of the number of rounds completed. Then the com-

Crowder and HadleyFace St. Louis

Double-Header Today to Follow Postponement.

Coffman and Gray to Hurl for Browns; Blue to Idle.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON and his Nationals were greatly disappointed that yesterday's heavy downpour washed out the scheduled game of the series with the St. Louis Browns, as it means a double-header today, and, with the New York Yankees booked to show up here for four games in three days, starting with an Independence Day twin bill on Friday, this makes the going exceptionally rough.

Bill Killefer, skipper of the Brownies, also did considerable grumbling His team has walloped the Nationals six of the nine times the two have met and he admits that it is harder to down a team twice in one day than once each on two days. The two teams stand even at 1-all in the current series and one must win twice today to gain the edge.

Due to Pitch.

Schulte Back in Browns'

"Gen." Alvin Crowder, recently obtained from the Mound City team in the deal which sent Goose Goslin to the Browns, is slated to perform on the hill in one of today's games against his former mates, while Irving Hadley will get the call in the other. Hadley has won his last two starts, while Crowder has a record of three in a row, having lost his only game since donning Washington livery to the Browns in St. Louis on the day after the trade sending him here was made. He pitched well on that day until the ninth when he weakened and this, together with an error by the usually reliable Sam West, cost him the decision. Sammy Gray and Dick Coffman, the latter a former National, will do the St. Louis flinging today.

The Browns will be slightly weakened in these engagements, for First Baseman Lu Blue pulled up with a sore arm and Manager Killefer sent him back to St. Louis last night. He will be lost to the Browns for the balance of their road trip, during which Earl McNeely will draw the assignment as doorway guardian. The "Earl of Sacramento" plays a fair game at first, but he is no Lu Blue, either at bat or afield.

Crowder and Hadley Line-up Today.

In addition to this change, Manager Killefer announces that Outfielder Fred Schulte, who has been out because of illness, will be back on the job today. He is one of the fly chasers the Nationals wanted to get until they learned that Heinie Manush was available.

Manush, by the way, certainly has made himself many friends here. Many of Goslin's admirers still will not admit that Heinie is the better man and possibly he isn't, but he certainly has gone better here than did Goslin. As regards fielding, the two seem to be on a par, with Goslin having the stronger arm but, oddly enough, not throwing out many men with it.

With respect to out and out slug-

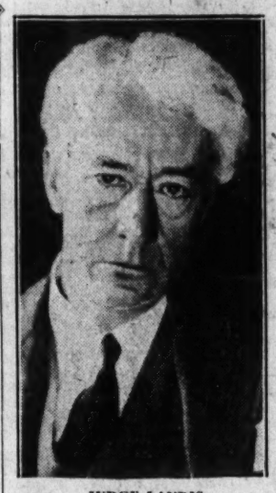
Landis Regains Support Of American Association

League Rejects Split Season and Votes Confidence.



JUDGE LANDIS.

CHICAGO, July 1 (A.P.).—The threatened uprising against the "iron hand" rule of Kenesaw Mountain Landis over organized baseball faded unexpectedly today as American Association club owners pledged their allegiance to him and rejected the split season proposal.

Called together for a special conference to consider a split season, the club owners adopted a resolution directing President Thomas J. Hickey to "convey to K. M. Landis an expression of confidence and allegiance of the American Association to all final decisions of all disputed baseball matters made by the high commissioner."

The action indicated strongly the Federal court suit filed by the Milwaukee Club to restrain enforcement of the commissioner's transfer order on Outfielder Bennett, of the Brewers, would be withdrawn. Neither President Hickey nor officials of the Milwaukee team would confirm that angle, however.

Regarded as Big Victory.

Anyway, it was regarded as a big victory for the commissioner and a death blow to the rumored movement to oust him. Too, it increased hopes that the American Association, Pacific and Interantional Leagues would renew the major-minor leagues draft agreement when they meet here August 5. Since the Milwaukee-Landis dispute was taken to the courts, it had been hinted the three Class AA clubs were planning to form

Simpson Runs 2d, Later Equals Own Record for 220.

By FRANK G. GORRIE.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 1 (A.P.).—Eddie Tolan, University of Michigan "Midnight Express," today clipped one-fifth of a second off the world's 100-meter record and handed Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion, his first defeat at the distance.

Competing in the Dominion Day track and field meet before 15,000 persons, Tolan, official holder of the world's 100-yard dash record, and George Simpson, Ohio State "Buckeye Bullet," both showed their heels to the "Canadian Comet."

Tolan's time of 10 1-5 seconds was one-fifth second better than the world's mark which he shares with Charlie Paddock, former University of Southern California athlete.

The Michigan Negro broke the tape 3 feet ahead of Simpson and the Ohio State flash with a mighty burst of speed in the last 20 yards and passed Williams to beat the Vancouver boy by a foot.

Williams' Burst Of Speed Missing.

Williams, running his first important race since last summer, when he conquered both Tolan and Frank Wykoff, Southern California ace, on this same track, tried to catch the Americans but failed to muster the final burst of speed which carried him to two Olympic victories.

Track officials said Tolan's time was remarkable because he ran uphill, the finish mark being 30 inches higher than the start.

One other world's record was broken. Another tied and still another nearly shattered when the 100 men and women athletes from the United States and Canada vied for honors.

Simpson Beats Tolan by Foot.

Simpson equaled his world's figure of 20.6 seconds when he conquered Tolan in the 220-yard race on the uphill track. The Ohio State speed artist broke the tape less than a foot ahead of the Negro. Williams did not enter the race.

Lillian Palmer, young Vancouver girl, shattered the world's 50-yard dash record for women in 5 4-5 seconds. Her time was one-fifth second better than the mark held by Rosa Grosse, Toronto.

Hurling the 16-pound shot 52 feet 7 inches, Harman Brix, giant Los Angeles Athletic Club weight man, came within a quarter of an inch of the official world's mark held by E. Hirschfeld, Germany

N. Y. Awaits Jones' Arrival With "Lindbergh Welcome"

NEW YORK, July 1 (A.P.).—By train and by airplane, up from the land where the golfers grow, came 250 beaming Georgians today to see Atlanta's most prominent citizen get a Broadway welcome.

On the excursion steamer Mandalay they'll go down the bay tomorrow and watch Robert Tyre Jones, jr., British amateur and open golf champion, escorted from the liner Europa aboard New York City's welcoming yacht, the Macom.

Up "The Trail of Glory," where the ticker tape flies, from the Battery to the City Hall, they will follow him to stand cheering in the background while Mayor James J. Walker tells him that New York is proud of him, too.

And then—after New York gets through with him—they'll take young Bobby over to the Hotel Vanderbilt tomorrow night for the kind of welcome-home dinner that only one's home folks know how to give.

"Bobby Jones Special" Brings 75.

All day today they were arriving in New York, those Jones fans from Georgia.

Seventy-five came in on "The Bobby Jones Special," which left Atlanta yesterday carrying to Robert Tyre Jones, jr., from Robert Tyre Jones 3d the following message:

"Tell him I can whistle now."

More arrived during the afternoon in airplanes at Newark Airport, and

Macks Beat Tigers, 4-1, On Rookie's Home Run

Philadelphia, July 1 (A.P.).—Rain interfered with the Athletics' scheduled double-header with Detroit today, but not until the champions had scored a five-inning 4-to-1 victory in the opening game. The Macks added a half game to their lead as Washington and New York were idle due to rain.

Williams, rookie second baseman, won the game for the Mackmen with a home run. Sent in to bat for Bishop, with two on, in the second inning he hit Hogsett's first pitch into the left-field stands.

Cards Score 11 Times In 3rd to Beat Robins

St. Louis, July 1 (A.P.).—The Cardinals piled up eleven runs against Brooklyn in the third inning today and gave the Robins a 15-to-7 trouncing in the first game of the series. Watson Clark, who started for Brooklyn, and Dudley and Elliott were pounded for nine hits in the big inning and three errors helped give the Cardinals a commanding lead.

Jess Haines pitched well for St. Louis and held the Robins well in hand, although he gave eleven hits. The only serious Brooklyn blow was Johnny Frederick's home run with two on base in the ninth inning.

The defeat kept the Robins from moving up on the Chicago Cubs, who lost to New York.

LATONIA FEATURE IS CAPTURED BY VERMICULITE

Camden Filly Wins Going Away

Bud Charlton Second With Fairy Ring in Third Hole.

Victory Makes Double as Frigate Bird Wins Opener.

LATONIA, Ky., July 1 (A.P.).—Vermiculite, 3-year-old filly, by Light Brigade, the property of former Senator J. N. Camden, captured the feature race of the afternoon named the Mount Echo, a 6-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds and upward, with K. Russell up. Vermiculite beat Bud Charlton by a length and a half. Fairy Ring was third. The time was 1:15 2-5.

The winner was slow to get started, but under good handling Russell brought his mount up to win going away. It was the second win of the afternoon for the Camden Stable, the first race going to Frigate Bird.

Vermiculite paid $6.36 to win.

On Tap Shows Way At Aqueduct.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., July 1 (A.P.).—Displaying unusual speed, J. H. Louchheim's On Tap led for the entire mile trip to win the Myrtle Claiming Stakes here today. She carried 106 pounds and ran the distance in 1:40 flat to win by several lengths. Sun Mission, an added starter, was second, with Drawing Board third. Coin Collector, favorite, was fourth, and Timon fifth and last.

At the rise of the barrier C. Waters rushed On Tap to the front. The filly showed unusual speed and stepped along at a rapid pace, leading Drawing Board by a length in the middle of the turn. At this point On Tap drew away, and increasing her advantage to the finish, won by four lengths. Sun Mission beat Drawing Board a length for the place. The race was worth $3,900 and the attendance was estimated at 4,000.

Hot Toddy Nears Mark At Arlington Park.

Arlington Park, Ill., July 1 (A.P.). Hot Toddy carried the colors of K. E. Hitt to victory in the Park Ridge at Arlington Park today. Sidney Grant was a close-up second, with Uncommon Gold third.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, over the mile distance out of the chute, and was run in the total time of 1:37 4-5, while private timers caught the winner at 1:37 2-5. The latter would have equaled the track record. The Park Ridge was worth $1,300 to the winner, which enriched his backers at $12.64 for $2.

Hot Toddy was held in restrain the first half-mile, where he was let down and rapidly went into the lead, which he increased to four lengths in the stretch, but was under pressure at the end to win by a neck. Sidney Grant was away last and slow to find his racing stride, but made his move along with the winner and finished fast, to be second by two lengths from Uncommon Gold. The latter, badly outrun to the stretch, came fast thereafter and was up to take show money by a half a length over Cog Air. Cog Air set the early pace, but tired when the final test came.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Latonia Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LATONIA'S feature today is the Havlin Hotel Handicap, at 6 furlongs. EASTER STOCKINGS, top weight, stands out in this sprint. MARTINIQUE is the contender on class, but is inconsistent. TANTIVY should improve from his last race, and may be closer than third. He is a good horse when fit, but was off his stride in his last race. This is a very small field for the feature at this track.

Every race course is crowded for stall room for visiting horses, but the trainers and owners seem slow to race their horses unless in the cheapest races, except when they are 2-year-olds.

FIRST RACE — There will be a scramble in the first race, for 2-year-old fillies, where a score are entered. THISTLE BILLIE is best, but LAUGHING GIRL has shown improvement and should be a close contender. SUGARLAND comes from a good stable and should figure in the race.

SECOND RACE—SEWANEE is selected to beat VERMICULITE, which won yesterday in the second race and should be long price. SEWANEE ran well in the East. VERMICULITE beat BUD CHARLTON and others yesterday easily, and may repeat as the favorite. SOUTHLAND TOY has a good chance to show.

THIRD RACE is for 2-year-old fillies, like the first race, and is about as devoid of form. THUNDER NYMPH ran well a few days ago and is selected to earn brackets in this dash. HIGH TEMPER may run well, and probably is the contender. SQUALL is well bred and dangerous among this sort.

FIFTH RACE—H. P. Whitney's GOTOIT appears to be a standout, after being in the money last out, in a better field. LORD CONCORD is picked for place over CHORISTER. The race is at a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds. Bobby Powers has an outside chance for part of the purse, but the Whitney Entry is the best of the day.

SIXTH RACE—BIG SANDY should beat GOTHAM in the sixth race. GOTHAM has gone back this season and place is about as good as he can get in any company. BLACK ON WHITE may be the favorite and should get in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—SHARK is best in the seventh race. CHATSON is the contender. ATHENS should be in the money. The mile and a furlong may be too far for him.

Arlington Park at Chicago is offering some good purses and has attracted many horses from the East. The feature today is the Geneva Handicap for fillies. Walter J. Salmon's SNOWFLAKE, Double Oaks winner—the coaching club American at Belmont Park and the Illinois at Washington Park should add this stake to her crown as queen of the 3-year-old fillies. She will have strong opposition in SUPREME SWEET and LADY BROADCAST.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRIGATE BIRD, $4.60, $3.16, $2.64; OSWEGO, $3.38, $3.16; DOCTOR LOUIS HAMMAN, $12.24.

FRIGATE BIRD, racing much the best and when clear of interference after being taken to outside on turn, assumed the lead to draw out decisively. OSWEGO was in close quarters on inside, made a game effort when clear midway of the stretch and, continuing wamely, outfinished DOCTOR LOUIS HAMMAN. Latter, under hard pressure, faltered slightly final sixteenth. CHOKOLOSKEE closed well after being forced wide into stretch. SWIFT PAL quit.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51. Winner, R. A. Smith's b. g. (3), by Paicines—Elizabeth M. Trained by H. Wells. Value to winner, $900; second, $225; third, $116. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:15.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIDDLER, $4.02, $2.54, $2.22; OVERBOARD, $3.40, $2.76; HONEY LOCUST, $2.62.

FIDDLER away well and showing good speed while saving ground, held OVERBOARD safe to final turn and, responding gamely when threatened, was going handily at the end. OVERBOARD, always in nearest pursuit of the winner, but racing a trifle wide on back stretch, closed under severe punishment, but could never seriously threaten the winner. HONEY LOCUST, away tardily and outrun to the final three-sixteenths, closed unusually strong on outside, but could not get to leaders. MONNIE raced evenly.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:21. Winner, C. W. Bruce's f. (2), by In Memoriam—Chilla. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24, 0:49 3-5, 1:02 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS CHILLA, $5.56, $2.92, $2.58; MARY COBB, $3.36, $2.50; POT, $4.50.

MISS CHILLA took command at once, gradually raced DELCO DEL into defeat and, continuing strongly, won with speed in reserve. MARY COBB worked way up on inside to challenge winner when straightened in stretch but, tiring slightly near end, just outlasted outstay FLUMAGE. Latter, well up throughout, had no excuse. DELCO DEL had no excuse.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Mount Echo. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:50. Winner, J. N. Camden's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VERMICULITE, $6.36, $3.88, $2.72; BUD CHARLTON, $15.74, $7.52; FAIRY RING, $4.26.

VERMICULITE, under steadying restraint first half mile, moved around leaders with a rush when called upon entering stretch and, racing FAIRY RING into submission, held BUD CHARLTON safe after a mild drive. BUD CHARLTON, forced badly on final turn, came again on inside when clear and, continuing strongly, only faltered final few strides. FAIRY RING tired badly after setting pace to final sixteenth. ELIZABETH KENNEDY closed an immense gap final three-sixteenths.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200. Three-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:20½. Winner, Bradelbane Stable's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MADCAP MARVIN, $9.42, $4.72, $3.54; SPOTLIGHT, $4.12, $2.90; MIDSOLEA, $4.44.

MADCAP MARVIN, away slowly and forced to race wide most of the trip, came around the leaders at the head of the stretch and, closing with a rush, disposed of SOUTHLAND BELLE to draw clear near end. SPOTLIGHT closed with usual rush, but was no match for the winner. MIDSOLEA, forced wide, closed stoutly through stretch, gained steadily in last furlong, but could not improve position. SOUTHLAND BELLE weakened when put to a drive. SUSAN'S SISTER, much used in reaching contention, had nothing left when final test came.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:50. Winner, G. Mangan's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUSINESS, $18.16, $6.86, $4.02; TELA, $3.98, $2.78; BUNCH OF LILLIES, $2.78.

BUSINESS, forced back on first turn and taken wide on back stretch while moving up steadily gradually worked way to front and, saving ground thereafter, had enough left to hold TELA safe. TELA met with early interference, was forced wide through stretch and, continuing gamely, would have won in a few more strides. BUNCH OF LILLIES was raced far out of it and then, much spent in reaching contention, faltered badly in final drive. STORM SIGNAL was poorly handled and finished on own courage. BROOKDALE MISS raced wide all through back stretch.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:25. Winner, A. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KENTUCKY ACE, $13.72, $6.72, $3.40; BRUNO, $10.06, $3.92; PERCENTAGE, $2.24.

KENTUCKY ACE, well up from start, saving ground while racing under steadying restraint, slipped through on inside entering stretch and, taking command, easily drew clear. BRUNO went into lead right after start, saved ground, but bore out on final turn when tiring and just lasted to hold second place. PERCENTAGE was racing strongly when carried wide by BRUNO entering stretch, then tired near the finish. CELIDON closed a lot of ground from a slow start. PRINCESS VIRGINIA had a rough trip.

BURROWS TOPS FIELD IN PUBLIC LINKS GOLF TRIALS

Fuchs, Parks, Burton Also Qualify

Quartet Represents District in National Tournament.

Burrows Has 4-Stroke Lead in 72-Hole Muny Test.

BRADLEY H. BURROWS, who for the past three years has been a leading contender in public links events but who had the misfortune last year to lose a play-off in a tie for a place on the Washington Team to compete in the national public links championship, yesterday led all his competitors in the qualification rounds of 72 holes with four strokes ahead of his nearest contestant.

At the conclusion of 36 holes on the Rock Creek course last Monday he led with 149 strokes and yesterday with two rounds of 73 and 74 on the East Potomac Park course, he had a total of 296. When he had played the first eighteen holes yesterday he was still in the lead by six strokes with 222 and was never in danger of displacement. Although engaged in business at the West End Market he has developed a golf game which makes him a formidable competitor at all times at Rock Creek, which is his favorite course.

Youngsters Gain Places.

The other three members of the quartet which will compose the Washington Team at Jacksonville, Fla., next month, are Louis Fuchs, Robert Burton and Samuel R. Parks, with scores of 300, 305 and 311, respectively. Fuchs is one of the younger players, recently out of high school. Burton is also a recent high school graduate and now a model maker's assistant, while Parks is an employe of the American Ice Co.

Burton, who was the East Potomac Park champion in 1927, was fortunate enough to qualify yesterday despite the fact that he had an 8 on the third hole of course A and another 8 on the fifth hole of course B, Rock Creek Park.

Parks Shoots 77 To Qualify.

Parks had apparently thrown away his chance of qualifying when he took 43 on the second nine yesterday morning, but his 77 in the afternoon round brought him under the wire.

Wesley Billings and John Downey, each with a total of 313, were out of the running by two strokes. J. B. Robertson, who qualified last year, was well down in the list at the finish with 319, although he played nine straight 4s in the afternoon, his morning round having been a disastrous 82. At Rock Creek Park Fuchs was the only player to score 35 on the homeward nine throughout the tournament. The scores were as follows:

Hemsley's Triple, 2 On, Lets Pirates Win, 8-3

Pittsburgh, July 1 (A.P.).—A triple by Hemsley, scoring Suhr and Bartell, put Pittsburgh in front in today's game with Boston, and French was never in danger thereafter, the Pirates winning, 8 to 3.

French kept the Braves' eleven hits well scattered, while the Pirates bunched theirs off Brandt. Hemsley also drove out a double later in the contest.

Seven Players Picked For Army Leech Team

Seven players have been picked for positions on the Army Tennis Team which will meet the Navy in the Leech Cup matches on July 19 at Chevy Chase Club, it was announced yesterday. Three more are to be selected.

Those named are Majs. Van Fliet, Finley, Robertson, Hobbs and Hills and Lieuts. Robinson and Hedekin. Candidates for the other three positions are Majs. Balsom and Jenkins, Capts. Christenberry and Gantt, and Lieuts. Lewis and Mathews. All have been participating in the Army championship tournament at Columbia Country Club.

The committee selecting the Army Team is composed of Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison, chairman; Maj. Hills, secretary-treasurer; Gen. King, Maj. Walsh and Maj. Hobbs.

Hawkers of Tips Banned at Arlington

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Hawkers of racing selections and other customary wares found at most race tracks have been banned at Arlington Park.

The order banning the hawkers was issued in keeping with the track officials' policy of eliminating all possible noise. Newsboys with their shouts of "Wuxtra" have been banished, too.

Rumor of Ill Health Denied by Sir Thomas

London, July 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The New York World News Service today telegraphed Sir Thomas Lipton, who is aboard his steam yacht Erin off the west coast of Scotland that some yachtsmen and sportsmen in New York have been alarmed over reports reaching here from Belfast to the effect that his health might make it impossible for him to participate in the America's Cup race in September.

The following characteristic telegram was promptly received in reply:

"Many thanks for your kind telegram. Glad to say I am feeling in excellent health and am quite willing to take on Jack Dempsey whenever he feels fit enough. Am looking forward with the greatest pleasure to another contest for the famous old mug and am confident the Shamrock will put up a good show."

Yesterday Sir Thomas entertained King Alfonso of Spain aboard the Erin, after which the Spanish monarch went aboard the Shamrock for an afternoon race in which the cup racer beat the White Heather by 2 minutes and 37 seconds.

Von Porot Breaks Leg; Out Several Weeks

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Otto Von Porat's next comeback in the heavyweight boxing world has been delayed by a broken ankle.

The angular Norwegian heavyweight broke the ankle while cavorting about his manager's estate near Layfield, Wis., where he had gone to recuperate from injuries to his face and reputation as a result of his recent match with Young Stribling. He may be out of the ring for several weeks.

Shamrock V Gives Up Early in 42-Mile Race

Gourock, Scotland, July 1 (A.P.).—The Shamrock V, which started in a 42-mile race on the Clyde today, gave up after about a half hour's sailing. The White Heather followed suit when her struts gave way.

The Shamrock V stopped from "safety first" policy. The wind was fresh in the channel and Capt. Heard decided to take no risks of damage to Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup.

Capt. Heard explained that the Shamrock is leaving the Clyde this week-end for Gosport to prepare for her voyage to America, and the time is so short that he could not afford to run risks of mishaps that might delay the trip.

Kent Crew in Initial Test on Thames Today

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 1 (A.P.).—Crews, which will engage in the great rowing battle for the Thames Challenge Cup starting tomorrow, were in fine fettle tonight for the contest.

The Kent Crew, which meets Sydney Sussex College of Cambridge in its first race, was out for only twenty minutes today and by coincidence saw its opponents collide with an obstruction in the river and smash the outrigger.

The Rev. Father Sill said his boys were in great shape, but was especially pleased that the American crews would not meet in the early rounds.

Princeton, which will follow Kent on the river, matches strokes with Twickenham, one of the most formidable opponents the Americans will have to meet.

Golf Greens Section Lists Five Meetings

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Five meetings have been called for July by the United States Golf Association's greens section to compare different strains of grasses and results of various turf practices.

The meetings: July 1, Sleigh Municipal course, Grand Rapids, Mich.; July 2, Niagara Falls Municipal course; Mill Road Farm course, West Lake Forest, Ill.; July 9, Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, scene of the coming national open, and July 14, Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley, Pa.

Reese and Sutter Reach Tristate Tennis Finals

Memphis, Tenn., July 1 (A.P.).—Billy Reese, Atlanta and Ed Sutter, New Orleans, won their way to the finals of the Tristate Tennis Championship Junior singles here today. Reese defeated his fellow townsman, George Boynton, 6—2, 6—4. Sutter defeated Jimmy Durham, Memphis, 6—3, 7—5.

Boynton and Reese defeated Cecil Metz, Memphis, and Durham, 8—6, 7—5 in junior doubles semifinals.

Miss Beatrice Bryan, Enterprise, Miss., defeated Mrs. Frank Lee, Memphis, 6—4, 7—5 in women's singles semifinals.

No-Hit, No-Run Game For Frostburg Hurler

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., July 1.—Farrady Post No. 24, Junior American Legion Team, defeated Ort's Zihlman team in a league game at Y. M. I. Park here, 9 to 0. Young Rogish, star pitcher of the local aggregation, pitched the first no-hit, no-run game of the season and struck out sixteen Zihlman players.

The youth, but 15 years of age, is a protege of Dick Stakem, of Midland, who discovered the possibilities of "Lefty" Grove, hurling ace of the Philadelphia Athletics. Young Rogish is also of Midland and has been tutored by Stakem during the past season. He probably will oppose the Cumberland Elks in the county championship game.

Mrs. Haynes' 36 Card Is Clarksburg Record

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 1.—Mrs. H. H. Haynes turned in the record for women on the course of the Clarksburg Country Club with a card of 36, which is two under par for women and the lowest number of strokes ever played by a woman over the local links. At the time she made the record score, she was playing with Miss Angela McManaway. Mrs. Haynes will leave tomorrow for White Sulphur Springs, where she and a number of other local women will participate in the State tournament, July 7-11.

Otis Curtin has decided to enter the contest, while members of the club here are urging Forrest McNe , three times State champion, to enter. Mr. McNeill has recently been playing some of the best scores of his career. He played a 29 just a few days ago at the local course, the par being 31. Lynn S. Horner, Charles H. Hart, Boyd E. Horner, Roy F. Ash, J. Horner Davis, Edgar Needham, Philip P. Steptoe, Benjamin Britt, Alvin G. Williams, J. V. McManaway and W. S. Wallis are among the Clarksburg golfers, who will attend the State meeting at White Sulphur.

Princeton Crew Ready Henley Races Today

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 1 (A.P.).—Princeton crew men today engaged in light work, their last practice before the Royal Henley Regatta opens tomorrow. The Kent School Crew, from Connecticut, also had light work today.

The Argentine crew finished its training. It was out about half an hour early this forenoon doing starts and spurts.

Nebo-Terris Fight Off Until Tuesday

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—The ten-round bout scheduled between Pete Nebo, Seminole Indian from Florida, and Sid Terris, New York lightweight, for the Queensboro Stadium tonight was postponed today because of rain. Nebo and Ferris will feature the card next Tuesday.

Many Foreign Track Stars in Aug. 27 Meet

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, is back home from Europe with the news that a record-breaking field of foreign stars will compete in the British-American track and field carnival at Soldier Field, August 27.

Among the foreign stars certain to compete, President Brundage said, are Percy Williams, the Olympic sprint champion; Lord Burghley, 400-meter hurdle winner at Amsterdam; Eric Liddel, the Scot who won the 400-meter race in Paris in 1924; Phil Edwards, star half-miler from British Guiana; Alex Wilson, the Canadian quarter-miler, and others from South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

The American team will be selected from the National A. A. U. games at Pittsburgh; the foreign team will be picked from the British games at Hamilton, Canada, August 16-23.

Crowder and Hadley Face Browns in Double-Header

ging, Goslin probably deserves the palm, but Manush has and no doubt will prove himself to be a more regular hitter. He may not pole out as many homers as will the Goose, but he'll be on the bases a lot, as a result of singles, doubles and triples and, based on his showing since he joined the Johnsons, his day in and day out stickwork will make him the more valuable player here. Besides, Manush is one of the best bunters in the league and is quite fast on his feet for a big fellow.

Fans Forgetting All About Crowder.

While the "Goslin vs. Manush" discussion continues to be a subject for much heated discusion among baseball addicts, it also might be in order to call attention to a fact which apparently has been overlooked by many. Pitcher "General" Alvin Crowder came to the Nationals in the deal, and all he has done is to pitch four good games since, three resulting in victories.

Although both the Nationals and Browns have an open date on the schedule tomorrow, it proved to be of no use to any one, for it could not be used, due to the fact that the Killefers are booked to open in Chicago on Friday and so could not be held over for a game here and yet get to the Windy City in time for the July Fourth holiday attractions in that city. It was on this account that a double-header was booked for today, rather than single games today and tomorrow.

Ladies and Boy Scouts are "out o' luck" Friday, when the Nats and Yankees open their battle for second place with a double-header. As this is a holiday, the usual Friday invitation has been withdrawn.

"Want a story?" Art Shires asked in the Nats' locker-room while the players were waiting to hear whether or not yesterday's game would be started.

"Well, just tell the fans that 'The Great' Shires has nothing to say," he added, which is a story and a most unusual one.

Macks Gain as Nats And Yanks Idle.

Although idling yesterday, the Nationals and Yankees, tied for second place, dropped back half a game behind the Mackmen, due to the league leaders just managing to sneak in a legal game and victory over the Detroit Tigers before rain stopped this contest, the first of a scheduled double-header.

Pitcher Don Savidge failed to make the grade with the Hartford Club, and has been returned to the Nationals. If President Clark Griffith is unable to place him somewhere, the former collegian probably will be given his release.

First Baseman Harley Boss, returned from Jersey City, reported to President Clark Griffith yesterday. The "Skeeters" claimed that they sent Boss back because he reinjured the leg which caused him trouble when he first reported to Chattanooga and which led to his return here so that the Nat physician could treat him. Boss, however, declares that his leg is perfectly good and that he was let out because Jersey City bought Jim Keasey from the Mackmen and wants to use him.

With Shires here, Boss is not needed and he was again turned over to the tender mercies of the Washington Club's medicine man, who plans to make an examination today. The Nats plan to get Boss into condition and sell or trade him.

LANDIS AGAIN BACKED BY MINORS

Withdrawal of Suit by Milwaukee Seen as Certain.

a triple entente independent of the major leagues and Commissioner Landis.

The Bennett controversy arose when Commissioner Landis ordered the St. Louis Browns, part owners of the Milwaukee Club, either to declare Bennett a free agent, waive him to other American League clubs, or sell him outright. The Browns refused and Milwaukee entered suit to restrain the order. It was the first time since Landis became commissioner that the agreement to avoid court action in player disputes was violated.

Rejection of the split season was a surprise, as an official canvass of club owners prior to today's secret meeting indicated they favored the proposal, seven to one. Since the meeting was called, however, the race has been closer, business at the gate has picked up and it was decided to let well enough alone.

Louisville, leading the current pennant chase by four and one-half games, led the fight against the split season plan, which was to have been started July 7. St. Paul and Toledo, which have been gaining ground in the race, and Milwaukee, Kansas City and Minneapolis also decided to continue the present campaign.

President Hickey reported that business was on the increase and that the circuit hoped to recoup some of the losses suffered last season, when Kansas City ran away with the race and chilled interest.

Army Tennis Halted by Rain

Van Vliet Conqueror Wins First Set But Trails in Second.

Strahan Surprises by Good Game in Singles Final.

RAIN broke in upon a warm battle for the tennis singles championship of the Army tournament at Columbia Country Club yesterday and caused a postponement until 10:30 o'clock this morning after Lieut. David D. Hedekin had gained a set on Lieut. John W. Strahan, with the second set standing at 5—2 in games favoring Strahan. The first set score was 6—3.

Both players were on their game, as the saying goes, and were fairly burning up the court when old J. Pluvius tossed his wet blanket on the proceedings. They were hitting hard and chasing each other at a lively clip, so much so that the intervention of J. P. might have been taken as an act of Providence to prevent a couple of cases of heat prostration.

Strahan's Strong Game Surprises.

Those observers who anticipated a rather easy victory for the fiery young Hedekin on account of his sensational triumph the day previous over the defending champion, Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, jr., were surprised to find the veteran Strahan putting forth an even fight. It had been expected that Hedekin's powerful net game would quickly spell defeat for his older foe.

At first it appeared that Hedekin would live up to expectations, as he jumped into a lead of 3—1 in the first set. As on Monday, he sent sizzling forcing shots to the corners and followed them to the net for numerous points.

But as suddenly as Hedekin gained the lead, so did Strahan rally to deadlock matters, and with a series of clever placements propelled from his usual back court position the veteran drew level at 3—3, winning twice on his own service and breaking through Hedekin's once.

The ensuing game developed a torrid volleying duel, but in this Hedekin proved superior. He took this game and the next two in succession, continuing to rush to the forecourt at every opportunity.

Strahan's Driving Tactics Effective.

Strahan blasted the sidelines with burning placements to win the opening game of the second set at love. It was here that the potency of his driving tactics became fully apparent. Hedekin won the next game on his own service, but at this stage the rain began falling heavily and with it the youth commenced to lose control. Strahan then romped into a commanding lead by winning the third, fourth, fifth and sixth games. Just as the officials were gathering to decide on the postponement, Hedekin rallied to delay impending loss of the set by winning the seventh game.

In the doubles semifinals to be held starting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Lieut. Hedekin is paired with Lieut. S. K. Robinson against Lieuts. Millard Lewis and E. S. Mathews, while Maj. J. H. Hills and Maj. W. M. Robertson will meet the defending champions, Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, jr., and Maj. Thomas D. Finley.

Point scores of the play yesterday follow:

FIRST SET.

Hedekin.....	4	4	4	1	1	5	6	4	—30—6
Strahan.....	1	2	1	4	4	3	4	0	—23—3

SECOND SET.

ory Mangin, Newark, N. J., at 7—5, 8—6, 6—2. Jean Borotra and his young French countryman, Christian Boussus, downed Jack Crawford and E. F. Moon, Australia, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1, 5—7, 6—4.

England started the afternoon's play with three survivors in women's singles and lost them all.

In the Ryan-Nuthall match, Betty scored frequently with brilliant background cross-court drives, but one fine stroke was not enough to beat the American veteran, who chopped with all her old skill and generally outfought her younger opponent.

Star Pair Wins Easily.

The other English girls, Miss Mudford and Miss Ridley, never had a chance against Mrs. Moody and Mme. Mathieu, respectively.

Fraulein Aussen played with the steadiness of the champion herself. She tried nothing spectacular and let Miss Jacobs commit errors. This the Californian seemed always ready to do.

Tomorrow is semifinals day. Miss Ryan and Fraulein Aussem start the program; then Mrs. Moody plays Mme. Matheiu, after which Borotra Tilden and Allison encounters Doeg for the right to enter the final round in singles.

The Americans have fared well in all phases of the tournament, even including mixed doubles in which the last eight teams include Mangin and Miss Palfrey, Allison and Miss Cross, and Tilden and Fraulein Aussem.

PATENT OFFICE NETMEN WIN.

In a closely contested match the Patent Office netmen defeated the Navy racqueters, 3 to 2. With the match tied at 2-all, Edwards and Gardes conquered Haugen and Mehl after a furious struggle.

The results:

Wallenstein and Moncure (P. O.) defeated Baggaley and Gill, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; Kastner and Packer (Navy) defeated Goldsmith and Riordan, by default; Brown and Wilson (Navy) defeated Tomelden and Buchanan, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3; O'Brien and Voegler (P. O.) defeated Bennett and Hibb, 6—4, 3—6, 7—5; Edwards and Gardes (P. O.) defeated Haugen and Mehl, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, of Atlanta, officially headed the delegation on "The Bobby Jones Special," but the real boss was a gentleman named Robert P. Jones, the champion's father. Mrs. Jones arrived on another train late this afternoon.

Maj. John S. Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta Journal, head of the Atlanta welcoming committee; Dr. L. M. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech; R. J. Spiller, executive vice president of the Atlanta Baseball Club, of which Bobby Jones is an officer, and several directors of the First National Bank of Atlanta also were aboard.

Elected Director Of Bank.

While he was in Europe, Bobby Jones was elected a director of the First National Bank of Atlanta, one of the biggest banks in the South. He is its youngest director.

New York's welcome starts about 11 a. m. (Eastern standard time) tomorrow, when Bobby is taken aboard the Macom from the liner Europa at Quarantine. Tugs, yachts, fireboats, and airplanes will help to make memorable the trip up the harbor, and the celebration will be described through New York's own radio station, WNYC, via the city's short wave station, WOCD, aboard the Macom. The reception at the city hall is set for 3:30, and the Atlanta dinner for 7:30.

N. Y. COMMISSION RULES OUT FOULS

mission waived this rule for the heavyweight title quarrel between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey which ended in a foul and ruined the efficacy of the regulation.

Overemphasis Pointed Out.

While the commissioners realizing that foul endings to major contests not only is spoiling their peace of mind but also threatening to bring about legal abolishment of the game, they also pointed out that there was some overemphasis on the foul situation. Statistics were uncovered to show that in 1,500 matches in New York State since last December only 22 have ended in fouls. All were main bouts, however.

Unfortunately fouls have managed to bring to an untimely ending a half dozen big matches here in the last few months. Phil Scott and Otto Von Porat started the vogue which continued through light-heavyweight tilts between Larry Johnson and Maxie Rosenbloom, Johnson and Pete Latzo, among others, and wound up with Sharkey's fouling of Schmeling for the heavyweight title. In the meantime a cry of foul pervaded Sharkey's victory over Scott in Miami and just recently George Godfrey sank Primo Carnera with a low one in Philadelphia.

California Boxing Chiefs Indorse Ruling of N. Y.

San Francisco, Calif., July 1 (A.P.). The new foul ruling for boxing contests adopted today by the New York State Athletic Commission has the hearty approval of Charles F. Traung, San Francisco member of the California State Athletic Commission. Traung said he would watch with interest the effect of the ruling with a view toward its possible adoption in this State.

"The action of the New York commission appears to be a step in the right direction," Traung said. "In the old days fouls were a scarcity, and there is no reason for this sudden upcropping of them."

Legion Nines in Deciding First Series Fray Friday

Capital City League Teams in Midst of Title Battles.

CONTENDERS for the first half championship of the District American Legion baseball series will know their respective fates after Friday's games. Sergt. Jasper Post has an opportunity to clinch the first round title that day when it meets Victory Post. A triumph for the Victory team would give three teams an opportunity to cop the first half championship.

A full program is also carded for Capital City League clubs Saturday and Sunday. Section A teams of the Senior Class start their second turn of the wheel while the heated section B race of the same division moves within two games of the close of the campaign.

Junior nines have only two games remaining on the first half schedule. With the Arlington and Acme Printing Co. Nines tied for the lead, hopes of ending the race before the full schedule has been played have been abandoned.

Sam West Nine Nears Title.

The Sam Wests can practically clinch the Midget Class title this week while the Insect and Peewee championships are still very much undecided.

Only two teams will go into action in the Virginia section of the unlimited series, as the Cherrydale Team, which was scheduled to meet the Bauserman Motor Nine, has forfeited its franchise, and the Jefferson District Firemen draw a bye. The Ballston and Woodlawn teams are expected to stage a merry battle at Ballston.

Four games are carded Sunday for District unlimited nines as the Mohawks have requested that the game with the Army Medicos be postponed. Teams in this section end their first round of play a week from Sunday.

Big Program at Bethesda.

All Prince Georges County and Montgomery County teams are scheduled foes, the Kensington Howitzers, ville fray at Riverdale and the Takoma Tiger-Bethesda Firemen game at Bethesda loom as the feature contests in these two sections. The Takoma and Bethesda Junior nines will clash in a preliminary to the Tiger-Firemen game at Bethesda.

The Mardell Juniors will be idle this week due to the fact that their scheduled foes, the Kensington Howitzers, have forfeited their franchise. Sammy Buculo, who has taken over the Meridian Juniors under the name of the Clifton Barber Shop, has signed several new players who will be eligible for Sunday's game with the Lionels.

American Legion teams will start their second series Sunday, being paired the same as they were for their opening initial round contests.

Last Concourse Race Won by Darr's Pigeon

C. H. Darr won the last and longest race of the year of the National Capitol Concourse Pigeon Association when his winner flew an average of 1,010 yards per minute to beat the second-place bird from the Mount Rainier loft. The race was flown from Attalla, Ala., a distance of 607 miles, and altogether 335 birds from 46 lofts competed.

Following is the speed in yards per minute of the first return to each loft, the first ten being diploma winners:

Darr	1,010.24	Neitzey	772.25
Mt. Rr Loft	1,009.25	C. J. Krahling	735.65
Hile	959.80	Kauffman	723.35

District Net Entries Close Today at 6 P. M.

Entries for the annual District of Columbia championship tennis tournament will close today at 6 p. m., with Joe Rutley, 4722 Davenport street northwest, chairman of the committee in charge. It has been announced that no entry will be accepted later than the hour mentioned.

The tournament will get under way Friday morning at 10 o'clock on the courts of the Edgemoor Club, Edgemoor, Md., where the 1929 championship was held. Practically all of the leading netmen of Washington and Baltimore, besides stars from the Army and Navy Leech Cup squads, are expected to compete.

Football Next Most Deserving, Opines Sport Critic.

collegiate football, which is the most truly amateur of all our banner line sports, notwithstanding the glum conclusions reached by Prof. Howard Savage, of the Carnegie Foundation, and the most heroic. Even the horrible examples of the Western Conference, the Iowa boys who were ruled out as professionals on account of some paltry loans from a subsidy, were far more amateur than the professional amateurs of tournament tennis of both sexes whom one is asked to regard as exemplars of the nice ideal. The borrowings of these Iowa boys, which were finally adjudged to the earnings, amounted to no more than $15 a year in certain cases, as I recall them.

But when C. C. Pyle was organizing his professional tennis troupe to tour the country in support of Suzanne Lengien, one of the famous amateur ladies, whose name recently has been appearing in the tournament news from abroad, rejected an offer of $15,999 cash on the ground that she had been living at the rate of approximately $15,000 a year for some years and expected to continue living at this rate for some years more as an expense account amateur.

This meant that her amateur card was an interest-bearing certificate with a yield equal to that from a trust fund of $250,000, and this lady was no champion. This, I think, is characteristic of tennis. Moreover, the game as a spectacle lends itself so poorly to dramatization of news print that when a newspaper determinedly exploits the news of a tournament 3,000 miles away above the news of the prize-fighting racket, with its interesting rogues and its undeniable appeal to the customers, such a news policy seems to be an affectation.

Finds Fan Chooses Boxing to Tennis.

If, as a test of the comparative interest, an inquiring reporter were to approach a dozen people on the streets today, asking them, first, to tell him how the Americans fared at Wimbledon Saturday, and then just whom fouled whom in precisely what rounds in the last four big heavyweight prize-fight shows, he would discover that the heavyweights were outscoring the tennis players about 11 to 1.

I have attended many tennis tournaments, and as between watching William T. Tilden knock some rabbit on the head and watching Primo Carnera read a newspaper, I would much prefer watching Primo read the newspaper, even if he had it upside down.

For one thing, there is something about a pair of $20 flannel pants and a $300 membership in a suburban tennis club that makes people supercilious as though just a little apprehensive that customers at the gates might not fully appreciate their social superiority, and the game itself seems to induce in its star players an imperious petulance which shows when some child in the grand stand pops a wad of chewing gum, putting them off their stroke.

But I have noticed that the prize-fighting business is the only department of that varied activity which we call by the name of sport which commands the almost constant interest of nonprofessional people of both sexes. By nonprofessional I mean people who do not write sport or take part in any public competitions.

Eyes Open to Evils, Public Likes Ring.

Sometimes I frequent the company of such persons who have only a guessing interest in sport, and I notice that when sport is mentioned the conversation, immediately centers on the subject of the heavyweight prize fighters. They discuss the racket to denounce it as a swindle, to be sure, but it fascinates them just the same, and I think they will be just a trace sorry when the legislatures eventually take them at their word and abolish the enabling laws under which the business operates.

Golf, or Bobby Jones, who is all there is to golf in the hurried consideration of the public, is a topic of sporadic interest. Baseball is an undertone. Only intercollegiate football can interrupt the heavyweights over a sustained spell, and, without trying to define prize fighting as sport to justify its prominence on the page, I may say that only in football, when the teams line up for the kick-off of a big game, does there occur the same instant of tense expectancy that takes place as the boys go down the aisle to the ring for the main event attended by former convicts in caps and sweaters, with boxing commission licenses in the hip pockets.

Fruit Shipments Showing Increase

6,250 Cars of Potatoes Shipped Last Week; Peaches Slump.

For the first time in many weeks, the weekly shipments of the leading fruits and vegetables in the Southern area exceeded the corresponding movements for last June last week, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday. Total output reached 27,150 cars. Watermelon movement alone exceeded 10,400 cars for that week, potatoes filled 6,250 cars and tomatoes and cantaloupes required more than 1,700 cars each.

Prices of Georgia peaches were generally lower in the large consuming markets but shipping points reported considerable firmness toward the first of July. The active demand helped hold prices around $2 to $2.25 a crate. Tomato prices strengthened practically everywhere as the Mississippi and Texas seasons neared a close. Arkansas was shipping actively toward the first of July and the Virginia season was starting. Ten mid-season tomato States expect a combined crop about 10 per cent larger than last year, the increases being largely in Arkansas, California, New Jersey, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Potato prices declined as the Virginia season got into full swing. The Kansas and Missouri shipments were becoming quite active. On the eastern shore of Virginia, prices dropped to around $3.25 a barrel and closing quotations in North Carolina were around $3.

Hoover Presented With Colombia Panama Hat

A Panama hat, woven in Colombia under special instruction that required six months, was presented to President Hoover yesterday by Senor Don Jose M. Coronado, charge d'affaires of the Colombian Legation, on behalf of a commercial concern.

The hat is said to be the best specimen of Colombia hat-weaving during the past year. Colombia supplies the United States with about half of its Panama hats.

STOCK PRICES DROP DESPITE EARLY RISE

Industrials and Utilities Decline Sharply, But Rails Retain Gains.

MONEY RATES STEADY

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—The stock market ran out of fuel for the rally in today's late trading and landed on lower ground. Not until the leaders had been pushed 8 to 15 points above last week's lows, however, did the upward movement lose its momentum, but when the energy supplied by short covering had been expended prices soon slipped off and the close was 2 to 4 points off in the active utilities and industrials. Rails fared better, holding 1 to 5 points of larger gains made during the forenoon.

The rising trend continued in all groups throughout the earlier hours, but by early afternoon the market acted tired and bears hastened to take advantage of the dullness. They believed, apparently, that technical conditions had been made less favorable by the covering, especially in the utilities, where the advance had been broadest. It was on this group that the selling pressure of the last hour was concentrated, although industrials and specialties sold off rather easily.

Measured by the price indices, the market lost only one-quarter of the Saturday and Monday advance. Utilities and industrials yielded about half of their gains, but the strength of the rails, which were under extensive accumulation until late afternoon, cut down the decline for the general list.

Merchandising Shares Rise.

The carrier shares rose 2 to 8 points in the morning. Merchandising shares were also popular and a few miscellaneous shares as well. U. S. Steel sold as high as 161¾, or 1¾ above the Monday close. Atchison crossed 214 and New York Central 160. Montgomery Ward rose a point on publication of its June sales figures, which showed an advance of 9.2 per cent over the same month last year.

Shortly after noon, however, the market appeared bought out. General Electric and Westinghouse showed signs of heaviness, and were soon joined by American Telephone, American Can, North American, Johns-Manville and other issues to which the market looks for leadership. Prices sagged steadily throughout the last hour and final quotations were around the lowest of the day. U. S. Steel finished at 156⅞, off 2¾.

Banking statistics were favorable. Commercial loans made by reporting Federal Reserve member banks showed a gain for the second consecutive week, bringing the total increase for the fortnight to $170,000,000. Such a trend would normally indicate an increase demand for business credit. Security loans decreased, while banks' investments, reflecting, in the main, purchases of bonds, rose substantially.

Steel Production Drops.

The weekly steel tonnage estimates told the same old story. U. S. Steel output was reported as down to 69 per cent of rated capacity, off 2 per cent from last week. The ratio for the industry was placed at 64 per cent against slightly more than 66 a week ago.

Money was firm. The call loan renewel was 2½ per cent, but went to 3 as the banks continued to take out funds for temporary requirements incident to the first of the month. Withdrawals were considerably lower than yesterday. A reduction of ½ of 1 per cent in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's buying rate to 1⅞ on short-term acceptances was an interesting event of the day in the money markets, which recalled that recent cuts in the rediscount figure have been preceded by downward revisions in the bank's rate on bills.

Grains were strong. Wheat closed about 2 cents a bushel higher, reflecting small contract deliveries and bullish Australian advices. Corn was up a cent or more. Cotton recovered an early decline, which had been based on favorable weather news, and made small net advances. Sugar was steady.

A large recovery in the Spanish peseta featured the irregular foreign exchanges. Sterling Cables were a shade higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Surprising scantiness of the amount of wheat delivered on July contracts both in Chicago and Liverpool gave a big jolt to wheat traders today. Sharply higher prices ensued, although this was the first day of the new-crop year and ordinarily the rush of wheat from the harvest fields at this time is apt to make wheat appear overplentiful rather than the reverse. Indications today, however, were that exporters had turned suddenly to the buying side of the market and that growers were acting on Federal Farm Board suggestions to hold wheat back for higher prices.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¾@2 cents a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝@1⅝ cents advanced, oats ¾ cent off to ¾ cent up, and provisions varying from 7 cents setback to 12 cents gain.

Right from the outset the wheat market here showed a notable upward trend, with Liverpool prices much higher than expected, and traders giving particular attention to statements from the Federal Farm Board that there is every reason to hope for a better average price on wheat than of late has prevailed. Meanwhile, dispatches from Liverpool said that tenders of wheat there to fill July contracts were comparatively meager, and that drought was reported from Hungary and from Australia as well. Adding impetus to the upward swing of the market here was announcement that only 1,152,000 bushels of wheat had been delivered today on Chicago July contracts.

Later, evidence piled up that exporters were outbidding Chicago for Kansas wheat and that any unusual addition to the stock of wheat here was unlikely from the new crop in the Southwest. Moreover, selling pressure from the Southwest proved to be of little moment. Exporters in Chicago also appeared to be buying future deliveries on a large scale, and a decrease of 3,767,000 bushels in world stocks of wheat was noted. Just before the finish, though, there was a setback from the day's top prices, generally ascribed to profit taking.

Corn and oats mainly followed the upward turn of the wheat market. Oats, however, was subjected to considerable selling pressure, and at one stage touched a new low price record for the season.

Provisions ruled irregular, disturbed by Eastern selling of the July delivery of lard. Closing indemnities: Wheat—July, 89¼@89¾; September, 92¾; December, 98⅛@98⅝. Corn—July, 73¾; September, 73⅝@73¼; December, 67⅛@67⅝. Oats—July, 38⅝@38¾.

Cash grain:

WHEAT—No. 2 red, 91½; No. 3, red, 91. CORN—No. 2 mixed, 75¼@75⅜; No. 3 yellow, 77¼@77¾; No. 4 white, 80@80½; sample grade, 63@72.

RAILROAD AND U. S. BONDS SCORE GAINS

Convertible and Warrant Issues Are Firmer as Market Improves.

FOREIGN GROUP STEADY

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—An extensive list of rails and United States Government issues profited most from the greater activity and improved tone of the bond market today.

Some of the support came from a reinvestment demand. The last hour saw turnovers stepped up sharply and closing prices of rails were the best in several days.

Gains from ¼ to ¾ of a point were made by many issues in the carrier group. Convertible and warrant issues were more stable, showing a rising tendency throughout the day which some failed to hold. Secondary and speculative domestic issues still suffered from the irregularity which has marked their course for some time. Foreign bonds were firm, although activity was confined to a few issues.

Southern 5s Advance.

Prominent in the advance were Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, New York Central 3½s, Pennsylvania 4½s, Boston & Maine 5s, Baltimore & Ohio gold 4s, Canadian National 5s, St. Paul 5s. Among less active issues several large gains on large accumulations resulted. Lake Shore Michigan and Southern 5s rose ¾ of a point, Louisville & Arkansas 5s gained more than a point and Southern Pacific, Oregon 4½s, ½.

Gains of 2½ points by American Telephone & Telegraph 4½s, and New Haven 6s were the best of the convertibles, while Philadelphia Reading 6s lost the same amount.

A few utilities profited by a better demand, but the rest of the industrial list drifted aimlessly. Sugar companies bonds traveled toward new lows. Lautaro Nitrate warrant 6s lost 2 points. Fisk Rubber 8s dropped 5 points.

Bolivian Issues Strong.

Bolivian issues continued strong and their recovery of losses suffered during the revolutionary activity was enhanced by good rains today. Bolivian 8s gained 2 points; Bolivian 7s, 3 and the 7 per cent certificates rose 5 points. Brazilian 8s rose more than a point and is close to the year's high. Belgium 6s and French 7½s enjoyed a good demand and were higher.

All United States Governments except Liberty 3½s and Liberty First 4¼s were active and higher. Treasury 4¼s gained nearly a quarter of a point and Treasury 3¾s of '43-'47 touching a new high.

The offering of $18,970,000 City of Chicago 4 per cent street improvement bonds was oversubscribed. New offerings tomorrow include $10,000,000 5½ per cent gold debenture issue of the Associated Telephone & Telegraph Co. and $9,400,000 gold bond certificates of Majestic Apartments.

NEW BAKER ANGLE CONFRONTS POLICE IN RETURN OF GUN

Motive of Murder in Laying Weapon Inside Desk of Campbell Puzzles.

ALL OTHER VESTIGES OF CRIME CONCEALED

Mystery Man, With Wart on Nose, May Be Assailant With Gray Hat.

What motive did the murderer of Mary Baker have in mind when he placed the death gun in a desk in the office of Herbert M. Campbell, Arlington County real estate man? Was it vengeance, actuated by antipathy to Campbell, in the hope that he would be involved?

These questions are preeminent in the labyrinth of mystery through which police are groping in their search for the killer of the girl. While solution of the crime is believed to be at hand, there are many puzzling features that challenge the detectives.

Since the recovery of the gun and Campbell's narrative of the incidents leading to its discovery the investigators frankly confess they can ascribe no reason for the murderer retaining the weapon. They point to the precautions taken to destroy every vestige of the crime. All her belongings and part of the murderer's apparel were carefully hidden in a trap sewer.

Yet the murderer retained the most damaging of all evidence—the weapon with which he committed the crime. Further, he went so far as to reload the revolver and place it in a position where it was certain to be found.

Science's Aid Summoned.

Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, ace of the local homicide squad, upon whom the brunt of the investigation has devolved, have summoned all devices known to science in their investigation. Methods of detection and interrogation, said to be unique in criminal annals, have been pursued.

Campbell's story of "the man with the wart on his nose" is almost fantastic. Detectives are wondering if this man is "the man with the gray cap" who was seen beating Miss Baker on the night of the slaying, or if he is an accomplice of Herman H. Barrere, who is sought for questioning in connection with the case.

If the man with the facial disfigurement was the accomplice of Barrere he must have been an intimate friend, detectives say, yet all of Barrere's friends have been questioned and none recall ever having seen Barrere with a man so marked.

According to Campbell's story, Barrere and the mystery man each had an opportunity to place the gun in his office. Barrere was near the place on April 23 when he came to thank Campbell for withdrawing a larceny charge against him. Windows and doors of the ofice were open on that night.

Mystery Man's Chance.

The mystery man had his chance about a month ago when he came to ask Campbell "what he had against Barrere" and questioned the real estate dealer regarding the gun. Campbell left the office to search for the gun at his home. In the meanwhile, the man vanished.

Another puzzling aspect of this incident in the minds of police, is how the mystery man singled out Campbell. A carnival was in progress opposite Campbell's office in Oak Crest when the man appeared at twilight. Campbell does not recall having seen the man before this time.

Campbell, though he had talked with the man only a brief time, exhibited a remarkable sense of observation and was able to furnish to the authorities a minute description of the mystery man.

Barrere had access to Campbell's home the day before the murder. The realty man did not miss the gun until the mystery man questioned him regarding it. The last time he saw it it was in his home. Barrere was also in the Campbell house after the murder and is alleged to have stolen women's apparel and men's clothing at the time. Campbell did not prosecute him.

Campbell Identifies Gloves.

Campbell has identified gloves found with the Navy Department clerk's belongings in a trap sewer on the Department of Agriculture Experiment Farm as similar to a pair of gloves he once owned.

Campbell told Inspector Shelby that the gloves are of the same size that he wears, and are of the same texture as a pair he had missed from his home. Grease spots on the gloves were found by microscopic examination. Campbell recalls that he used the gloves while working on his automobile.

Inspector Shelby says that the arrest of Barrere will likely solve the mystery.

Change of Park Name Is Opposed

Project to Honor Memory of Senator Henderson Not Approved.

The name of Meridian Hill Park, on Sixteenth street, north of Florida avenue northwest, should not be changed as a means of paying honor to the memory of former Senator John Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, the District Commissioners declared in an adverse report to the Senate yesterday on the measure, which would change the name to Henderson Park.

"While it is true," the Commissioners said, "that both Senator and Mrs. Henderson took an active part in the development of this area, and that Mrs. Henderson had a large part in establishing the park, it is the opinion of the Commissioners that the historic name of this park should not be changed, but that if it is desired to recognize the part played by Senator Henderson in the development of the city, some other method of doing so be found. The Commissioners therefore do not favor the enactment of the bill."

The name of Meridian Hill has been linked with the territory so known ever since the early days of the National Capital, the Commisioners said, and the historical name should not be abandoned.

Youth Missing; Hunt Begun.

Relatives of Robert Fitzhugh, 21 years old, of Irving street near Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday asked police to search for the young man, who has been missing since Monday night. He was wearing a black suit, black and white sport shoes and was bareheaded when he left home. He is about 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs about 135 pounds, has light wavy hair and blue eyes.

THREE MIDSHIPMEN SAVED FROM SEVERN

Head of Bank in Annapolis Rescues Cadets After Boat Capsizes.

WIFE AND SISTER ASSIST

Three members of the 1932 class at the Naval Academy, clinging to a sailboat which capsized late yesterday afternoon on the Severn River near Chesapeake Bay, were rescued by James A. Walton, president of the Annapolis Banking & Trust Co.; Mrs. Walton and her sister, Miss Letitta Farrell, in a motorboat.

The youths were E. S. Schweitzer, of Pennsylvania; A. G. Ward, of Alabama, and H. C. Hummer. They were cruising in the sailboat while remaining at the Naval Academy this summer, with other members of the second class, for aviation instruction.

Mr. Walton was trying out his new speed boat when Mrs. Walton sighted the overturned craft with men clinging to it in distress near Greenberry Point Lighthouse. Mr. Walton was bound for Annapolis from Bay Ridge. He changed his course and soon drew close to the capsized sailboat. A rope was thrown to the men, and it was with difficulty in the heavy sea, with a strong wind blowing, that he and Mrs. Walton and Miss Farrell pulled the middies, one by one, aboard.

Mr. Walton stated that no other boat was nearby at the time. The plight of the youths apparently had not been observed by the lookout aboard the Reine Mercedes, station ship at the Naval Academy.

Husband Searches For Missing Wife

Failed to Return From Shopping Trip, He Tells Police.

Missing since she left her home at 4402 Harrison street northwest, after breakfast yesterday morning, Mrs. Teresa Madaline Descoteaux, 31 years old, was the object of a search started last night by police at the request of her husband, Arthur G. Descoteaux.

Mrs. Descoteaux departed from her residence with the announcement that she was going to a downtown shop to make a purchase and that she would return by noon. With her continued absence seven hours after midday, Fourteenth Precinct police were notified.

She was described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighed about 130 pounds. She left the house wearing a brown flowered sleeveless dress and low brown shoes.

Rochambeau's Statue Decorated by Society

In accordance with an annual custom, officials of the Sons of the American Revolution yesterday decorated the statue of Rochambeau in Lafayette Park. The occasion was the anniversary of the French leader's birth. Several wreaths were placed at the base of the statue, and the flags of many nations were arranged around the bronze figure.

Dr. Thomas E. Green, president of the society, and Gen. John L. Clem attended the ceremony.

Operation Removes Fishbone in Throat

Georgetown Hospital physicians, in a delicate operation, removed a 2-inch fishbone from the throat of Victor Brown, 16 years old, of 1323½ Wisconsin avenue northwest, last night after medical attention for almost 45 minutes.

The bone was lodged in his throat while eating a fish caught by Brown and several companions.

J.D. GREEN 30 YEARS IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Acting Chief NicholsonLauds No. 22 Engine Company Captain in Tribute.

HAS RISEN FROM RANKS

Thirty years' service with the District Fire Department, continuously with No. 22 Engine Company, on Georgia avenue at Madison street, was celebrated quietly yesterday by Capt. Julian D. Green as he responded to several minor alarms in starting another year.

The occasion won for him a tribute from Acting Fire Chief P. W. Nicholson, in the absence of Fire Chief George Watson.

"He has been a truly wonderful man," declared Chief Nicholson. "A good fireman, always attended to his duties. He has never been known to shirk a job, no matter how unpleasant. So far as I know, there has never been one single complaint against him in the long years of faithful service. I might add he has always been a gentleman fireman."

Thirty years ago yesterday, Capt. Green was appointed a private in the predecessor of No. 22 Engine Company, the old No. 2 Chemical Company, and entered a career with one company which is said to be unequaled in the service here. On April 10, 1903, he was promoted to the rank of third man in charge, a position corresponding now to sergeant.

He was made assistant foreman, a rank corresponding to a lieutenant now, on July 1, 1906, an unusual elevation during exactly six years in the department. He received his present rank on May 16, 1917.

Capt. Green played a conspicuous role in the Knickerbocker Theater disaster, on January 28, 1922, which claimed the lives of 98 persons, and for his notable work received a decoration from the department.

He and Mrs. Green live at 928 Madison street northwest, a few doors from his "other house."

Liquor Arrest Comes Ten Days After Sale

Federal Prohibition Agent Roy Stiles made a buy of liquor ten days ago from a bootlegger on the pretext that he was planning a party, but the man had vanished when he returned to make an arrest. He asked the Third Precinct to seek the offender.

Policemen F. O. Brass and William Perry thereupon took in custody Frank Mangum, 32 years old, of a Q street apartment near Sixteenth street northwest, whom they charged with sale of one drink of liquor.

Two Women Claim D.A.R. Regent Post

Tilt Between District Pair Over Election Likely to Reach Headquarters.

Two regents are attempting to exercise control over the Maj. William Overton Collis Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, as the result of a second election that followed a disputed first balloting.

Defeated when she left through modesty the meeting being held at her own apartment last Friday, Mrs. M. de Clare Berry, regent of the chapter for seventeen years, called another meeting Monday night following a dinner at her home and was reelected. Miss Julia Jennings was previously chosen.

So divided has the membership of the chapter become and so determined is each regent to hold her title that the case will have to be taken to the national D. A. R. officers for settlement.

MUNICIPAL CENTER CHANGES APPROVED BY FINE ARTS BODY

Plans as Revised Conform More Closely to Court Building's Style.

RED CROSS STRUCTURE IS GIVEN INDORSEMENT

Commission Also Goes Over Proposal for Memorial to World War Nurses.

Changes in the plans for the new Municipal Center, to bring the District's building program into closer harmony with the new Federal buildings on the south side of Pensylvania avenue, were approved by the Fine Arts Commission at its monthly meeting yesterday.

The revised plans submitted by A. L. Harris, municipal architect, preserve the same general style as the original, but have ben made to conform more nearly with the court building at the head of Indiana avenue northwest.

Detailed plans for the new conservatory to be built southwest of the Capitol, adjoining the Capitol grounds, were submitted by William E. Parsons, of Chicago, in behalf of David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and were taken under consideration by the commission.

Red Cross Plans Approved.

Plans were approved for the new Red Cross Building, to be located on the south side of the quadrangle on Seventeenth street, between D and E streets northwest. At the same time a proposal for a memorial to World War nurses, designed as a fountain, to be placed in the center of the Red Cross square, also was given consideration.

The new building, to serve as a memorial to the heroic women of the World War, was opened on the north side of the quadrangle recently. Tentative plans call for erection of a building on the west side of the square, but the building approved yesterday will replace the temporary office building now in use. The new building will be of marble and will harmonize with the two now completed.

Models of the Ellsworth, Amundsen and Nobile medals, submitted by the director of the mint, were approved by the Fine Arts Commission, which also took under consideration the Shipstead-Luce act, and approved several plans submitted in accordance therewith by Col. John W. Oehmann, District inspector of buildings.

Bridge Program Submitted.

Additional plans for development of Arlington Memorial Bridge and its approaches were submitted by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission, and his assistant, Maj. D. H. Gillette, and the commission also indorsed the next step in this program which provides for development of Columbia Island and the sculptural treatment at the Washington end of the bridge near the Lincoln Memorial.

It is proposed to erect two groups of sculptures symbolic of peace and two symbolic of war at the bridge terminus and at the entrance of Rock Creek Parkway.

Dr. E. F. Kelly, of Baltimore, secretary of the American Pharmaceutical Association, told the commission of latest developments regarding the proposed pharmaceutical building, which the commission has suggested be placed west of the National Academy of Sciences on B street, to form part of the setting for the Lincoln Memorial Plaza.

$50,000 THEFT LAID TO MOVIE AUDITOR IN EMBEZZLEMENT

Sum Disappeared in Stock Crash, Paramount Employe Says, According to Police.

ALLEGED PECULATIONS CARRIED ON TWO YEARS

Is Charged With Diverting Checks Payable to Firm to Own Account.

Charges of embezzling approximately $50,000 were brought against Edgar Jacobs, 39 years old, local auditor for the Paramount-Publix Corporation, yesterday. The greater part of the money disappeared in the stock market crash, the man is alleged to have told Detective Dennis J. Cullinane, who arrested him.

Jacobs, who lives on Rittenhouse street near Thirty-fifth street northwest, is said to have diverted checks payable to the corporation to his own account. The alleged embezzlement has been going on about two years. As checks from local concerns came into the office, Jacobs, as auditor, would indorse them and deposit them in his own bank, it is claimed.

Small receipts some months ago aroused the suspicions of the main office in New York, and they inspected the books. Accountants have finished their work, and say that he has taken at least $50,000. None of the money is left, Jacobs says, all having been sunk in the stock market. He has been an employe of the company for nearly nine years.

When the New York auditors appeared he knew it was all up, Jacobs allegedly said, and he made no attempt to cover up the shortage. He is being held at the First Precinct station. Fred A. LeRoy, of Kew Gardens, Long Island, N. Y., swore out the warrant against the man.

Thundershowers Bring City Relief

Downpour Near Record for Year, Is Welcomed by Nearby Farmers.

Heavy thundershowers, accompanied by lightning and high wind, broke over the city yesterday, bringing welcome relief to sweltering citizens and to farmers of the vicinity, whose crops were badly in need of moisture. The rainfall, as announced by the Weather Bureau, was .86, close to the year's record.

The mercury dropped from a high of 89 at 12:30 p. m. to the low 70s during the afternoon. Lightning burned a high tension cable in two at Fairfax, Va., and tree limbs were blown down on a unmber of streets in the Capital, but no serious damage resulted.

Today is expected to be fair and cooler.

Woman Sues Taxicab Company for $10,000

The Black & White Taxi Co. was named defendant in a suit for $10,000 damages filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by May C. Robertson, of Kansas City, Mo.

The woman tells the court that she was a passenger in one of the defendant's vehicles April 19, 1929, and that it was in collision with another motor car, causing her to suffer serious injuries. Negligence in operation of the cab and the condition of its brakes is alleged. Attorneys Milton W. King and Cooke & Beneman appear for the plaintiff.

Youth, 17, Dies in Pool While on Vacation Trip

Heart Attack Kills Ronald E. Garrettson, McKinley Graduate, as He Dives in Water; Two Girls Bring Body to Surface.

Death put an abrupt end to the vacation trip of Ronald Edwin Garrettson, 17 years old, of 5430 Connecticut avenue, yesterday afternoon at the Methodist School of Religious Education at Carlisle, Pa. While swimming in the Dickinson College pool about 4 o'clock, he died of heart disease.

Having just been graduated from McKinley High School, young Garretteon had been sent on the trip as a graduation gift by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Garrettson, with a group of about 30 members of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday School. The party left with the Rev. Eddy L. Ford, director of religious education, in charge Monday morning.

The youth is said to have dived into the pool at a depth of 6 feet, to have come to the surface, and almost immediately to have gone to the bottom again. An examination of his lungs later disclosed only a trace of water, indicating he had probably died even before he struck the water, physicians said.

Although a half-dozen men in the pool attempted to rescue Garrettson, it took two girls, Mary Wakeman, of Washington, and Louise Patterson, of Carlisle, to bring the body to the surface. They dived into the pool fully clothed in response to a call of the men for help.

An inquest will probably be held this morning, according to Dr. W. S. Ruch, Cumberland County coroner, after which the body will be sent to Washington. Garrettson's parents were prostrate with grief last night and had made no funeral arrangements. He was their only child.

A post card from the youth came to Mrs. Garrettson only a few hours before she received the telegram reporting his death. Mailed in Frederick, Md., the boy had said that "everybody is happy" and all were looking forward to a good time at Carlisle. They were making the trip by bus and intended to stay at the summer school for ten days.

Although a quiet youth, Garrettson was popular with schoolmates. He was known as a good swimmer.

The dental hygienists are: Maude J. Hall, 5424 Conduit road northwest; E. I. Martin, 15 Rhode Island avenue northwest; Cathleen V. Cates, 1801 I street northwest; Minnie Vederman, 301 South Stricker street, Baltimore, Md.; Annie Lee Allnutt, 1205 Fifteenth street northwest.

Dr. John R. Hogan is president of the board. Other members, besides Dr. Camalier, are Dr. Thomas J. Rice, Dr. Chester A. Baker, and Dr. Charles D. Cole.

Warrant Ordered For Bride's Driver

Accident Involving Alice Huston Lewis Angers Town Council.

Mount Rainier police have been instructed to secure warrants charging speeding for the driver of the car in which Fulton Lewis, jr., Washington newspaperman, and his bride, the former Miss Alice Huston, daughter of Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, passed the town Saturday night after their marriage.

The town council was highly indignant and felt that the members of the bridal party should pay for the damages to the motorcycle of Chief of Police Eugene Plummer, which they are alleged to have struck accidentally. The resolution to take action was introduced at a meeting of the town council by Councilman Floyd B. Mathias.

Police said that the accident had happened but that all members of the party were very polite and had offered to pay for any damages.

Saves Mother-in-Law From Drowning in Bay

Saved from drowning by her son-in-law, Mrs. Mamie Bowden, 65, of 3600 Twelfth street northeast, was in a critical condition at Providence Hospital yesterday. Mrs. Bowden took her 5-year-old granddaughter, Catherine Dougherty, in bathing at Herring Bay Sunday. While in 5 feet of water she is said to have suffered a stroke of apoplexy, sinking with the child in her arms.

Edward R. Dougherty, father of the baby, rescued the pair. The child was not injured by the ducking, but physicians entertained little hope for the grandmother. Mr. Dougherty is a bookkeeper for Gus Eichberg, Pennsylvania avenue auctioneer.

Foreign War Veterans Big Carnival Tomorrow

The Veterans of Foreign Wars will open their carnival tomorrow night at Thirty-fourth street and Wisconsin avenue and continue it through July 12. Proceeds will go to the organization's relief work, its overseas band and drum and bugle corps.

Six riding devices will be among the amusements. The show includes a monkey circus, a Hawaiian troupe, and a musical comedy troupe. The band will give a concert nightly.

PRESIDENT HOOVER GETS HOLIDAY BILL

Federal Workers Awaiting Signature as Stores Announce Closing.

FRIES TO HEAD PARADE

The fervent hopes of thousands of Washingtonians were concentrated on the White House last night as President Hoover pondered whether or not to affix his signature to the joint resolution which would make Saturday a legal holiday this week.

Passed by the Senate some time ago, the measure which would permit a three-day holiday beginning Thursday night was approved by the House yesterday and forwarded to the President. The resolution was first introduced by Senator Cole L. Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina, and was called up in the House yesterday by Representative Clarence McLeod (Republican), of Michigan.

Most of the department stores and many of the specialty shops in the District will declare a three-day holiday beginning July 4 and continuing through to Monday, to permit their employes to enjoy an uninterrupted vacation period over the week-end, it was stated yesterday by Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Coal Yards to Close.

The coal yards and offices of members of the coal division of the association also will remain closed for the three days, Mr. Shaw said, explaining further that this is the first time in many years that the stores of Washington have closed for three consecutive days. It was stated also that a number of stores will close Saturday afternoon throughout July and August.

All patriotic and veterans' organizations in the District are expected to participate in the massing of the colors and the oath of allegiance to the United States at the formal official exercises at the National Sylvan Theater south of the Washington Monument on Fourth of July evening.

Fries to Marshal Parade.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries will marshal the patriotic parade, followed by the colors of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Overseas Band and colors and color guards of the patriotic and veterans' organizations. Spotlights and floodlights will play on the marching body as it proceeds down from the base of the Monument to the stage of the Sylvan Theater where the oath will be administered. This will be followed by a torchlight procession.

The torch parade is scheduled as the closing feature of the formal ceremonies, and is to be coincident with a battle in the air to be staged by the District National Guard and fliers from Bolling Field. Promptly at 9 o'clock the scene of action will shift to the north side of the Monument where the fireworks display will take place.

Estate of Reilly Put at $880,000

Will of Late Paint Merchant Is Filed for Probate by Executors.

Hugh Reilly, widely known Washington paint merchant, who died June 16, left an estate valued at $880,000. This was revealed yesterday when the petition for the probate of his will was filed by his executors, Adolph A. Hoehling and the Metropolitan National Bank.

The estate consists of real estate assessed at $324,000 and personal property estimated to be worth $556,765.

Mr. Reilly under the terms of his will left the bulk of the estate in trust for his children, Hugh, jr., Elizabeth and Ruth Reilly and Mrs. May R. Thomas. A number of special bequests to friends and employes also were made.

The largest group of boys in the history of the Boys' Club of Washington have opened the season at Camp Reeder. Forty-two boys departed for the camp on Monday from the clubhouse, 230 C street northwest.

EDUCATION BOARD ARGUES POLICY OF NAMING TEACHERS

Gilligan Clashes With Carusi Shortly After Naming Him for President.

BALLOU PLAN IS PASSED OVER TO NEXT MEETING

Dr. H. B. Learned Is Elected Vice President; Bennett and Simon Sworn In.

Within half an hour after Henry Gilligan, Board of Education member, had nominated Charles F. Carusi for reelection as president of the board yesterday afternoon and the latter had been elected to that office, the two clashed over a new policy of appointing teachers submitted by Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou.

This new policy, which is made necessary because this year's graduates from the normal schools are the first in the three-year course, was passed over by the board until the next meeting which will not take place until some time in September, shortly before schools reopen. The new policy also involves transfers and reinstatements.

Mr. Gilligan did not want the board to adopt the policy until the Teachers Council had been given a chance to express its opinion. Mr. Gilligan made a motion to this effect, but it did not even receive a second.

"Soviet Elements" Cited.

Superintendent Ballou pointed out that if the board waited for the Teachers Council to express an opinion it would be too late to make the appointments, as the Teachers Council will not be reorganized until October.

Mr. Carusi pointed out that submitting the policy to the Teachers Union would be another way of making a referendum out of the matter. The president of the board condemned this as "further means of introducing one of these Soviet elements into the public school system." Mr. Carusi mitigated this viewpoint with the opinion that the teachers should be given an oportunity to express their opinion over the new policy, adding that they would be given ample opportunity to familiarize themselves with the proposed policy through procuring copies of it from the Franklin School.

Policy Explains Principles.

Another reason for the adoption of new policy of making appointments, as pointed out by Dr. Ballou, follows: It is the first time in the local school system that the list of graduates of the two normal schools are certified in two groups, the kindergarten primary course and those who have completed the intermediate course. A further reason is that the present five year consolidated list of graduates of the normal schools who remained unappointed is made up of persons who completed a two-year course.

Dr. Ballou's submitted policy sets forth the principles and conditions under which persons on these lists of graduates shall be appointed to vacancies as they appear in the schools. He recommends that the five-year consolidated list be discontinued.

Ministers Sworn In.

Under the Ballou policy, the Board of Examiners will determine which persons on the five-year consolidated list have satisfactorily met an equivalent of the three-year course now offered in the normal schools. These persons would be made eligible by the board for appointment in the kindergarten, primary field or the intermediate field. The board would add to these lists the names of all graduates who remain unappointed after June 30, 1931.

Appointments from the certified lists of graduates of the two normal schools would be governed by the following provision: That the administrative officers, with the approval of the superintendent, may transfer to such vacancies other persons in the service eligible to fill such vacancies.

Dr. H. B. Learned was reelected vice president of the board. Rabbi Abram Simon and the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, who were appointed to the board by the District Supreme Court last week, were officially sworn in. Both men have previously served, Rabbi Simon having been president at one time.

Condition of Injured Aviator Called Fair

The condition of Edward Yeatman, aviator, of Lyon Park, Va., was reported as fair last night at Garfield Hospital, where he has been since his plane crashed 300 feet Sunday at the College Park flying field.

Funeral services for William W. Kerr, 1324 Monroe street northwest, who was killed in the same smash-up, will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at his home. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Jose Believes City Will Secure Funds

Chamber Aid Reads Letters Lauding Stand; Other Reports Given.

Confidence that the District appropriations bill for 1931 will be passed was expressed by Rudolph Jose, vice president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting of the board of dirctors of the chamber last night at the Homer Building.

Mr. Jose, as chairman of the finance committee of the chamber, recently led a fight in interest of a larger Federal contribution to the District and the avoidance of further raising of local taxes. His stand has been indorsed by Senator Bingham, Representative Zihlman and Commissioner Reichelderfer. Congratulatory letters from these persons were made public at the meeting last night.

Col. E. G. Bliss, chairman of the clean-up week committee, received an ovation from the directors for the work he accomplished in the 1930 clean-up campaign. He submitted a list of recommendations for the 1931 campaign. Reports were also received from Stephen H. Talkes, chairman of the membership committee, and from Charles J. Stockman on the work accomplished by the chamber in interest of the police and firemen pay increase bill. Charles W. Darr, president of the chamber, presided.

Bankruptcy Plea Is Filed.

Robert C. Annan, an automobile salesman, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. He lists assets totaling only $47.50 and liabilities of $12,852.23. Attorney Frank S. Smith appears for the petitioner.

Suit Under Wyoming Laws Filed Here for Auto Death

A suit under the laws of the State of Wyoming was instituted yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court in which damages totaling $51,150 are sought in connection with the death of Bruce H. Owens, of Casper, Wyo., who was killed last summer in an automobile accident on the Yellowstone Highway in Wyoming. The action is brought against Mrs. Alice G. Hill, of 1440 N street northwest, who is alleged to have owned the ill-fated motor car, and whose husband, James D. Hill, who was killed in the same accident, is said to have been operating the vehicle in which Owens was a passenger.

The suit is unique also in view of the f
